War On Drugs Is Never Easy, Getting Harder

By JIM CAMDEN and DEB GRAY
Star Staff Writers

Fighting the war on drugs has never been an easy task, and local law enforcement officials say it's getting harder all the time. The escalating conflict features more participants and increasingly stronger drugs.

Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, in the State Patrol's drug enforcement division, said drug pushers use any means at hand to break the law: the patrol uses any means within the law to catch them.

But the system that officials use to stem the flow of illegal drugs has problems. The patrol, Lancaster County sheriff's office and Lincoln police all pay drug users to gain information on other drug users. Lawmen in all branches admit that those people are not always reliable.

A paid informer is usually a person arrested or convicted of a drug crime. A deal is sometimes arranged between the offender and the law officials with the county attorney's office providing the incentive: a lighter sentence or a reduced or dropped charge. They work with, or supply information to, drug agents, who are plainsclothes police officers.

Sometimes an informant will just walk into a drug enforcement office and volunteer information. Clinkenbeard said usually those persons either need the money police pay for a tip, or have a score to settle with someone.

Lt. Al Maxie, in the Lincoln Police Department's major crimes division, said, "You really have to watch these people (informers)." Sometimes an informant will be reliable for a while, then slip back into drug use himself, Maxie said.

When informants operate without a trained law officer accompanying them, officials encounter additional problems. If they are the only witness to a drug violation the validity of their testimony in court is often questioned by defense attorneys. And informants have been accused of pocketing "buy" money or using it to purchase drugs for their personal use.

Necessary Evil

Sen. Loran Schmit, who heads a legislative subcommittee investigating the State Patrol's drug enforcement program, acknowledges that problems occur, but contends it's a necessary evil.

"We have to take calculated risks in this business," Schmit said. "Using Sunday School teachers is useless in this type of work. There's no way we can get a receipt from these bums."

In one case last year, a patrol informant, Dennis Landrie, claimed he bought drugs on three separate occasions from Donald Stenmark of Kearney. Court testimony showed that Landrie, a thrice-convicted felon, could not have made one of the buys because Stenmark proved he was somewhere else. Stenmark was convicted on the other two counts and was sentenced to up to 18 years in prison.

A month later, Landrie's testimony in another case was again disputed because the defendant proved he was with others when Landrie claimed the buys took place. The case was dismissed. Stenmark has filed to be released from jail because Landrie was an unreliable witness.

Another problem that law officials say they face is a lack of funding. Sheriff Merle Karnoff said his force received $7,000 for the coming year to make drug purchases in setting up cases.

"That's only about enough for two good heroin busts," Karnoff said.

To find out what undercover drug agents thought of their work, the Star arranged to have agents call the newsroom anonymously to talk about their jobs. One who called said the scarcity of funds is a definite problem.

'Nickels And Dimes'

"It's hard to fight a million-dollar business with nickels and dimes," he said. "Politicians complain that we're not making enough cases, but they won't give us more money."

The agent said in order to have a really effective drug program, each undercover agent should have $10,000-$15,000 in buy money, plus access to a number of different vehicles to maintain their cover.

The drug agents who called The Star described their work as a thankless job full of long hours. They said the courts and the public need to know more about the drug situation, which they described as growing rapidly.

Their work is more dangerous than the usual uniformed police work, but they don't receive hazardous duty pay or similar bonuses. "I wish we did," one agent said.

The bullet-riddled body of Patricia Webb, a paid State Patrol informant, was found April 29, 1974, on a farm near Hallam. The murder has never been solved. Detectives have said the murder may have resulted from Miss Webb's work as an informer.

Some added that the job is a strain on their families who are aware of their work. "My wife would rather I was back in uniform," several said.

But all said they volunteered for the assignment and intended to stay with it for a while.

Although all the agents who called stressed that they stayed within the law to make cases on drug violators, lawyers who work on drug-related cases say many tactics used are questionable.

In one case, all three law agencies combined for a raid on a house at 3063 T St. The two women living in the house said officers burst in at midnight without identifying themselves, searched the house for an hour before producing a warrant and refused for more than an hour to let the women change from their night clothes into regular attire.

Officers involved denied the charges, but the official reports for each agency differed in accounts of the incident.

The women, who were arrested but never charged, are investigating the possibility of legal action in the incident.

Patrick Healey, a Lincoln attorney who is representing the women, said problems also arise when police make their drug raids at night, which is most of the time.

"Night time searches ought to be the exception, not the rule, as I read the statutes," Healey said.

During one late night raid last September, Sherdell Lewis, an alleged cocaine pusher, was shot and killed by a deputy sheriff. Controversy over whether Lewis was pointing or putting down the rifle he was holding, or if he even knew that the plainclothed officer standing on his unlit porch was a law official, has never been resolved.

Both 'Victors' Still Counting

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan each claimed on Sunday the victor's strength that can belong to only one, as they began in person the final installment of their long rivalry for the Republican presidential nomination.

The skies cleared, the bands played, the crowds cheered, and the two candidates both styled themselves winners on the eve of the Republican National Convention.

The political carnival at cross-town arrival rallies for the two contenders came as their lieutenants waged an intensive struggle for advantage. Reagan lost a preliminary test in his effort to force Ford to match his advance disclosure of a vice presidential choice.

Each man's delegate column inched upward, but both remained short of the commitments of the majority that will choose a nominee to take on Democrat Jimmy Carter.

"We will not let you down," Ford told his supporters at the Crown Center Hotel. "I know we're going to win."

Some 25 blocks away, at the Alameda Plaza Hotel, Reagan told a rally in the plaza outside the lobby that he's gaining strength. He said he is confident of victory on the first ballot.

The Associated Press count of delegate commitments and publicly disclosed preferences put Ford a tantalizing 13 votes away from the 1,130-delegate majority that will make a nominee.

The numbers: Ford 1,117; Reagan 1,038; uncommitted 105.

One New York delegate shifted from Ford to support Sen. James L. Buckley of New York. Buckley flew to Kansas City saying he would not discourage a move to draft him for the nomination.

Ford joked about the struggle to win over those last, few delegates, as he introduced his daughter, Susan, to the welcoming crowd. "She loves her photography like I love those uncommitted delegates," the President said.

Reagan was visited by caucuses of the Wyoming and Pennsylvania delegates on his way from the airport to the city. He brought along two Pennsylvania recruits from the uncommitted bloc to introduce to his rally. Sharing the cheers there were V. Anne Black and David Christopher.

But Ford gained four Pennsylvania delegates who had been uncommitted.

Reagan pressed personally his effort to force Ford to match his disclosure of a running mate.

The ultimate verdict on that issue could foretell the lineup of presidential nominating strength.

The convention rules committee rejected a Reagan-backed proposal to require that all candidates name running mates in advance, as Reagan named Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania to his ticket.

But Reagan said he hadn't expected to win there. "This is one that perhaps the entire convention should decide," he said. "I believe that most of the delegates agree with us . . . The process was never intended to be the automatic rubber stamping of one man's choice."

Reagan's campaign manager said, however, that the delegates surely would ratify Reagan's own choice of Schweiker.

The rules committee also upheld a Ford-supported requirement that delegates be required to vote in accordance with binding primary election commitments. The Reagan camp did not make a major test of that issue.

As the candidates arrived, the rival organizations counted votes, coddled every delegate, checked and rechecked the lineup of support in an effort to gauge the outcome of the closest Republican contest in a generation.

Along with Ford and Reagan, there was the enigmatic Buckley, the third name in the volatile GOP mix.

Buckley has yet to say yes or no to the possibility that he might run and raise the chances of a first ballot deadlock.

He was headed for Kansas City, too, a day earlier than had been expected.

Benjamin Hewitt of Lewiston, N.Y., who had been in the Ford delegate column, switched to Buckley. "I'm a Buckley delegate until I see that Buckley isn't going anywhere," he said at a news conference staged by a newly-formed Draft Buckley Committee.

Reps. Phillip Crane of Illinois and Steve Symms of Idaho, who worked in Reagan primary campaigns in their states, joined Hewitt in endorsing Buckley. But Symms said he was bound by state primary election law to stick with Reagan on the first ballot.

Crane said the effort to boom the conservative Republican senator from New York "is in no way a ploy," but a serious campaign to gain the presidential nomination for Buckley.

Richard M. Rosenbaum, the New York GOP chairman and a Ford man, made another attempt to talk Buckley out of the race. "I always thought he wanted to be a U.S. senator," said Rosenbaum, who has warned repeatedly that a presidential venture would hurt Buckley in what already looms as a difficult bid for re-election.

Crane and Hewitt said Buckley has delegate support in New York, Ohio, Colorado, Louisiana and Connecticut, but they gave no firm numbers or names. Crane said he expects Buckley to decide by Tuesday whether to enter the convention contest.

Except for the close count in the Ford-Reagan struggle, it wouldn't make much difference. But in an almost evenly-divided convention, Buckley votes could prevent either side from gaining a majority and thus force a second ballot, which could work to Reagan's advantage.

Reagan tactics made the issue of advance vice presidential disclosure a critical test of strength with Ford. A Tuesday night convention roll call on that issue is likely to signal the victor on Wednesday night, when the convention will award its presidential nomination.

Omahan 'On The Move' At Convention

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Kansas City — President Ford's man in charge of crucial rules committee strategy is a Nebraskan who has operated in national politics at the highest level for a dozen years.

Dick Herman, an Omaha transport executive, was at work this weekend, attempting to protect the President's interest at committee sessions in downtown Kansas City.

On the move, talking, checking, conferring, listening, surveying, he paced along the perimeter of committee sessions at the Contiental Hotel and the Muehlebach.

"We have a majority" on the committee, Herman acknowledged during an interview while former Republican National Chairman Dean Burch kept watch for the Ford forces.

"We think we have the votes" to beat down the Reagan effort to require Ford to name his vice presidential choice before the presidential balloting begins.

"But we'll have to take these issues one by one."

The weekend's first standing vote in the committee provided what Herman described as "an indication" of Ford's relative strength on the rules unit. But it was not a true test of the Ford-Reagan division.

The committee voted 51 to 47 against a motion which would have required a two-thirds vote, rather than a majority, to end debate on any issue.

Such a procedural requirement might have allowed a committee minority to delay, if not frustrate, the will of the majority.

When it was defeated, both Herman and Burch smiled.

(Nebraska's committee members, Eva Jean Beltner of Bayard and Lowell Hummel of Fairbury, both Reagan delegates, voted with the minority.)

For Herman, clad in his usual blue sportcoat, this year's assignment marks his fourth venture into presidential politics on a national scale.

The Nebraskan began as an operative for Barry Goldwater in 1964. In 1968, he was a Midwest delegate headhunter for Richard Nixon.

In 1972, Herman was the arrangements chairman for Nixon's renomination convention in Miami Beach.

Now he is serving a second president, who is engaged in a life-and-death struggle for his first nomination.

Herman said he does not find it surprising or odd that an incumbent president failed to wrap up his party's nomination in advance of the national convention.

First of all, Herman says, he is going to get it.

"At this point, the President is assured of nomination," he declared.

And "I don't think it's strange" that it has come so hard.

"Ford had no national constituency to start with, while Reagan did. Many people forget that Reagan sought the nomination in 1968 against Nixon. He's had a national constituency."

Reagan has had another advantage, Herman says.

"The President has had to take positions, sometimes unpopular ones. Someone who does not hold the office can just fire away at those positions."

Ford also had to wrestle with an unprecedented burden, Herman suggested.

"The President had to spend a bundle of his time straightening out an administration which had been in chaos," he noted.

Once the rules committee has finished its work, Herman's assignment moves to the convention floor at crowded Kemper Arena where he will be one of Ford's roving managers, continuing his role as a member of the President's national advisory and strategy teams.

"I'll be visiting with delegates," he smiled.

His mode of operation was on display at the flood-lit rules unit sessions this weekend — keep moving, shaking hands, whispering a brief message, leaning forward for an earnest conversation, watching, counting votes, waiting for victory on Wednesday night.

Manson 'Family' Member Breaks From Jail

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Authorities hunted on Sunday for Susan Murphy, a member of the Charles Manson "family," who severely clubbed a woman guard in escaping from federal prison with another inmate.

Miss Murphy, 34, and Diane Ellis, 33, fled the Terminal Island prison Saturday night using the woman guard's car. The car was found abandoned about nine miles from the medium-security prison here. Officials said they did not know whether the women were armed.

Authorities said Miss Murphy, nicknamed Heather, lived in Sacramento with Manson followers Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme and Sandra Good at the time Miss Fromme pointed a loaded gun at President Ford last Sept. 5. Miss Fromme was convicted of trying to murder the president.

Miss Murphy, described by the FBI as a fringe member of the Manson group, was serving a sentence for conspiring with Miss Good to send threatening letters to business executives they said were threatening the environment.

Miss Murphy and Miss Good were convicted of mailing threats to executives accusing them of polluting the environment. Miss Murphy was sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison and Miss Good is serving a 15-year sentence.

Miss Ellis was serving time for parole violation on a bank robbery conviction and entered the prison a year ago, authorities said. Authorities said they knew of no connection between Miss Ellis and the Manson group.

Manson was convicted with three of his women followers in the slaying of actress Sharon Tate and six others in a two-night massacre in 1969.

Officials said Miss Murphy and Miss Ellis apparently acted alone without help from anyone outside the facility and discounted earlier reports that a man had been waiting for them.

Corrections officer Melinda Eisenhart, 25, was listed in good condition Sunday at St. Mary's Hospital after her beating by the two women who attacked her in a guardhouse. Miss Eisenhart's injuries required about 80 stitches, an official said.

The escape occurred at about 5:45 p.m. Saturday during a recreation period, said David Crouse, prison duty officer.

The women attacked Miss Eisenhart in a guard house and thrashed her with a two-foot club but did not knock her unconscious, he said.

Question Hovers Over NU Seat

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

First came the question — yet unresolved — about University of Nebraska Regents' authority to influence Steven B. Sample's vote on public radio.

Now his vote may become a secondary concern, intertwined with an even more serious new question: Is the NU seat on the Nebraska Educational Television Commission being represented illegally?

Sample is the NU executive vice president for academic affairs. He sits in the NETV Commission seat which the law a decade ago reserved permanently for what was then the university chief executive officer.

Raises Issue

But a letter from the Nebraska Justice Department to Commission Secretary Jack McBride raises the issue of whether Sample — NU President D. B. Varner's designee — should be the university representative at all.

The law says "the chancellor of NU or his designee" is a member. If either one "is unable to attend a commission meeting, the vice chancellor for academic affairs is authorized to act on his behalf."

The Justice Department letter — advice, not an official opinion — points out that "there is no seat assigned to the president of NU or his designee," as the law now stands since it was last amended in 1969.

Then the NU Lincoln campus and the Medical Center in Omaha were considered the entire university. Its head was a chancellor, served by various vice chancellors including the one for academic affairs mentioned in the law.

But that law doesn't reflect the later merger of NU with Omaha University into a multi-campus system. The higher office of NU president was created, along with system-level officers whose titles are similar to those of present campus-level posts.

Now There Are Three

Thus the problem is this: There are now three chancellors, one each for UNL, UNO and the Medical Center. Each semi-autonomous campus chancellor has a bevy of vice chancellors. Sample is indeed responsible for academic affairs, as cited in the NETV law, but at the system rather than the campus level.

Writing for the Justice Department, Assistant Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher suggested the NETV Commission "seek an appropriate statutory amendment" to clarify exactly which NU officials may sit on the commission seat.

Mosher advised that it's simply impossible to answer McBride's question about the current status of the seat because there is no [illegible] of NU per se [illegible] ficer of the system.

War On Drugs Is Never Easy, Getting Harder

By JIM CAMDEN and DEB GRAY

Fighting the war on drugs has never been an easy task, and local law enforcement officials say it's getting harder all the time. The escalating conflict features more participants and increasingly stronger drugs.

Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, in the State Patrol's drug enforcement division, said drug pushers use any means at hand to break the law; the patrol uses any means within the law to catch them.

Both 'Victors' Still Counting

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan each claimed on Sunday the victor's strength that can belong to only one, as they began in person the final installment of their long rivalry for the Republican presidential nomination.

Some 25 blocks away, at the Alameda Plaza Hotel, Reagan told a rally in the plaza outside the lobby that he's gaining strength. He said he is confident of victory on the first ballot.

The Associated Press count of delegate commitments and publicly disclosed preferences put Ford a tantalizing 13 votes away from the 1,130-delegate majority that will make a nominee.

The numbers: Ford 1,117; Reagan 1,036; uncommitted 105.

One New York delegate shifted from Ford to support Sen. James L. Buckley of New York. Buckley flew to Kansas City saying he would not discourage a move to draft him for the nomination.

But Ford gained four Pennsylvania delegates who had been uncommitted.

Reagan pressed personally his effort to force Ford to match his disclosure of a running mate.

The ultimate verdict on that issue could foretell the lineup of presidential nominating strength.

The convention rules committee rejected a Reagan-backed proposal to require that all candidates name running mates in advance, as Reagan named Sen. Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania to his ticket.

But Reagan said he hadn't expected to win there. "This is one that perhaps the entire convention should decide," he said. "I believe that most of the delegates agree with us . . . The process was never intended to be the automatic rubber stamping of one man's choice."

Reagan's campaign manager said, however, that the delegates surely would ratify Reagan's own choice of Schweiker.

The rules committee also upheld a Ford-supported requirement that delegates be required to vote in accordance with binding primary election commitments. The Reagan camp did not make a major test of that issue.

As the candidates arrived, the rival organizations counted votes, coddled every delegate, checked and rechecked the lineup of support in an effort to gauge the outcome of the closest Republican contest in a generation.

Along with Ford and Reagan, there was the enigmatic Buckley, the third name in the volatile GOP mix.

Reps. Phillip Crane of Illinois and Steve Symms of Idaho, who worked in Reagan primary campaigns in their states, joined Hewitt in endorsing Buckley. But Symms said he was bound by state primary election law to stick with Reagan on the first ballot.

Crane said the effort to boom the conservative Republican senator from New York "is in no way a ploy," but a serious campaign to gain the presidential nomination for Buckley.

Richard M. Rosenbaum, the New York GOP chairman and a Ford man, made another attempt to talk Buckley out of the race. "I always thought he wanted to be a U.S. senator," said Rosenbaum, who has warned repeatedly that a presidential venture would hurt Buckley in what already looms as a difficult bid for re-election.

Crane and Hewitt said Buckley has delegate support in New York, Ohio, Colorado, Louisiana and Connecticut, but they gave no firm numbers or names. Crane said he expects Buckley to decide by Tuesday whether to enter the convention contest.

Except for the close count in the Ford-Reagan struggle, it wouldn't make much difference. But in an almost evenly-divided convention, Buckley votes could prevent either side from gaining a majority and thus force a second ballot, which could work to Reagan's advantage.

Reagan tactics made the issue of advance vice presidential disclosure a critical test of strength with Ford. A Tuesday night convention roll call on that issue is likely to signal the victor on Wednesday night, when the convention will award its presidential nomination.

Omahan 'On The Move' At Convention

By DON WALTON

Kansas City — President Ford's man in charge of crucial rules committee strategy is a Nebraskan who has operated in national politics at the highest level for a dozen years.

Dick Herman, an Omaha transport executive, was at work this weekend, attempting to protect the President's interest at committee sessions in downtown Kansas City.

Manson 'Family' Member Breaks From Jail

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Authorities hunted on Sunday for Susan Murphy, a member of the Charles Manson "family," who severely clubbed a woman guard in escaping from federal prison with another inmate.

Miss Murphy, 34, and Diane Ellis, 33, fled the Terminal Island prison Saturday night using the woman guard's car. The car was found abandoned about nine miles from the medium-security prison here. Officials said they did not know whether the women were armed.

Authorities said Miss Murphy, nicknamed Heather, lived in Sacramento with Manson followers Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme and Sandra Good at the time Miss Fromme pointed a loaded gun at President Ford last Sept. 5. Miss Fromme was convicted of trying to murder the president.

Miss Murphy, described by the FBI as a fringe member of the Manson group, was serving a sentence for conspiring with Miss Good to send threatening letters to business executives they said were threatening the environment.

Miss Murphy and Miss Good were convicted of mailing threats to executives accusing them of polluting the environment. Miss Murphy was sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison and Miss Good is serving a 15-year sentence.

Miss Ellis was serving time for parole violation on a bank robbery conviction and entered the prison a year ago, authorities said. Authorities said they knew of no connection between Miss Ellis and the Manson group.

Manson was convicted with three of his women followers in the slaying of actress Sharon Tate and six others in a two-night massacre in 1969.

Officials said Miss Murphy and Miss Ellis apparently acted alone without help from anyone outside the facility and discounted earlier reports that a man had been waiting for them.

Corrections officer Melinda Eisenhart, 25, was listed in good condition Sunday at St. Mary's Hospital after her beating by the two women who attacked her in a guardhouse. Miss Eisenhart's injuries required about 80 stitches, an official said.

The escape occurred at about 5:45 p.m. Saturday during a recreation period, said David Crouse, prison duty officer.

The women attacked Miss Eisenhart in a guard house and thrashed her with a two-foot club but did not knock her unconscious, he said.

Question Hovers Over NU Seat

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

First came the question — yet unresolved — about University of Nebraska Regents' authority to influence Steven B. Sample's vote on public radio.

Now his vote may become a secondary concern, intertwined with an even more serious new question: Is the NU seat on the Nebraska Educational Television Commission being represented illegally?

Sample is the NU executive vice president for academic affairs. He sits in the NETV Commission seat which the law a decade ago reserved permanently for what was then the university chief executive officer.

Raises Issue

But a letter from the Nebraska Justice Department to Commission Secretary Jack McBride raises the issue of whether Sample — NU President D. B. Varner's designee — should be the university representative at all.

The law says "the chancellor of NU or his designee" is a member. If either one "is unable to attend a commission meeting, the vice chancellor for academic affairs is authorized to act on his behalf."

The Justice Department letter — advice, not an official opinion — points out that "there is no seat assigned to the president of NU or his designee," as the law now stands since it was last amended in 1969.

Then, the NU Lincoln campus and the Medical Center in Omaha were considered the entire university. Its head was a chancellor, served by various vice chancellors including the one for academic affairs mentioned in the law.

But that law doesn't reflect the later merger of NU with Omaha University into a multi-campus system. The higher office of NU president was created, along with system-level officers whose titles are similar to those of present campus-level posts.

Now There Are Three

Thus the problem is this: There are now three chancellors, one each for UNL, UNO and the Medical Center. Each semi-autonomous campus chancellor has a bevy of vice chancellors. Sample is indeed responsible for academic affairs, as cited in the NETV law, but at the system rather than the campus level.

Writing for the Justice Department, Assistant Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher suggested the NETV Commission "seek an appropriate statutory amendment" to clarify exactly which NU officials may sit on the commission seat.

Mosher advised that it's "simply impossible" to answer McBride's question about the current status of that seat, because "there is no chancellor of NU per se" functioning as chief officer of the system.

Children's Deaths Bring War to Peaceful Irish Family

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Anne Maguire left her bungalow in West Belfast with her four children to go to the local library and change her daughter's books.

She pushed a baby carriage in which 6-week-old Andrew lay. John, 2½, rode his tricycle. Six-year-old Mark walked beside his mother.

Her only daughter, Joanne, 8, a voracious reader, chattered away at her side.

Ten minutes later, Joanne and baby Andrew were dead, John was dying, and 31-year-old Mrs. Maguire was critically injured.

Mark stood alone among the carnage, unhurt but trembling and sobbing with shock.

The Maguire children were the innocent victims of Northern Ireland's vicious sectarian war, caught up in a shootout between British soldiers and terrorists.

They died last Tuesday when a hijacked auto carrying two gunmen spun out of control, the driver, Danny Lennon, dead at the wheel with an army bullet in his head. The blue sedan careened onto the sidewalk and crushed them against the iron railings outside St. John the Baptist Roman Catholic school.

The gunmen were fleeing down Finaghy Road north in the staunchly Catholic Andersonstown suburb from an ambush that went wrong. They were chased by an army patrol with guns blazing.

The incident happened at the height of a four-day eruption of shooting, bombing, hijacking and rioting in the city's Catholic districts where the outlawed Irish Republican Army's "Provisional" wing is based.

Nearly 1,600 men, women and children have been slain in the British province's religious conflict between one million Protestants and a half-million Catholics. But the slaughter of the Maguire children shocked and sickened Ulster's citizens, hardened by seven years of sudden death and bloodhsed, like few other killings have.

Their deaths touched off a province-wide emotional backlash. The Maguires' neighbors, led by Mrs. Betty Williams, launched a peace movement and openly defied the gunmen they claim have terrorized them into silence.

More than 10,000 people, Protestants and Catholics alike, attended a rally Saturday at the spot where the children died — the biggest peace demonstration seen in this unruly province.

Jackie Maguire buried his children in tiny coffins strewn with blood-red roses in Belfast's Milltown Cemetery, only 50 yards from the grave of the man who helped kill them.

Maguire, a bearded 34-year-old auto mechanic, is a shattered man, holding his emotions in. "It hasn't hit me yet," he said.

"Mark is the same. He knows his sister and brothers are dead but it hasn't sunk in. I haven't taken him back to the empty house yet. When I do I think that's when we'll feel it."

Mrs. Maguire is under intensive care in Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital, still on the danger list with brain damage, a smashed pelvis, broken legs and other injuries. She is under heavy sedation, lapsing in and out of unconsciousness, unaware that her children are dead and buried.

Maguire is quietly bitter. "I blame the IRA," he said. "It wasn't the soldiers' fault. They had to shoot those gunmen. The IRA are evil b————. This has to stop, for God's sake."

Mairead Corrigan, Mrs. Maguire's sister, said: "There is no hiding place anymore. Maybe something like this had to happen to someone like Jackie and Anne, ordinary people who have nothing to do with violence.

"I've wanted to speak out against the IRA for years. But like everyone else, I was afraid. There's no fear in me anymore. I'll do everything I can to end the killing."

"Our family has paid a great sacrifice. We must make sure our babies did not die in vain. God took those lovely children for a reason," Miss Corrigan said.

The children's last day began around 7 a.m. when John, always the first to rise, woke his father to cook breakfast. Joanne and baby Andrew were still asleep.

"My wife was still tired after having Andrew, so I let her lie-in the mornings," Maguire related.

He made a breakfast of cereal, boiled eggs and toast for himself, John and Mark. Then he went to work at a garage a couple of miles away.

"I told the boys to play in their bedroom and not to wake their mother," he said. "I kissed them goodbye and went out."

Mrs. Maguire got up soon after to feed the baby. She breakfasted herself and then did some housework. Miss Corrigan said her sister did some knitting, making a coat for Andrew.

Joanne played with her dolls. "She was always dressing up," Miss Corrigan said.

Mrs. Maguire gave Andrew his mid-day feeding and left the house with the children soon after 2 p.m., neighbors said.

There had been trouble in various parts of the city that day, but Mrs. Maguire didn't plan to be out long.

It was a fine, sunny day when the family began the walk to tragedy. They headed down their street, Ladybrook Crescent, toward Finaghy Road North, moving slowly so little John could keep up with his bike.

They turned into Finaghy, a long straight street that leads to the library. After changing Joanne's books, they were going over to see Mrs. Maguire's mother in Riverside Park as they did most days.

As they walked up Finaghy, they saw one of Mrs. Maguire's sisters coming toward them. The kids waved to her.

It was 2.30 p.m. Fair-haired Mark, the only surviving child, recalled that suddenly there was a burst of firing ahead.

The gunmen's sedan roared around the corner 100 yards away, tires screeching, pursued by troops.

"There were four shots. The car swerved sharply," Mark said.

Lennon, an IRA "volunteer" and one of the guerrillas' getaway drivers, was hit and slumped over the wheel. The car plunged into the Maguires, ripping apart the schoolyard railings.

The other gunman was clutching a U.S.-made Armalite automatic rifle, the guerrillas' favorite sniping weapon. Pursuing soldiers captured him.

History had repeated itself. Two years ago a little girl was shot dead almost at the same spot by a sniper firing on an army patrol.

Passersby crowded around the wreckage. Ambulances arrived within minutes and carried the victims to the hospital.

Soon after 3 p.m. a friend telephoned Maguire at work and told him there had been an accident. "I thought one of the boys had hurt himself," he said. "So I drove home."

He passed the scene of the tragedy, saw the car and the mangled baby carriage and tricycle. He didn't know it was where his children had died.

His house was empty when he reached home at about 3:20 p.m. Two neighbors, Tom McGahey and Charlie Terry, told him the children had been hospitalized. They drove him to the Royal Victoria, taking him past the death scene again.

"But this time I recognized the baby carriage and John's tricycle. At the hospital, a priest told me what had happened. I couldn't believe it — but it was true. After that, it was all a haze."

Andrew and Joanne were dead. John died the next day. Despite the horror, the violence continued unabated. Four days later 12-year-old Majella O'Hare was killed in a gun battle between a sniper and an army squad outside the border village of Ballymoyer in County Armagh.

She was going to church with some friends when they were caught in the crossfire.

Maguire, comforting his weeping sister-in-law, Mairead, said: "It was terrible that this little girl got shot. It seems unbelievable after what happened to my children.

"It's always the bystanders who suffer. I'd like to think that the death of these children will bring it all to an end. But I don't think it will."

French Order Total Evacuation

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — Thousands of people streamed away from the La Soufriere volcano danger zone Sunday after French authorities said the mountain could erupt in 10 to 12 hours with energy equivalent to several atomic bombs.

"We have begun what we think is the countdown. The volcano cannot turn back," said Max Vincent, head of civil security for Guadeloupe. "We think an eruption is coming, perhaps the most significant one in the Caribbean during this century."

A team of about a dozen volcano scientists, assembled from Paris and points in the French West Indies, said Sunday morning they had discovered a chamber of molten rock deep within the earth that could explode within hours.

Jean-Claude Aurousseau, administrator of this French island, then ordered a total evacuation of the 72,000 residents of the danger zone. They have been living with the threat of danger since July 8 when a crack opened on the side of the 4,813-foot peak and began to belch foul-smelling gas, steam, ash, stones and mud. The crack is 1,500 feet below the cone.

Aurousseau called on the population to show "calm, courage and responsibility."

Families carrying bundles crowded into cars and brightly colored buses, then fought for a position on the narrow two-lane highway that led out of the zone north to Quadeloupe's biggest city, Pointe-A-Pitre.

Three ships carried some 6,000 persons from Basse-Terre, which is just six miles from the peak of La Soufriere, on a 2½-hour voyage to Pointe-A-Pitre, where school buildings were opened for them.

Jean-Pierre Doumenc, the deputy administrator, stepped off one of the ships and announced that the French administrators and the volcano scientists would be evacuated from Basse-Terre by midnight Sunday. This would leave a handful of police in the endangered town, and they were described as ready to leave at a moment's notice.

An observer who flew over the volcano Sunday afternoon reported, "I could see white smoke coming up from at least five different places, and even from the plane the smell of sulfur was very strong."

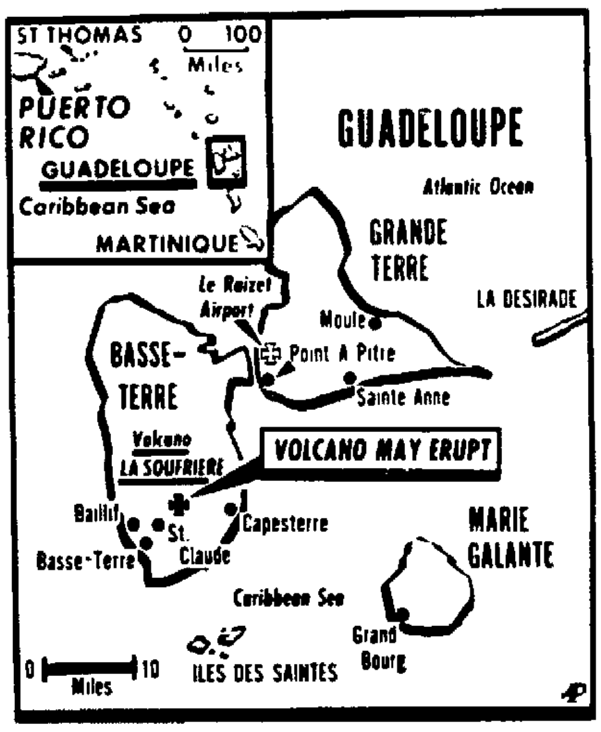
La Soufriere is French for sulfur mine. It last erupted in 1956, but there was no lava flow and no injuries were reported.

In July an estimated 25,000 residents fled to havens in Pointe-A-Pitre, on the eastern wing of this butterfly-shaped island, when the crack first opened and an eruption appeared imminent.

But little happened and most returned to their homes within a week. One man commented then that "Soufriere is like one of the family."

"I still think it's stable," Jean-Pierre Peler, 26, said after arriving here Sunday. "We went through the same routine before, not only a month ago but also in 1956."

Another evacuee, Barhs Sonippier, said he had been reluctant to leave his home in Capesterre, where he teaches French. "But I came because the police told me to," he said. "Obviously I am concerned but it does get tiring leaving so many times."



LA SOUFRIERE . . . expected to erupt.

Passman Loses Long-Held Seat To Dairy Farmer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rep. Otto Passman's 30-year tenure in Congress has been ended by a Ringgold dairy farmer who was 5 years old when Passman was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

With virtually all precincts reported, the 76-year-old Passman lost by 4,701 votes to 35-year-old Jerry Huckaby in Louisiana's Democratic primary on Saturday.

"My opponent had served long and well in Congress, but the voters agreed with me that it was time for a younger man," Huckaby said from his headquarters in Monroe. "The people were ready for a change and I have felt for the past four weeks that I was going to win. It is the American dream come true for me."

He said he was going home to Ringgold and planned to spend the next several days putting corn in his silo.

Passman took his telephone off the hook Saturday night and could not reached for comment Sunday. His office later issued a statement pledging support for whomever is elected to Congress from the district. It did not mention Huckaby, who will face Republican Frank Spooner of Monroe in November. Spooner was unopposed in the GOP primary.

Seven months ago, when Huckaby said he began considering waging his first political campaign, few people thought he had a chance to unseat Passman, chairman of the House foreign operations subcommittee.

Passman — who endeared himself to the rural, piney woods district with his conservative votes and an ability to get foreign dollars for American farm products — won his last primary campaign with 75 per cent of the vote and had no opposition in the general election.

In May, when Huckaby announced that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination, Passman remarked, "That's a nice young fellow running."

But Huckaby took his campaign seriously, mortgaging his 1,000-acre farm in Ringgold, moving into an apartment in Monroe — the closest thing to an urban center in the district — and hiring an advertising agency.

And he forced Passman to do the same. or the first time in his career, Passman mounted a media campaign and raised more than $85,000 dollars in contributions, including $1,000 from Gov. Edwin Edwards.

Huckaby raised more than $80,000, including $5,000 from the Agricultural and Dairy Educational Political Trust, the political fund raising arm of Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.

Huckaby campaigned on Passman's advancing age, his vote against a prayer-in-school amendment and allegations that he padded his expense account for travel between Washington and his home district.

Although Huckaby said the allegations were not a major issue, one of his broadcast advertising spots ended: "Otto Passman took the Congress for a ride. Jerry Huckaby doesn't like paying for the gas."

The unofficial tally in Saturday's primary was 45,589 for Huckaby and 40,888 for Passman.

In other primary races, Reps. Lindy Boggs and Joe D. Waggonner easily won renomination against token opposition.

In the battle to succeed retiring Rep. F. Edward Hebert, New Orleans Councilman James Moreau led a six-man field by a wide margin but faces a runoff Oct. 2 against state Rep. Richard A Tonry.

Turkish Ship Plans More Explorations

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — The oil survey ship Sismik-1, which provoked a verbal war between Greece and Turkey over oil rights in the Aegean Sea, dropped anchor here Sunday before enthusiastic throngs lining the waterfront. But the ship's controversial explorations are to begin again in three days.

Energy Minister Selahhatin Kilic, on hand for the ship's arrival, said the Sismik-1 would stay only long enough to take on provisions and would depart again on Aug. 18. He refused to reveal its destination.

Sheep were sacrificed and a band played martial music as the ship, which had left July 23 from Istanbul, dropped anchor here.

In New York on Saturday, U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with the Greek and Turkish foreign ministers to try to get negotiations under way between the two NATO-member countries. The major obstacle was the Greek demand that the Sismik-1 cease its explorations, it was reported.

The trip provoked Greek appeals to the United Nations Security Council and the International Court of Justice for help in solving the dispute over oil rights in the Aegean.

The Sismik-1 is rigged for oil exploration but Turkish authorities say the ship's mission was scientific. At ceremonies at the Dardanelles Strait July 28 Kilic said the ship would tow a 4,000-yard cable and undertake undersea explosions.

"Our intentions are peaceful," the energy minister said at that time, adding, "Our armed forces will retaliate against any attack." The ship was escorted by two Turkish destroyers.

Greece threatened to remove the ship by force if necessary but such an armed confontation never took place.

Greece claimed that the ship had entered the continental shelves of several Greek islands in the Aegean Sea many of which lie close to the Turkish coast.

Future Action Undecided For Man Hanged From Sign

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A man who was left hanging from a roadside sign by two hitchhikers after he refused to buy them a drink, says he is undecided if he will continue to give rides to strangers.

"I've always felt for the need for other people. It would depend on what shape they were in. It's kind of hard to say. I've been doing this ever since I was able to drive a car — since I was about 14 years old."

John Henry Young, 40, was strung up with a nylon rope with his toes touching the ground. A police chief rescued him Thursday night after he had been hanging for about 20 minutes. Motorists passed the man, but none stopped to give aid.

"Only God could have done this . . . to help me get through and keep going that long," Young said Sunday in a telephone interview from his hospital bed here.

He was being treated for neck injuries and from being roughed up by his assailants. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

An unemployed mechanic-truck driver from Tyronza, a northeast Arkansas community of 500, Young said he was about five miles from home when he picked up two hitchhikers. Young told authorities the two were smoking something that "didn't smell quite right."

"They got in the car and I just told them I was going up the road a piece," Young said. "They asked for a rope. They said could they have it to tie their bags up. I guess they were sleeping bags or what have you."

Young said the two asked him to buy them a drink. When he said he didn't have any money, "one pulled a knife and said this was it."

Young said he stopped his car and didn't put up a struggle.

"I didn't realize what they were going to do until I got out of the car and they took the rope out," he said.

Young said he stood on his tiptoes as long as he could with his arms and legs bound and the nylon rope around his neck. He said he was hung from a highway sign giving the direction to Tyronza and Lepanto.

"The officer in Tyronza said I hung there maybe 20 minutes or so. Everytime I moved the rope, it would get tighter. When I knew anything, I was here in the hospital.

Young was freed by Tyronza Police Chief Chester Ford who was called to the scene. Ford said at least 150 vehicles normally pass the spot during 20 minutes.

One motorist who drove past Young was Dan M. Shepherd, a part-time minister of the Church of Christ. He said he just got a glimpse of the hanging man and thought it was a effigy hanging from the sign placed there as a prank.

He drove back to the sign, but said it was dark and he feared for the safety of his family and did not get out of the car. Shepherd drove to a home and called police.

"I'm still going over it, again and again. I did what I thought was right. I still think it was right, weighing all the factors. But that doesn't necessarily give me peace."

"This is pure insanity," said one contestant who quit after munching 70 jalapenos.

School Children Chat By Radio To Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) - Children from 10 countries chatted by radio with the two Soviet cosmonauts who have been orbiting earth for more than a month in their Salyut 5 space lab, the news agency Tass said Sunday.

It said the schoolchildren at the Artek Pioneer Camp in Crimea were invited Saturday to the nearby Yevpatoriya flight control center for a "press conference" with spacemen Boris Volynov and Vitaly Zholobov.

"The children received from orbit extensive replies to all their questions regarding the flight program and wished the cosmonauts successful completion of their mission as well as a safe return to earth," Tass said.

He made a breakfast of cereal, boiled eggs and toast for himself, John and Mark. Then he went to work at a garage a couple of miles away.

"I told the boys to play in their bedroom and not to wake their mother," he said. "I kissed them goodbye and went out."

Mrs. Maguire got up soon after to feed the baby. She breakfasted herself and then did some housework. Miss Corrigan said her sister did some knitting, making a coat for Andrew.

Joanne played with her dolls. "She was always dressing up," Miss Corrigan said.

Mrs. Maguire gave Andrew his mid-day feeding and left the house with the children soon after 2 p.m., neighbors said.

There had been trouble in various parts of the city that day, but Mrs. Maguire didn't plan to be out long.

It was a fine, sunny day when the family began the walk to tragedy. They headed down their street, Ladybrook Crescent, toward Finaghy Road North, moving slowly so little John could keep up with his bike.

They turned into Finaghy, a long straight street that leads to the library. After changing Joanne's books, they were going over to see Mrs. Maguire's mother in Riverside Park as they did most days.

As they walked up Finaghy, they saw one of Mrs. Maguire's sisters coming toward them. The kids waved to her.

It was 2.30 p.m. Fair-haired Mark, the only surviving child, recalled that suddenly there was a burst of firing ahead.

The gunmen's sedan roared around the corner 100 yards away, tires screeching, pursued by troops.

"There were four shots. The car swerved sharply," Mark said.

Lennon, an IRA "volunteer" and one of the guerrillas' getaway drivers, was hit and slumped over the wheel. The car plunged into the Maguires, ripping apart the schoolyard railings.

The other gunman was clutching a U.S.-made Armalite automatic rifle, the guerrillas' favorite sniping weapon. Pursuing soldiers captured him.

History had repeated itself. Two years ago a little girl was shot dead almost at the same spot by a sniper firing on an army patrol.

Passersby crowded around the wreckage. Ambulances arrived within minutes and carried the victims to the hospital.

Soon after 3 p.m. a friend telephoned Maguire at work and told him there had been an accident. "I thought one of the boys had hurt himself," he said. "So I drove home."

He passed the scene of the tragedy, saw the car and the mangled baby carriage and tricycle. He didn't know it was where his children had died.

His house was empty when he reached home at about 3:20 p.m. Two neighbors, Tom McGahey and Charlie Terry, told him the children had been hospitalized. They drove him to the Royal Victoria, taking him past the death scene again.

"But this time I recognized the baby carriage and John's tricycle. At the hospital, a priest told me what had happened. I couldn't believe it — but it was true. After that, it was all a haze."

Andrew and Joanne were dead. John died the next day. Despite the horror, the violence continued unabated. Four days later 12-year-old Majella O'Hare was killed in a gun battle between a sniper and an army squad outside the border village of Ballymoyer in County Armagh.

She was going to church with some friends when they were caught in the crossfire.

Maguire, comforting his weeping sister-in-law, Mairead, said: "It was terrible that this little girl got shot. It seems unbelievable after what happened to my children.

"It's always the bystanders who suffer. I'd like to think that the death of these children will bring it all to an end. But I don't think it will."

French Order Total Evacuation

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — Thousands of people streamed away from the La Soufriere volcano danger zone Sunday after French authorities said the mountain could erupt in 10 to 12 hours with energy equivalent to several atomic bombs.

"We have begun what we think is the countdown. The volcano cannot turn back," said Max Vincent, head of civil security for Guadeloupe. "We think an eruption is coming, perhaps the most significant one in the Caribbean during this century."

A team of about a dozen volcano scientists, assembled from Paris and points in the French West Indies, said Sunday morning they had discovered a chamber of molten rock deep within the earth that could explode within hours.

Jean-Claude Aurousseau, administrator of this French island, then ordered a total evacuation of the 72,000 residents of the danger zone. They have been living with the threat of danger since July 8 when a crack opened on the side of the 4,813-foot peak and began to belch foul-smelling gas, steam, ash, stones and mud. The crack is 1,500 feet below the cone.

Aurousseau called on the population to show "calm, courage and responsibility."

Families carrying bundles crowded into cars and brightly colored buses, then fought for a position on the narrow two-lane highway that led out of the zone north to Quadeloupe's biggest city, Pointe-A-Pitre.

Three ships carried some 6,000 persons from Basse-Terre, which is just six miles from the peak of La Soufriere, on a 2½-hour voyage to Pointe-A-Pitre, where school buildings were opened for them.

Jean-Pierre Doumenc, the deputy administrator, stepped off one of the ships and announced that the French administrators and the volcano scientists would be evacuated from Basse-Terre by midnight Sunday. This would leave a handful of police in the endangered town, and they were described as ready to leave at a moment's notice.

An observer who flew over the volcano Sunday afternoon reported, "I could see white smoke coming up from at least five different places, and even from the plane the smell of sulfur was very strong."

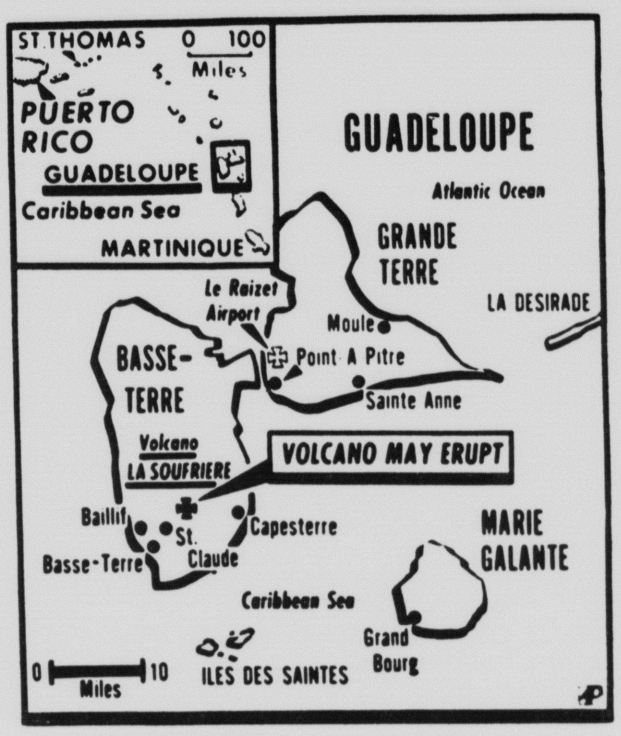
La Soufriere is French for sulfur mine. It last erupted in 1956, but there was no lava flow and no injuries were reported.

In July an estimated 25,000 residents fled to havens in Pointe-A-Pitre, on the eastern wing of this butterfly-shaped island, when the crack first opened and an eruption appeared imminent.

But little happened and most returned to their homes within a week. One man commented then that "Soufriere is like one of the family."

"I still think it's stable," Jean-Pierre Peler, 26, said after arriving here Sunday. "We went through the same routine before, not only a month ago but also in 1956."

Another evacuee, Barhs Sonippier, said he had been reluctant to leave his home in Capesterre, where he teaches French. "But I came because the police told me to," he said. "Obviously I am concerned but it does get tiring leaving so many times."



LA SOUFRIERE . . . expected to erupt.

84 World Leaders Gather

Colombo, Sri Lanka — Leaders of the 84 nonaligned nations — which try to stay independent of alliances and blocs — gathered over the weekend in Sri Lanka, Colombo, for the opening Monday of a four-day conference. Many of the hundreds of delegates said that this is the time of transition for the 20-year-old movement. A chief topic will be "a new international economic order" which will seek to narrow the gap between poor and rich nations.

Christians Shell Mountains

Beirut — Christian artillery bombarded Palestinian and leftist positions in mountains east of Beirut. The shelling was concentrated around Mt. Sannin and the towns of Ain Tura and Matein in the upper Matein district, where large-scale fighting had been predicted following the fall of Tell Zaatar.

Probe Of Socialists Continues

Washington — Well-placed sources at the Federal Bureau of Investigation said the bureau intends to continue its investigation — begun 38 years ago — of the Socialist Workers Party. The investigation will proceed, it was said, under classified Justice Department guidelines applying to radical organizations with foreign political connections.

Ban On Nazi Matter Asked

Buenos Aires — Argentina's leading Roman Catholic publication called on the military government Sunday to prohibit the circulation of Nazi publications that are flourishing here with attacks on both Jews and the Vatican.

Passman Loses Long-Held Seat To Dairy Farmer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rep. Otto Passman's 30-year tenure in Congress has been ended by a Ringgold dairy farmer who was 5 years old when Passman was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

With virtually all precincts reported, the 76-year-old Passman lost by 4,701 votes to 35-year-old Jerry Huckaby in Louisiana's Democratic primary on Saturday.

"My opponent had served long and well in Congress, but the voters agreed with me that it was time for a younger man," Huckaby said from his headquarters in Monroe. "The people were ready for a change and I have felt for the past four weeks that I was going to win. It is the American dream come true for me."

He said he was going home to Ringgold and planned to spend the next several days putting corn in his silo.

Passman took his telephone off the hook Saturday night and could not reached for comment Sunday. His office later issued a statement pledging support for whomever is elected to Congress from the district. It did not mention Huckaby, who will face Republican Frank Spooner of Monroe in November. Spooner was unopposed in the GOP primary.

Seven months ago, when Huckaby said he began considering waging his first political campaign, few people thought he had a chance to unseat Passman, chairman of the House foreign operations subcommittee.

Passman — who endeared himself to the rural, piney woods district with his conservative votes and an ability to get foreign dollars for American farm products — won his last primary campaign with 75 per cent of the vote and had no opposition in the general election.

In May, when Huckaby announced that he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination, Passman remarked, "That's a nice young fellow running."

But Huckaby took his campaign seriously, mortgaging his 1,000-acre farm in Ringgold, moving into an apartment in Monroe — the closest thing to an urban center in the district — and hiring an advertising agency.

And he forced Passman to do the same. or the first time in his career, Passman mounted a media campaign and raised more than $85,000 dollars in contributions, including $1,000 from Gov. Edwin Edwards.

Huckaby raised more than $80,000, including $5,000 from the Agricultural and Dairy Educational Political Trust, the political fund raising arm of Mid-America Dairymen, Inc.

Huckaby campaigned on Passman's advancing age, his vote against a prayer-in-school amendment and allegations that he padded his expense account for travel between Washington and his home district.

Although Huckaby said the allegations were not a major issue, one of his broadcast advertising spots ended: "Otto Passman took the Congress for a ride. Jerry Huckaby doesn't like paying for the gas."

The unofficial tally in Saturday's primary was 45,589 for Huckaby and 40,888 for Passman.

In other primary races, Reps. Lindy Boggs and Joe D. Waggonner easily won renomination against token opposition.

In the battle to succeed retiring Rep. F. Edward Hebert, New Orleans Councilman James Moreau led a six-man field by a wide margin but faces a runoff Oct. 2 against state Rep. Richard A. Tonry.

Turkish Ship Plans More Explorations

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — The oil survey ship Sismik-1, which provoked a verbal war between Greece and Turkey over oil rights in the Aegean Sea, dropped anchor here Sunday before enthusiastic throngs lining the waterfront. But the ship's controversial explorations are to begin again in three days.

Energy Minister Selahhatin Kilic, on hand for the ship's arrival, said the Sismik-1 would stay only long enough to take on provisions and would depart again on Aug. 18. He refused to reveal its destination.

Sheep were sacrificed and a band played martial music as the ship, which had left July 23 from Istanbul, dropped anchor here.

In New York on Saturday, U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with the Greek and Turkish foreign ministers to try to get negotiations under way between the two NATO-member countries. The major obstacle was the Greek demand that the Sismik-1 cease its explorations, it was reported.

The trip provoked Greek appeals to the United Nations Security Council and the International Court of Justice for help in solving the dispute over oil rights in the Aegean.

The Sismik-1 is rigged for oil exploration but Turkish authorities say the ship's mission was scientific. At ceremonies at the Dardanelles Strait July 28 Kilic said the ship would tow a 4,000-yard cable and undertake undersea explosions.

"Our intentions are peaceful," the energy minister said at that time, adding, "Our armed forces will retaliate against any attack." The ship was escorted by two Turkish destroyers.

Greece threatened to remove the ship by force if necessary but such an armed confontation never took place.

Greece claimed that the ship had entered the continental shelves of several Greek islands in the Aegean Sea many of which lie close to the Turkish coast.

Future Action Undecided For Man Hanged From Sign

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A man who was left hanging from a roadside sign by two hitchhikers after he refused to buy them a drink, says he is undecided if he will continue to give rides to strangers.

"I've always felt for the need for other people. It would depend on what shape they were in. It's kind of hard to say. I've been doing this ever since I was able to drive a car — since I was about 14 years old."

John Henry Young, 40, was strung up with a nylon rope with his toes touching the ground. A police chief rescued him Thursday night after he had been hanging for about 20 minutes. Motorists passed the man, but none stopped to give aid.

"Only God could have done this . . . to help me get through and keep going that long," Young said Sunday in a telephone interview from his hospital bed here.

He was being treated for neck injuries and from being roughed up by his assailants. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

An unemployed mechanic-truck driver from Tyronza, a northeast Arkansas community of 500, Young said he was about five miles from home when he picked up two hitchhikers. Young told authorities the two were smoking something that "didn't smell quite right."

"They got in the car and I just told them I was going up the road a piece," Young said. "They asked for a rope. They said could they have it to tie their bags up. I guess they were sleeping bags or what have you."

Young said the two asked him to buy them a drink. When he said he didn't have any money, "one pulled a knife and said this was it."

Young said he stopped his car and didn't put up a struggle.

"I didn't realize what they were going to do until I got out of the car and they took the rope out," he said.

Young said he stood on his tiptoes as long as he could with his arms and legs bound and the nylon rope around his neck. He said he was hung from a highway sign giving the direction to Tyronza and Lepanto.

"The officer in Tyronza said I hung there maybe 20 minutes or so. Everytime I moved the rope, it would get tighter. When I knew anything, I was here in the hospital.

Young was freed by Tyronza Police Chief Chester Ford who was called to the scene. Ford said at least 150 vehicles normally pass the spot during 20 minutes,

One motorist who drove past Young was Dan M. Shepherd, a part-time minister of the Church of Christ. He said he just got a glimpse of the hanging man and thought it was a effigy hanging from the sign placed there as a prank.

He drove back to the sign, but said it was dark and he feared for the safety of his family and did not get out of the car. Shepherd drove to a home and called police.

"I'm still going over it, again and again. I did what I thought was right. I still think it was right, weighing all the factors. But that doesn't necessarily give me peace."

Pepper Eater Downs 108 Hot Ones

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Brad Arndt gulped 108 fiery jalapeno peppers in one hour to claim the official 1976 World Jalapeno Eating Championship crown and the unofficial "heartburn king" title.

Some 250 spectators cheered 12 contestants, who were permitted to lubricate their lips but were not allowed to consume other food or beverages during the contest on Saturday.

"This is pure insanity," said one contestant who quit after munching 70 jalapenos.

School Children Chat By Radio To Cosmonauts

MOSCOW (AP) - Children from 10 countries chatted by radio with the two Soviet cosmonauts who have been orbiting earth for more than a month in their Salyut 5 space lab, the news agency Tass said Sunday.

It said the schoolchildren at the Artek Pioneer Camp in Crimea were invited Saturday to the nearby Yevpatoriya flight control center for a "press conference" with spacemen Boris Volynov and Vitaly Zholobov.

"The children received from orbit extensive replies to all their questions regarding the flight program and wished the cosmonauts successful completion of their mission as well as a safe return to earth," Tass said.

Jobs Unit Linked To Schweiker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa , was a top congressional participant in a Nixon-era program set up to help find government jobs for friends of the White House and members of Congress, government documents show

Schweiker has been named by former Gov Ronald Reagan as his vice presidential running mate should Reagan win the Republican presidential nomination at the GOP's national convention in Kansas City this week

The documents, originally made public during congressional investigations and in response to a Freedom of Information Act suit in 1973 and 1974, show that during the Richard M Nixon administration a special hiring unit was set up in the General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency

Civil Service Commission investigators found the purpose of the unit was to assure "that timely and responsive action would be taken on referrals received from members of Congress and administration officials "

Records of the special unit show that it received 134 referrals of job applicants from Schweiker, more than from any other member of Congress. Only the Nixon White House personnel office had more. It submitted more than 300 names

Making job referrals for career posts is not in itself illegal The burden of fairness and resisting political pressure is placed on the federal agencies themselves.

The person with day-to-day responsibility for the special referral unit during the Nixon era was Donald J. LeMay who, the records show, was himself referred to the General Services Administration by Schweiker

The Civil Service Commission sought to fire LeMay for making and directing others to make "exceptional efforts to aid specially referred individuals obtain employment with GSA " A later settlement resulted in LeMay accepting a 60-day suspension without pay and agreeing to assist the commission in its investigation of the political hiring practices

Most jobs in the federal bureaucracy are career appointments, and the law requires that they be filled on the basis of merit and not because of a person's political affiliation or friendship with persons in high places

Of those Schweiker referred to GSA, investigators found that at least 17 were offered positions, and some of those apparently were given some special treatment in the hiring process It is not clear from the documents whether the Pennsylvania senator was aware of the special attention his referrals received

During the Nixon years, the GSA was run by two Pennsylvanians, Robert L Kunzig, who resigned when Nixon named him a judge in the U S Court of Claims, and Arthur F Sampson, who succeeded Kunzig in 1972

President Ford replaced Sampson with Jack Eckerd, a Florida Republican

Eckerd's name showed up last week on a list Jimmy Carter's campaign aides put together to show, they said, that President Ford used presidential appointments as "a dumping ground for unsuccessful candidates "

Eckerd, who was defeated for the U S Senate in Florida, was among six presidential appointees on the Democratic presidential nominee's list of Republicans who had lost political elections but won high government posts in the Ford administration

State Delegates Extol GOP Platform

By DON WALTON

AP

Kansas City — Nebraska s two platform committee members Sunday told their delegation that the document hammered together over the past week should be acceptable to either President Ford or Ronald Reagan

Either candidate can proceed (to run on its terms) without any qualms of conscience Sen Roman Hruska told the first Nebraska caucus

It s a platform both candidates can stand on Kay Orr of Lincoln declared one which will help elect a Republican president in November

Hruska is a Ford delegate Mrs Orr supports Reagan

Both encountered questioning from Nebraska delegates some of whom appeared to be dissatisfied with portions of the platform

The document goes to the convention floor Tuesday night and could spark a long and tumultuous session

Mrs Orr was asked to explain her votes on such emotional issues as the Equal Rights Amendment abortion and the future of the Panama Canal

Hruska underwent questioning on the farm plank and was strongly disputed by Rex Haberman of Imperial when the senator said agricultural prices would have sagged anyway even if Ford had not briefly imposed a grain export embargo

You don t know that sir Haberman declared Later when Hruska repeated his assertion Haberman softly uttered a barnyard word

Mrs Orr s willingness to accept some compromise language in the platform may have triggered some of the questioning which was aimed her way

Seeking a compromise position on the Equal Rights Amendment she voted against language which either flatly favored or opposed the constitutional change preferring a minority plank favoring equality for all, she said

Some Reagan supporters want the convention to oppose the ERA

Mrs Orr supported the Panama Canal compromise language drafted by Hruska s subcommittee on foreign relations Again some of Reagan s supporters wanted a strong statement backing the Californian s opposition to negotiations altering the U S treaty with Panama

We compromised here and there Mrs Orr noted We argued an awful lot But the consensus of the platform committee was to draft a document which would help the Republican nominee win in the autumn

(Later Mrs Orr told The Star that no Nebraska Reagan delegate has directly criticized her actions)

Hruska said he believes committee members produced a well balanced document which avoided extreme positions

On the Panama Canal issue he noted A great deal of ground was given on both sides to reach an acceptable position

Hruska headed the foreign policy subcommittee Mrs Orr was a member of the subcommittee on community and national development

Delegation chairman Milan Bish of Grand Island urged delegates to stick with their commitments cooperate with one another and Leave this convention united so we can elect a Republican president

The delegation is committed under Nebraska s primary election law to cast 18 votes for Reagan and seven for Ford when presidential balloting begins on Wednesday

There may be no legal penalty for violating those commitments Bish noted, But I would be completely ashamed of Nebraska

If anyone attempts to switch sides Bish said, he would have the delegation polled on the convention floor ' so God and country would know who you are '

Bish was chairman of Reagan s successful primary campaign in Nebraska last May

After the caucus, Nebraskans attending the convention gathered for a reception a mile from their hotel on the south side of Kansas City

President Ford s youngest son Steve made the rounds at the gathering smiling shaking hands and signing autographs

Clad in boots and a corduroy suit he spoke briefly to the Reagan dominated delegation avoiding politics and sticking to a safe subject

You ve got a heck of a football team that s for sure he smiled

Schweiker Not Worried Reagan Could Dump Him

KANSAS CITY, Mo (AP) — Discounting rumors that he may be dumped as Ronald Reagan's running mate, Sen Richard S Schweiker claimed Sunday that his presence on the ticket has brought up to 70 additional delegates from the Northeast into the Reagan camp

Schweiker did not provide the names of any of these delegates but claimed a gain of 23 votes in his home state of Pennsylvania a "possible 35 to 40 in New York and 10 or so in New Jersey The Reagan-Schweiker delegates would begin declaring themselves in the next few days Schweiker added

Schweiker made the claims on ABC-TV s Issues and Answers' program in response to questions about a vice presidential preference poll showing that he is the choice of only a small percentage of delegates to the Republican national convention

Schweiker also said he feels ' totally secure" about remaining on the Reagan ticket although he added that he has not talked with the former California governor about it since the rumors began ' I didn't get any fresh assurances recently because I didn't think it was necessary," Schweiker said

Statements by top Reagan campaign aides John Sears and Sen Paul Laxalt, R-Nev , which appear to rule out the possibility that Schweiker would be dumped from the ticket if Reagan is nominated "are good enough for me," the Pennsylvania Republican said

Schweiker called the rumors a "fabrication" which ' I suspect the Ford people had something to do with "

Schweiker said a floor effort by Reagan backers to change the convention rules so that the President would be required to name his running mate ahead of time "will be one of the key tests" of strength at the convention

Schweiker also attempted to defend apparent contradictions between his previous voting record in the Senate and the Republican platform, which Reagan has said he is satisfied with

A $10,000 Pipe Dream? Pot Group Got One Free

Washington (UPI) — It was a pot smoker s pipe dream a guy walked in off the street Sunday and anonymously donated $10 000 to a group working for the repeal of laws against marijuana

Keith Stroup director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws said he was in NORML s office Sunday doing a little work when a thirtyish male casually dressed in sport shirt and slacks, rang the door bell

Stroup said the stranger asked for some information about the organization which is dedicated to the decriminalization of marijuana laws

It took Stroup several minutes, he said to go to another room and gather some literature When he returned the man was leaving but mentioned he had left a contribution and a note

By the time Stroup got around to counting the packages of money and reading the note the man was gone The note said the donation came from an association of independent marijuana dealers calling itself the confederation The money amounted to $10 000

Although he has never heard of such an organization, Stroup said he has heard rumors of looseknit associations of marijuana dealers At any rate he told UPI I am experiencing one of the world s greatest and most natural highs '

The Civil Service Commission sought to fire LeMay for making and directing others to make "exceptional efforts to aid specially referred individuals obtain employment with GSA." A later settlement resulted in LeMay accepting a 60-day suspension without pay and agreeing to assist the commission in its investigation of the political hiring practices.

Most jobs in the federal bureaucracy are career appointments, and the law requires that they be filled on the basis of merit and not because of a person's political affiliation or friendship with persons in high places.

Of those Schweiker referred to GSA, investigators found that at least 17 were offered positions, and some of those apparently were given some special treatment in the hiring process. It is not clear from the documents whether the Pennsylvania senator was aware of the special attention his referrals received.

During the Nixon years, the GSA was run by two Pennsylvanians, Robert L. Kunzig, who resigned when Nixon named him a judge in the U.S. Court of Claims, and Arthur F. Sampson, who succeeded Kunzig in 1972.

President Ford replaced Sampson with Jack Eckerd, a Florida Republican.

Eckerd's name showed up last week on a list Jimmy Carter's campaign aides put together to show, they said, that President Ford used presidential appointments as "a dumping ground for unsuccessful candidates."

Eckerd, who was defeated for the U.S. Senate in Florida, was among six presidential appointees on the Democratic presidential nominee's list of Republicans who had lost political elections but won high government posts in the Ford administration.

State Delegates Extol GOP Platform

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Kansas City — Nebraska's two platform committee members Sunday told their delegation that the document hammered together over the past week should be acceptable to either President Ford or Ronald Reagan.

"Either candidate can proceed (to run on its terms) without any qualms of conscience," Sen. Roman Hruska told the first Nebraska caucus.

"It's a platform both candidates can stand on," Kay Orr of Lincoln declared, one which will help elect a Republican president in November.

Hruska is a Ford delegate: Mrs. Orr supports Reagan.

Both encountered questioning from Nebraska delegates, some of whom appeared to be dissatisfied with portions of the platform.

The document goes to the convention floor Tuesday night, and could spark a long and tumultuous session.

Mrs. Orr was asked to explain her votes on such emotional issues as the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion and the future of the Panama Canal.

Hruska underwent questioning on the farm plank, and was strongly disputed by Rex Haberman of Imperial when the senator said agricultural prices would have sagged anyway even if Ford had not briefly imposed a grain export embargo.

"You don't know that, sir," Haberman declared. Later, when Hruska repeated his assertion, Haberman softly uttered a barnyard word.

Mrs. Orr's willingness to accept some compromise language in the platform may have triggered some of the questioning which was aimed her way.

Seeking a compromise position on the Equal Rights Amendment, she voted against language which either flatly favored or opposed the constitutional change, preferring a minority plank favoring "equality for all," she said.

Some Reagan supporters want the convention to oppose the ERA.

Mrs. Orr supported the Panama Canal compromise language drafted by Hruska's subcommittee on foreign relations. Again, some of Reagan's supporters wanted a strong statement backing the Californian's opposition to negotiations altering the U.S. treaty with Panama.

"We compromised here and there," Mrs. Orr noted. "We argued an awful lot." But the consensus of the platform committee was to draft a document which would help the Republican nominee win in the autumn.

(Later Mrs. Orr told The Star that no Nebraska Reagan delegate has directly criticized her actions.)

Hruska said he believes committee members produced "a well balanced document" which avoided extreme positions.

On the Panama Canal issue he noted, "A great deal of ground was given on both sides" to reach an acceptable position.

Hruska headed the foreign policy subcommittee, Mrs. Orr was a member of the subcommittee on community and national development.

Delegation chairman Milan Bish of Grand Island urged delegates to stick with their commitments, cooperate with one another and "Leave this convention united so we can elect a Republican president."

The delegation is committed under Nebraska's primary election law to cast 18 votes for Reagan and seven for Ford when presidential balloting begins on Wednesday.

There may be no legal penalty for violating those commitments, Bish noted, "But I would be completely ashamed of Nebraska."

If anyone attempts to switch sides, Bish said, he would have the delegation polled on the convention floor" so God and country would know who you are."

Bish was chairman of Reagan's successful primary campaign in Nebraska last May.

After the caucus, Nebraskans attending the convention gathered for a reception a mile from their hotel on the south side of Kansas City.

President Ford's youngest son, Steve, made the rounds at the gathering, smiling, shaking hands and signing autographs.

Clad in boots and a corduroy suit, he spoke briefly to the Reagan dominated delegation, avoiding politics and sticking to a safe subject.

You've got a heck of a football team, that's for sure," he smiled.

A $10,000 Pipe Dream? Pot Group Got One Free

Washington (UPI) — It was a pot smoker's pipe dream: a guy walked in off the street Sunday and anonymously donated $10,000 to a group working for the repeal of laws against marijuana.

Keith Stroup, director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, said he was in NORML's office Sunday doing a little work when a thirtyish male, casually dressed in sport shirt and slacks, rang the door bell.

Stroup said the stranger asked for some information about the organization which is dedicated to the "decriminalization" of marijuana laws.

It took Stroup several minutes, he said, to go to another room and gather some literature. When he returned, the man was leaving but mentioned he had left "a contribution" and a note.

By the time Stroup got around to counting the "packages" of money and reading the note, the man was gone. The note said the donation came from an association of independent marijuana dealers calling itself the "confederation." The money amounted to $10,000.

Although he has never heard of such an organization, Stroup said he has heard rumors of looseknit associations of marijuana dealers. At any rate, he told UPI, "I am experiencing one of the world's greatest and most natural highs."

Party Crasher Takes Radio

A man apparently crashed a party Sunday, picked up a $600 AM/FM receiver belonging to the host, and walked away with it.

The intruder had been noticed at the party, at the home of William E. Jennett, 1200 N. 63rd St., earlier in the day. He was later seen carrying the radio away.

Police are looking for a white male, about 20 years of age, described as having "a long nose." He was seen wearing blue denim pants but no shirt.

Schweiker Not Worried Reagan Could Dump Him

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Discounting rumors that he may be dumped as Ronald Reagan's running mate, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker claimed Sunday that his presence on the ticket has brought up to 70 additional delegates from the Northeast into the Reagan camp.

Schweiker did not provide the names of any of these delegates but claimed a gain of 23 votes in his home state of Pennsylvania, a "possible 35 to 40" in New York and "10 or so" in New Jersey. The Reagan-Schweiker delegates would begin declaring themselves in the next few days, Schweiker added.

Schweiker made the claims on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program in response to questions about a vice presidential preference poll showing that he is the choice of only a small percentage of delegates to the Republican national convention.

Schweiker also said he feels "totally secure" about remaining on the Reagan ticket although he added that he has not talked with the former California governor about it since the rumors began. "I didn't get any fresh assurances recently because I didn't think it was necessary," Schweiker said.

Statements by top Reagan campaign aides John Sears and Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., which appear to rule out the possibility that Schweiker would be dumped from the ticket if Reagan is nominated, "are good enough for me," the Pennsylvania Republican said.

Schweiker called the rumors a "fabrication" which "I suspect the Ford people had something to do with."

Schweiker said a floor effort by Reagan backers to change the convention rules so that the President would be required to name his running mate ahead of time "will be one of the key tests" of strength at the convention.

Schweiker also attempted to defend apparent contradictions between his previous voting record in the Senate and the Republican platform, which Reagan has said he is satisfied with.

'Best' Site May Not Be Best

A consulting engineers' report supplied the Nebraska Power Review board last week recommended that a coal-fired generating plant to be constructed by Grand Island and Hastings be located midway between the two cities at Doniphan.

Doniphan had been tabbed as the prime site for the 150-megawatt electric power plant, and the consulting firm in part explained its endorsement of the location by noting that it will "add reliability to your system because it is at a point so that your transmission lines would be as short as possible."

The trouble is, the site location is opposed not only in Doniphan, but elsewhere in the area to be served by the distribution system created through an agreement between Hastings and Grand Island.

Opposition elsewhere to the Doniphan site reflects the opposition of the Doniphan residents themselves and is also based in part on feelings that a power plant should not be built on prime farm land. Urban dwellers in the area in question seem to be sensitive to the feelings of their rural neighbors. It is also apparent that many who would benefit from the additional source of electric power oppose a generating plant fired by fossil fuel, or they feel the plant should be located on available government land, or they think the two cities should buy more power from existing agencies rather than getting into power generating in a big way.

A recent poll conducted by the Grand Island Independent showed overwhelming negative response to power plant construction. Based on responses on clip-out newspaper ballots mailed to the Independent, by a 4-1 margin those who responded opposed construction of the plant by Grand Island and Hastings. By a 7-1 margin Grand Islanders opposed the Doniphan site if the plant is to be built and by almost 8-1 respondants felt the public should vote on the issue.

If such a poll is not an exact mirror image of public sentiment, it is at least an indication that the plan is not going over in a big way — to put it mildly.

Within public opposition to such a project is a paradox: people oppose specific proposals or concepts, sites or governmental agreements, but not nearly so many would say they oppose an adequate supply of power in the future, we'll bet.

The problem facing leadership now and in the future is in giving adequate weight to the human factor when making decision regarding the provision of basic services.

The technician's answer is no longer the only answer to consider. It isn't enough to say a power plant should be built at Site X because that is the spot where transmission lines will be the shortest.

There may be perfectly good reasons having nothing to do with technical feasibility — reasons which make more sense now than they did in times past — why Site X should not be the place. Advances in this century increase the danger of our society becoming a technocracy, and that is something to be resisted.

Ford Resists Pressure

President Ford, although under increasing pressure, is keeping his vice presidential preference a secret until and if he receives the nomination at Kansas City Wednesday.

The president has asked the Republican delegates and alternates and rominent party members to supply him with lists of their choices for second place on the party ticket. He is said to have considered a wide range of candidates for the job. Because of the lateness of the hour that list must be necessity be trimmed down by this time.

But Ford, to his credit, has withstood pressure placed on him by Reagan forces to announce his preference before the balloting for the presidential nomination begins.

Reagan, having blundered with an early, wild choice, had hoped to force Ford into a similar mistake. Had Ford complied and announced his choice prior to the presidential roll call it would have set an awful precedent. If the precedent were followed, running mates would be chosen for their political effect on a convention about to pick a presidential nominee. Thoughtful judgments on a potential running mate's abilities to assume the presidency in the event of presidential disability or death would take a back seat to political expediency.

The processes by which both parties pick vice presidential nominees may need change — but the change certainly should not be to an early announcement, with little background checking, of a preferred running mate who was chosen because he might pick up a half-dozen delegates here and maybe four more there.

Ford was wise in resisting Reagan's pressure on him to act hastily.

Who Ford will choose if he wins Wednesday is of course, a matter of intense interest and speculation.

Reagan seems to be a sentimental favorite in some circles if he loses the presidential nomination, but there are doubts that he wants it and doubts, too, outside his hard core of support, whether he should have it. John Connally is a favorite, but the way we see it, Connally on the ticket would be fatal politically for Ford.

The thought that Ford needs to spring a remarkable, different, surprise candidate on the convention to excite his own party and the rest of the electorate makes some sense to us.

But Ford has probably crossed off his list the most able and experienced running mate — the current vice president, Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The "liberal" (hah!) Rockefeller was driven from government by the Reagan forces. And then Reagan went out and chose himself a real liberal to run with.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

It's showdown time in Kansas City.

Finally, this week, after all the boasting and bluffing, after all the optimistic claims and counterclaims from both sides, they've got to lay their cards on the table.

The raise has been called.

On Wednesday night, they'll count up the cards on both sides and declare a winner in what has been one of the showcase presidential nomination battles of the last several decades.

The Republicans haven't seen anything like it since 1952 when Gen. Eisenhower bumped Sen. Taft after a bitter battle.

This one hasn't been that bitter — but the outcome probably will be the same for the party's doctrinaire conservatives.

The true believers haven't won one since 1964 when, exultant and jubilant, they shouted Barry Goldwater into the history books.

Reagan was one of Goldwater's chief campaign weapons a dozen years ago. Now Goldwater is supporting Ford. That is just one of many turnabouts which have distorted this contest for power.

The biggest is the changing image of Gerald Ford.

The President is a conservative. But, somehow, he is viewed in a different frame of reference by many of the challengers from the right.

There is a difference between conservative and doctrinaire conservative.

Perhaps it's something like the Democratic dichotomy of 1972, when many McGovern supporters insisted that Hubert Humphrey was not a true liberal.

Twenty-four years ago, Nebraska Republicans were with Taft. The initial first ballot call (before switches) was 13 for Taft, four for Ike and one for Earl Warren.

Decades come and go, but Nebraska Republicans remain strongly conservative (Just ask Nobby Tiemann.)

Whereas Reagan holds the majority of Nebraska's convention votes, most of the big names in the delegation are Ford supporters. All seven hold or have held elective public office.

With affable Milan Bish of Grand Island in charge of the delegation's activities, it is likely that the Nebraskans can act in harmony this week.

Most of them are clearly willing to support either Ford or Reagan in the general election campaign if their man doesn't make it to the finals.

A Lincoln Star survey of all delegates turned up only one (Mrs. Ty Grothe of Omaha) who said she could not support the nominee if her candidate (Reagan) were not successful in Kansas City.

Some others were iffy in their response, but no one else flatly ruled out support for a nominee other than his own choice.

A survey of their vice-presidential preferences not surprisingly most often produced the name of Reagan's announced choice, Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

Others listed by Nebraska delegates were Reagan himself, Ford, John Connally and Anne Armstrong, the U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

☆ ☆ ☆

Sen. Carl Curtis and Lincoln City Councilman Max Denney, both Ford delegates, suggested either Reagan or Connally for the President's running-mate.

Reagan delegates Jack Romans and Gerald Stromer thought Ford would make a good running-mate for their man.

George Cook of Lincoln, a Reagan delegate, mentioned Mrs. Armstrong as a running-mate for either Reagan or Ford.

If Reagan is nominated, Cook's preferences would be either Ford or Mrs. Armstrong. If Ford is the nominee, he suggested either Connally or Mrs. Armstrong.

Another Connally vote came from Reagan delegate C. Leonard Peterson.

Ford delegate Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln suggested that the delegates themselves make the determination after assessing the entire field of prospects.

Republicans In Convention Look To Battle

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Editorial Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — This is the last week the Democrats can sit back and take it easy.

However much Carter's party may enjoy watching the Grand Old Party batter itself bloody in convention here, it is a brand new ball game after the Republicans choose a ticket.

What remains of the GOP will then concentrate on the Democrats and the summer free ride, which began in New York, will be over.

What will remain of the Republican Party and how effective it will be are subjects in dispute here.

It was obvious in the week before the convention that there was no mood of compromise in the air — no inclination to be brotherly. The harmony which settled in over Madison Square Garden will not be visited upon the Kemper Arena. The Republicans have shown they have not even agreed to disagree agreeably.

One Nebraska party worker who wants to cloak a doleful appraisal in anonymity foresees "a bitter convention with stiff floor fights and attempts to bend and change rules. There will not be joy and unity at the end — unless something remarkable happens."

Other observations by this Cornhusker Republican:

— "If Ford wins the nomination and goes on to lose in November, the Reagan people will just turn blue. They will be convinced their man could have won.

— "If Reagan gets the nomination, what are the Ford people going to do? They will see the race as lost. They haven't gotten over the Goldwater debacle.

— "The Reaganites in the Nebraska delegation are trying to muscle Ford people aside to get even one more Reagan vote.

— "The Ford troops (in the convention as a whole) will not be as disciplined as the Reagan people. The Reagan camp has many people in it with convention experience — they know what to do and what they can get away with.

— "There will be mud-slinging in private . . . planted stories . . . false gossip.

— "The battle lines are so firm and so old. The trenches are at least 12 years old. It will be hard to fill them in and start fresh."

But as veteran a party worker and political observer as Lincoln's E. J. Faulkner believes the GOP can put the pieces back together again.

Faulkner said in Lincoln before the convention that the most unfortunate aspect of the Ford-Reagan struggle is that "so much time, money and effort have been spent in the primary that should have been reserved for the general election." But, he said, "once the convention is over, most Republicans will come together. There will not be too many dogs-in-the-manger.

"Assuming Ford is the nominee, Reagan people have two alternatives — they can work to elect Ford or they can take a walk. They are not stupid enough to cut off their own noses to spite their faces. Their interests will be better served by the election of Ford over Carter."

The Republican Party, says Faulkner, "has a certain resiliency . . . it has always come back because eventually even the undiscerning have some of the hard facts of life brought home to them."

The extent of the damage resulting from the Ford-Reagan battle cannot be assessed as yet, of course. Surprises may be lurking behind the scenes and the business of the next four days could give birth to an outcome no one now expects.

But given the pre-convention in-fighting and some of the bold, even careless moves by both camps aimed at taking tactical and strategic advantage in the crunch this week, it is a good bet that the pessimistic overview has more acceptance here.

Convention short takes:

— Many conventioneers not absolutely hooked on intra-party bloodletting and intrigue watched the Tigers-Royals series during the preconvention weekend. An exhibition game between the Redskins and the struggling-back Chiefs is scheduled this coming Saturday at Arrowhead Stadium in this sports mecca for those who don't want to go home right away. During their stay here, those who want to take time out from the fratricidal convention sessions may indulge their appetites at some of the best eateries between the two coasts.

— Noting the delegate allotment formula which gives bonuses to states which give winning margins to the Republican candidate, the National committeewoman from Nebraska, Pat Smith, observes that "if the Republican Party doesn't win the White House this fall, it will be a very peculiar and shrunken convention in 1980."

— Talk is circulating here of head-rolling in states where Reaganites are in control. Some national committee members who support President Ford are losing their jobs.

— Omaha's Dick Herman, who managed the well-orchestrated 1972 coronation of Richard Nixon in Miami Beach, will be a floor manager for Ford. He is the Nebraskan with the widest trouble-shooting authority. Other Cornhusker operatives will be keeping tabs mainly on their own delegation.

—Expect chaos on the convention floor. The Kemper Arena seats as many as Madison Square Gardens, but is more cramped than the New York facility. The floor area looks squeezed; oblong but narrow in width, with wide aisles — but not enough of them to circulate traffic. As at any convention, the aisles will be clogged at all times and it's a good bet that delegates on the floor will feel like prisoners. Compared with other convention sites, the floor proper is awfully small.

— The Nebraska delegation is encamped at the Holiday Inn South, for that chain a small motel at 98 rooms. Nebraskans are sharing the motel with Newsweek magazine staffers. In the immediate Holiday Inn vicinity — some 20 miles from the Kemper Arena convention hall — are the Idaho, Virginia and Georgia delegations.

— Nebraska's excellent floor seating reflects this state's traditional Republicanism. The delegate seating was determined by percentage per capita money contributions to the Republican National Committee and by election results. Look at Nebraska's all-Republican congressional delegation and at recent presidential election results and ask no further questions.

"JUST WHO THE HELL ARE WE BULLISH ON ANYWAY?"

RON HENDREN

A Woman VP For Ford?

WASHINGTON — If President Ford manages to win the Republican nomination this week, there is one running-mate who could almost certainly bring Texas into his column this November, who could help with the South, who could keep Reaganites in the fold, and who could distract the media from its preoccupation with Jimmy Carter and family.

John Connally? Heaven forbid!

No. Anne Armstrong, U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

She is a Texan of no small repute. She is a tough businesswoman. She is an articulate, charming and intelligent conservative. And most of all, she is a she. A demonstrably qualified she.

☆ ☆ ☆

If Ford is to win in November, it will not be enough for him to stick to status quo, play-it-safe rules about choosing a vice-presidential nominee. In addition to heading a badly divided party, he will be facing overwhelming odds as he heads into the fall campaign. It is essential that he get off to a good start, and that means picking a running-mate who can both unite and inspire the party . . . and the media . . . and defuse the potentially explosive issue of Watergate. Which lets out John Connally, and there really isn't anybody else among the men Ford is reportedly considering who even comes close to filling the bill.

Ford needs somebody — Lord knows he's proved he can't do it himself — who can throw Carter off balance, make him lose his Southern poise, cause him to lash out unnecessarily for the jugular, draw attention to the duplicity of his promises and the shallowness of his positions, especially when talk turns to "how."

There isn't a conservative Republican male under consideration who could do that, without running the risk of being destroyed in the process. Kettles who have been up to their spouts in past mischievousness, even by association, cannot call pots black.

☆ ☆ ☆

But Anne Armstrong? Why, Jimmy Carter, southern gentleman that he is, would be at a loss trying to deal with her. He could not lash out; that would be entirely inappropriate, unseemly behavior for any southerner, much less a chivalrous Georgian. He could not pooh-pooh her; Anne Armstrong is much too sharp for that. Indeed, scratch Jimmy Carter's singular accomplishment of the last year, and Armstrong's biography makes his look like . . . well, like a moderately successful peanut farmer's.

Ford has said on more than one occasion that Ambassador Armstrong is among those he is considering for the vice-presidential nomination. He has also hinted that in picking a running-mate, he might depart from the conventional.

If he does, and if Mrs. Armstrong is the choice, Ford's stock will probably go up higher than it has been since he entered office.

Even with Betty.

Big Town

WASHINGTON — The late Oscar Hammerstein II's tongue was lodged firmly in his cheek when he wrote the lyrics to "Ev'rythin's up to Date in Kansas City," one of the best remembered songs from the 1943 musical, Oklahoma! Kansas City then had a reputation as a gangster-ridden cow town struggling to escape the corrupt embrace of the Pendergast political machine. Who in his right mind would ever want to visit the place?

Now, three decades later, it turns out that Hammerstein was prescient. Just about everything IS up to date in Kansas City, including the architecturally distinguished Kemper Arena, where the Republicans will hold their 1976 national convention. From all indications, the GOP delegates can look forward to a welcome at least as warm as that extended to the Democrats in New York.

Kansas City's urban renaissance went unremarked by the rest of the country for years, but now it is attracting a good deal of attention. Fortune, Nation's Business, and U.S. News & World Report have published articles praising the city's successful program for averting decay through imaginative planning and controlled growth. Municipal debt and property tax rates are remarkably low.

Kansas City had hoped to place the Republicans in its 25,000-seat convention center, but that facility is still under construction. Besides Kemper Arena, which seats about 17,000 persons, delegates and their families will be able to inspect some of the city's other new structures. These include the football and baseball stadiums above all, Crown Center.

Partially completed, Crown Center is an 85-acre complex of offices, shops, apartments and entertainment facilities, plus a 730-room hotel that will serve as President Ford's convention headquarters. By its scheduled completion date of 1985, Crown Center will have cost an estimated $350-million.

Kansas City seems to have a thing about crowns and other trappings of royalty. Its baseball team is called the Royals, its basketball team the Kings, and its football team the Chiefs. Its hockey team recently packed up and moved to Denver after two dismal seasons. Could the real reason for the move be that the name Scouts did not strike the properly regal note?

Perhaps Kansas City's most ardent booster is its native son Calvin Trillin, a roving correspondent for The New Yorker. Trillin, who makes a point of sampling the local cuisine wherever he travels, bluntly asserts: "The best restaurants in the world are, of course, in Kansas City."

Nothing fancy, mind you. Trillin's rapture is reserved for the perfect hamburger, the ideal doughnut, the nonpareil barbecue sandwich, and the matchless chocolate malt. All, he assures us, may be found in his home town.

Other things may surprise first-time visitors to Kansas City. It boast of more public fountains than any other city except Rome. Its art museum contains the finest collection of Chinese art objects outside of China itself. And the city's terrain is hilly, flouting the widespread notion that everything between the Appalachians and the Rockies is as flat as a putting green.

All this and more awaits the Republicans, and Kansas Citians hope they will like what they see well enough to plan a return visit.

The technician's answer is no longer the only answer to consider. It isn't enough to say a power plant should be built at Site X because that is the spot where transmission lines will be the shortest.

There may be perfectly good reasons having nothing to do with technical feasibility — reasons which make more sense now than they did in times past — why Site X should not be the place. Advances in this century increase the danger of our society becoming a technocracy, and that is something to be resisted.

Ford Resists Pressure

President Ford, although under increasing pressure, is keeping his vice presidential preference a secret until and if he receives the nomination at Kansas City Wednesday.

The president has asked the Republican delegates and alternates and rominent party members to supply him with lists of their choices for second place on the party ticket. He is said to have considered a wide range of candidates for the job. Because of the lateness of the hour that list must be necessity be trimmed down by this time.

But Ford, to his credit, has withstood pressure placed on him by Reagan forces to announce his preference before the balloting for the presidential nomination begins.

Reagan, having blundered with an early, wild choice, had hoped to force Ford into a similar mistake. Had Ford complied and announced his choice prior to the presidential roll call it would have set an awful precedent. If the precedent were followed, running mates would be chosen for their political effect on a convention about to pick a presidential nominee. Thoughtful judgments on a potential running mate's abilities to assume the presidency in the event of presidential disability or death would take a back seat to political expediency.

The processes by which both parties pick vice presidential nominees may need change — but the change certainly should not be to an early announcement, with little background checking, of a preferred running mate who was chosen because he might pick up a half-dozen delegates here and maybe four more there.

Ford was wise in resisting Reagan's pressure on him to act hastily.

Who Ford will choose if he wins Wednesday is of course, a matter of intense interest and speculation.

Reagan seems to be a sentimental favorite in some circles if he loses the presidential nomination, but there are doubts that he wants it and doubts, too, outside his hard core of support, whether he should have it. John Connally is a favorite, but the way we see it, Connally on the ticket would be fatal politically for Ford.

The thought that Ford needs to spring a remarkable, different, surprise candidate on the convention to excite his own party and the rest of the electorate makes some sense to us.

But Ford has probably crossed off his list the most able and experienced running mate — the current vice president, Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The "liberal" (hah!) Rockefeller was driven from government by the Reagan forces. And then Reagan went out and chose himself a real liberal to run with.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

It's showdown time in Kansas City.

Finally, this week, after all the boasting and bluffing, after all the optimistic claims and counterclaims from both sides, they've got to lay their cards on the table.

The raise has been called.

On Wednesday night, they'll count up the cards on both sides and declare a winner in what has been one of the showcase presidential nomination battles of the last several decades.

The Republicans haven't seen anything like it since 1952 when Gen. Eisenhower bumped Sen. Taft after a bitter battle.

This one hasn't been that bitter — but the outcome probably will be the same for the party's doctrinaire conservatives.

The true believers haven't won one since 1964 when, exultant and jubilant, they shouted Barry Goldwater into the history books.

Reagan was one of Goldwater's chief campaign weapons a dozen years ago. Now Goldwater is supporting Ford. That is just one of many turnabouts which have distorted this contest for power.

The biggest is the changing image of Gerald Ford.

The President is a conservative. But, somehow, he is viewed in a different frame of reference by many of the challengers from the right.

There is a difference between conservative and doctrinaire conservative.

Perhaps it's something like the Democratic dichotomy of 1972, when many McGovern supporters insisted that Hubert Humphrey was not a true liberal.

Twenty-four years ago, Nebraska Republicans were with Taft. The initial first ballot call (before switches) was 13 for Taft, four for Ike and one for Earl Warren.

☆ ☆ ☆

Decades come and go, but Nebraska Republicans remain strongly conservative. (Just ask Nobby Tiemann.)

Whereas Reagan holds the majority of Nebraska's convention votes, most of the big names in the delegation are Ford supporters. All seven hold or have held elective public office.

With affable Milan Bish of Grand Island in charge of the delegation's activities, it is likely that the Nebraskans can act in harmony this week.

Most of them are clearly willing to support either Ford or Reagan in the general election campaign if their man doesn't make it to the finals.

A Lincoln Star survey of all delegates turned up only one (Mrs. Ty Grothe of Omaha) who said she could not support the nominee if her candidate (Reagan) were not successful in Kansas City.

Some others were iffy in their response, but no one else flatly ruled out support for a nominee other than his own choice.

A survey of their vice-presidential preferences not surprisingly most often produced the name of Reagan's announced choice, Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

Others listed by Nebraska delegates were Reagan himself, Ford, John Connally and Anne Armstrong, the U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

☆ ☆ ☆

Sen. Carl Curtis and Lincoln City Councilman Max Denney, both Ford delegates, suggested either Reagan or Connally for the President's running-mate.

Reagan delegates Jack Romans and Gerald Stromer thought Ford would make a good running-mate for their man.

George Cook of Lincoln, a Reagan delegate, mentioned Mrs. Armstrong as a running-mate for either Reagan or Ford.

If Reagan is nominated, Cook's preferences would be either Ford or Mrs. Armstrong. If Ford is the nominee, he suggested either Connally or Mrs. Armstrong.

Another Connally vote came from Reagan delegate C. Leonard Peterson.

Ford delegate Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln suggested that the delegates themselves make the determination after assessing the entire field of prospects.

Republicans In Convention Look To Battle

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Editorial Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — This is the last week the Democrats can sit back and take it easy.

However much Carter's party may enjoy watching the Grand Old Party batter itself bloody in convention here, it is a brand new ball game after the Republicans choose a ticket.

What remains of the GOP will then concentrate on the Democrats and the summer free ride, which began in New York, will be over.

What will remain of the Republican Party and how effective it will be are subjects in dispute here.

It was obvious in the week before the convention that there was no mood of compromise in the air — no inclination to be brotherly. The harmony which settled in over Madison Square Garden will not be visited upon the Kemper Arena. The Republicans have shown they have not even agreed to disagree agreeably.

One Nebraska party worker who wants to cloak a doleful appraisal in anonymity foresees "a bitter convention with stiff floor fights and attempts to bend and change rules. There will not be joy and unity at the end — unless something remarkable happens."

Other observations by this Cornhusker Republican:

— "If Ford wins the nomination and goes on to lose in November, the Reagan people will just turn blue. They will be convinced their man could have won.

— "If Reagan gets the nomination, what are the Ford people going to do? They will see the race as lost. They haven't gotten over the Goldwater debacle.

— "The Reaganites in the Nebraska delegation are trying to muscle Ford people aside to get even one more Reagan vote.

— "The Ford troops (in the convention as a whole) will not be as disciplined as the Reagan people. The Reagan camp has many people in it with convention experience — they know what to do and what they can get away with.

— "There will be mud-slinging in private . . . planted stories . . . false gossip.

— "The battle lines are so firm and so old. The trenches are at least 12 years old. It will be hard to fill them in and start fresh."

But as veteran a party worker and political observer as Lincoln's E. J. Faulkner believes the GOP can put the pieces back together again.

Faulkner said in Lincoln before the convention that the most unfortunate aspect of the Ford-Reagan struggle is that "so much time, money and effort have been spent in the primary that should have been reserved for the general election." But, he said, "once the convention is over, most Republicans will come together. There will not be too many dogs-in-the-manger.

"Assuming Ford is the nominee, Reagan people have two alternatives — they can work to elect Ford or they can take a walk. They are not stupid enough to cut off their own noses to spite their faces. Their interests will be better served by the election of Ford over Carter."

The Republican Party, says Faulkner, "has a certain resiliency . . . it has always come back because eventually even the undiscerning have some of the hard facts of life brought home to them."

The extent of the damage resulting from the Ford-Reagan battle cannot be assessed as yet, of course. Surprises may be lurking behind the scenes and the business of the next four days could give birth to an outcome no one now expects.

But given the pre-convention in-fighting and some of the bold, even careless moves by both camps aimed at taking tactical and strategic advantage in the crunch this week, it is a good bet that the pessimistic overview has more acceptance here.

Convention short takes:

— Many conventioneers not absolutely hooked on intra-party bloodletting and intrigue watched the Tigers-Royals series during the preconvention weekend. An exhibition game between the Redskins and the struggling-back Chiefs is scheduled this coming Saturday at Arrowhead Stadium in this sports mecca for those who don't want to go home right away. During their stay here, those who want to take time out from the fratricidal convention sessions may indulge their appetites at some of the best eateries between the two coasts.

— Noting the delegate allotment formula which gives bonuses to states which give winning margins to the Republican candidate, the National committeewoman from Nebraska, Pat Smith, observes that "if the Republican Party doesn't win the White House this fall, it will be a very peculiar and shrunken convention in 1980."

— Talk is circulating here of head-rolling in states where Reaganites are in control. Some national committee members who support President Ford are losing their jobs.

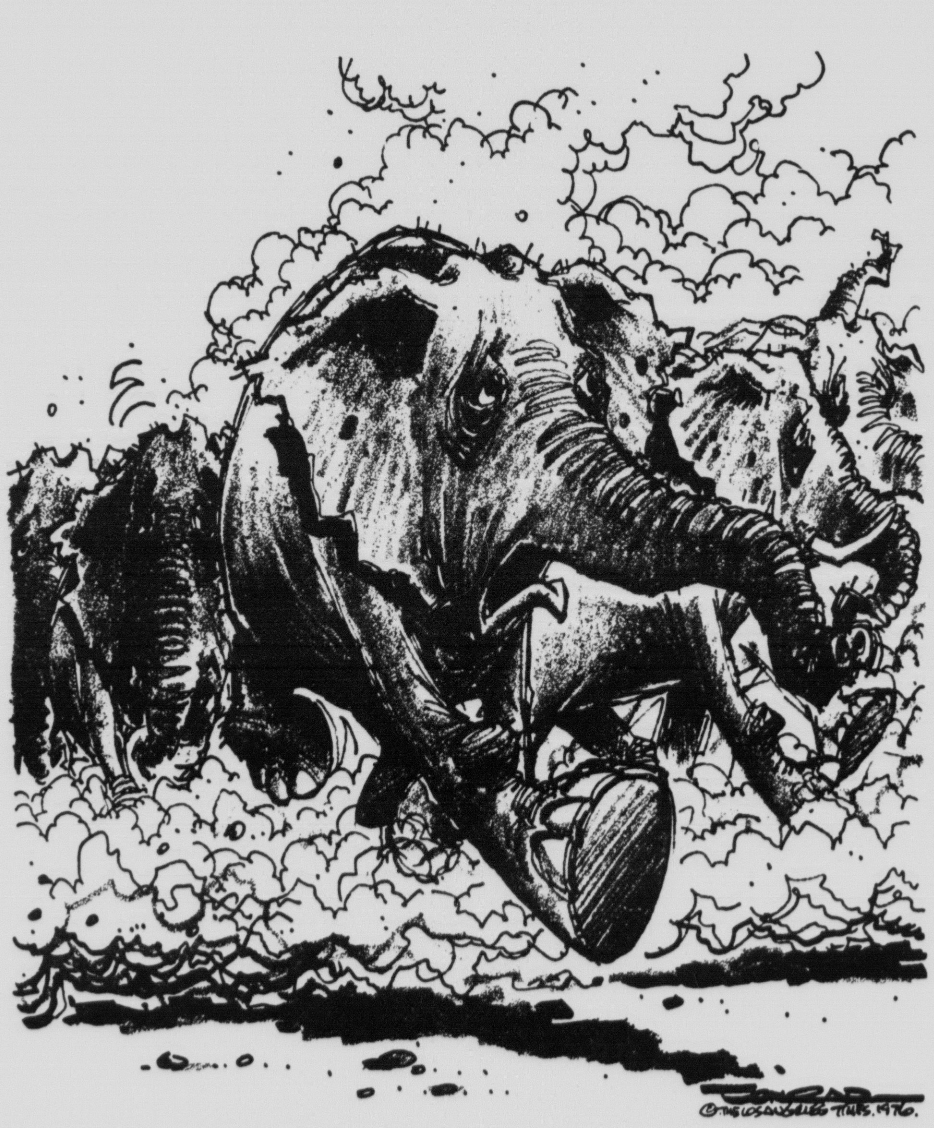
— Omaha's Dick Herman, who managed the well-orchestrated 1972 coronation of Richard Nixon in Miami Beach, will be a floor manager for Ford. He is the Nebraskan with the widest trouble-shooting authority. Other Cornhusker operatives will be keeping tabs mainly on their own delegation.

—Expect chaos on the convention floor. The Kemper Arena seats as many as Madison Square Gardens, but is more cramped than the New York facility. The floor area looks squeezed; oblong but narrow in width, with wide aisles — but not enough of them to circulate traffic. As at any convention, the aisles will be clogged at all times and it's a good bet that delegates on the floor will feel like prisoners. Compared with other convention sites, the floor proper is awfully small.

— The Nebraska delegation is encamped at the Holiday Inn South, for that chain a small motel at 98 rooms. Nebraskans are sharing the motel with Newsweek magazine staffers. In the immediate Holiday Inn vicinity — some 20 miles from the Kemper Arena convention hall — are the Idaho, Virginia and Georgia delegations.

— Nebraska's excellent floor seating reflects this state's traditional Republicanism. The delegate seating was determined by percentage per capita money contributions to the Republican National Committee and by election results. Look at Nebraska's all-Republican congressional delegation and at recent presidential election results and ask no further questions.

"JUST WHO THE HELL ARE WE BULLISH ON ANYWAY?"



RON HENDREN

A Woman VP For Ford?

WASHINGTON — If President Ford manages to win the Republican nomination this week, there is one running-mate who could almost certainly bring Texas into his column this November, who could help with the South, who could keep Reaganites in the fold, and who could distract the media from its preoccupation with Jimmy Carter and family.

John Connally? Heaven forbid!

No. Anne Armstrong, U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

She is a Texan of no small repute. She is a tough businesswoman. She is an articulate, charming and intelligent conservative. And most of all, she is a she. A demonstrably qualified she.

☆ ☆ ☆

If Ford is to win in November, it will not be enough for him to stick to status quo, play-it-safe rules about choosing a vice-presidential nominee. In addition to heading a badly divided party, he will be facing overwhelming odds as he heads into the fall campaign. It is essential that he get off to a good start, and that means picking a running-mate who can both unite and inspire the party . . . and the media . . . and defuse the potentially explosive issue of Watergate. Which lets out John Connally, and there really isn't anybody else among the men Ford is reportedly considering who even comes close to filling the bill.

Ford needs somebody — Lord knows he's proved he can't do it himself — who can throw Carter off balance, make him lose his Southern poise, cause him to lash out unnecessarily for the jugular, draw attention to the duplicity of his promises and the shallowness of his positions, especially when talk turns to "how."

There isn't a conservative Republican male under consideration who could do that, without running the risk of being destroyed in the process. Kettles who have been up to their spouts in past mischievousness, even by association, cannot call pots black.

☆ ☆ ☆

But Anne Armstrong? Why, Jimmy Carter, southern gentleman that he is, would be at a loss trying to deal with her. He could not lash out; that would be entirely inappropriate, unseemly behavior for any southerner, much less a chivalrous Georgian. He could not pooh-pooh her; Anne Armstrong is much too sharp for that. Indeed, scratch Jimmy Carter's singular accomplishment of the last year, and Armstrong's biography makes his look like . . . well, like a moderately successful peanut farmer's.

Ford has said on more than one occasion that Ambassador Armstrong is among those he is considering for the vice-presidential nomination. He has also hinted that in picking a running-mate, he might depart from the conventional.

If he does, and if Mrs. Armstrong is the choice, Ford's stock will probably go up higher than it has been since he entered office.

Even with Betty.

Big Town

WASHINGTON — The late Oscar Hammerstein II's tongue was lodged firmly in his cheek when he wrote the lyrics to "Ev'rythin's up to Date in Kansas City," one of the best remembered songs from the 1943 musical, Oklahoma! Kansas City then had a reputation as a gangster-ridden cow town struggling to escape the corrupt embrace of the Pendergast political machine. Who in his right mind would ever want to visit the place?

Now, three decades later, it turns out that Hammerstein was prescient. Just about everything IS up to date in Kansas City, including the architecturally distinguished Kemper Arena, where the Republicans will hold their 1976 national convention. From all indications, the GOP delegates can look forward to a welcome at least as warm as that extended to the Democrats in New York.

Kansas City's urban renaissance went unremarked by the rest of the country for years, but now it is attracting a good deal of attention. Fortune, Nation's Business, and U.S. News & World Report have published articles praising the city's successful program for averting decay through imaginative planning and controlled growth. Municipal debt and property tax rates are remarkably low.

Kansas City had hoped to place the Republicans in its 25,000-seat convention center, but that facility is still under construction. Besides Kemper Arena, which seats about 17,000 persons, delegates and their families will be able to inspect some of the city's other new structures. These include the football and baseball stadiums above all, Crown Center.

Partially completed, Crown Center is an 85-acre complex of offices, shops, apartments and entertainment facilities, plus a 730-room hotel that will serve as President Ford's convention headquarters. By its scheduled completion date of 1985, Crown Center will have cost an estimated $350-million.

Kansas City seems to have a thing about crowns and other trappings of royalty. Its baseball team is called the Royals, its basketball team the Kings, and its football team the Chiefs. Its hockey team recently packed up and moved to Denver after two dismal seasons. Could the real reason for the move be that the name Scouts did not strike the properly regal note?

Perhaps Kansas City's most ardent booster is its native son Calvin Trillin, a roving correspondent for The New Yorker. Trillin, who makes a point of sampling the local cuisine wherever he travels, bluntly asserts: "The best restaurants in the world are, of course, in Kansas City."

Nothing fancy, mind you. Trillin's rapture is reserved for the perfect hamburger, the ideal doughnut, the nonpareil barbecue sandwich, and the matchless chocolate malt. All, he assures us, may be found in his home town.

Other things may surprise first-time visitors to Kansas City. It boast of more public fountains than any other city except Rome. Its art museum contains the finest collection of Chinese art objects outside of China itself. And the city's terrain is hilly, flouting the widespread notion that everything between the Appalachians and the Rockies is as flat as a putting green.

All this and more awaits the Republicans, and Kansas Citians hope they will like what they see well enough to plan a return visit.

Lincoln, Columbus Men Die In Crash

Columbus (UPI) — A four-passenger airplane crashed in a farm field and "practically disintegrated" about 10 minutes after taking off from the Columbus airport Saturday night, killing two Columbus men and a Lincoln man, authorities said Sunday.

Killed were Thomas Monasmith, 27, Columbus, believed to have been the pilot; David Sukup, 26, Columbus; and Richard Wall, 23, Lincoln.

Authorities said the Beecraft Model 35 slammed into a pasture, making a crater in the ground about 15 feet wide and four feet deep and scattering wreckage over several acres. The plane did not burn, authorities said.

The plane "practically disintegrated when it hit the ground," said State Patrol Sgt. Gerald Lynch, Grand Island, who helped coordinate the initial investigation.

The bodies were badly dismembered and identification was made through papers found at the scene, belonging to Monasmith and Sukup. Wall, an employe at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln, was apparently staying with one of the Columbus men.

Two Die In Plane Crash

Two persons were known dead in the crash of a small private plane three miles north of Overton Sunday night, according to the State Patrol.

Most of the wreckage burned. The cause of the crash was still undetermined.

Three Persons Die On State's Highways

Hershey (AP) — The State Patrol said Patrick D. Boyle, 24, of Sutherland died in a North Platte hospital Sunday of injuries suffered in a traffic accident early Saturday.

Troopers said Boyle's car apparently went out of control on Interstate 80 about six-and-one-half miles east of Hershey.

Boyle was alone in the car, which rolled into a ditch.

The State Patrol also has identified two persons who were killed Friday in a three-vehicle crash just southeast of Dix in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80.

They are identified by the patrol as Kenneth D. Walton, 21, of Denver, and Beryl A. Walton, 45, of Aurora, Colo.

Officers said the eastbound motorcycle on which the victims were riding struck a car parked on the shoulder of the highway, knocking it into the path of an eastbound truck driven by Raymond Wittock, 49, of Waverly.

The deaths raised Nebraska's 1976 traffic fatality toll to 236, compared with 210 by this date a year ago.

Boy Accidentally Hangs

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police said a 12-year-old boy was accidentally hanged in the garage of his home Saturday night.

The boy was identified as Tom Bane, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bane.

Officers said the boy was found by his brother Gregory. They said a piece of rope the boy had been playing with was around his neck, with the other end hooked on top of the garage door.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Air National Guard Will Request Increased Budget For Next Year

Although most of its employes work only about two days a month, there's an employer at Lincoln with an annual payroll approaching six million dollars, a yearly operational budget which feeds about a half million dollars into utilities and businesses, and has property valued at over $60 million.

This information is included in the annual budget of the Nebraska Air National Guard, located at Lincoln's municipal airport.

During the fiscal year which ended June 30, the 224 full-time technicians and the 479 weekenders of the 155th Tactical Reconnaissance Group were paid $5,786,211, according to Lt. Col. Bertrand, base commander.

About 90 per cent of the unit's members live within 65 miles of Lincoln, so the Air Guard's effect on the region's economy is considerable.

Overall spending by the unit in the past fiscal year was $7,138,758, he reported. Besides military pay, other expenditures included $75,187 for costs of travel and expenses, $183,595 for construction and major repairs, and 427,382 for operational support, such as telephones and utilities, contract housing for weekend members living outside the commuting area and office equipment servicing.

Other funds go to purchase aircraft fuel and parts from the Air Force, Bertrand said.

The budget request for the coming fiscal year is about $7.8 million dollars, he said. The higher budget request reflects plans for more flying hours, dining hall improvements and equipment, expanded recruiting staff and the effects of inflation.

Bertrand said that the budget has grown from a 1956 level of less than one million dollars.

Equipment and property at the base is valued at $60,316,496, which includes 18 RF4C Phantom Reconnaissance jet planes valued at $2.3 million each, and other equipment ranging from adding machines to fire trucks with a total value of $11.56 million.

Real estate and buildings are currently valued at $5.98 million, but Bertrand placed their replacement value at closer to $20 million dollars.

State Guard To Attend Practice

About 160 Nebraska Air National Guard members will fly to Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., on Wednesday to take part in Exercise Brave Shield XIV, a Joint Chiefs of Staff military exercise employing units of the Air Force, Army, and Navy.

The Nebraskans, members of the 155th Tactical Reconnaissance Group, will take with them six RF4C Phantom photo reconnaissance jets and a half dozen photo processing vans in which they will process and evaluate film taken with the Phantoms' cameras.

Four C141 Starlifter jet transports of the Military Airlift Command will fly the men and their lab vans to the Washington base in about three hours. The base is located near Spokane; although the main ground action will be taking place at the Yakima Firing Center, about 125 miles distant.

The Nebraska unit will be the only reconnaissance group involved in the exercise.

The readiness exercise will involve approximately 19,000 soldiers and airmen. Exercise director is Lt. Gen. W. W. Marshall, deputy commander in chief of the U.S. Readiness Command.

The Nebraskans will return to Lincoln on Aug. 28.

The unit, assigned to the Tactical Air Command, is commanded by Lt. Col. Richard E. Bertrand.

Curtis, Hruska Rated Zero

Omaha (AP) — Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, R-Neb., have received zero ratings from the National Organization for Women, based on their voting records on legislation supported by the organization.

Republicans Curtis and Hruska opposed NOW's position on such issues as day care, abortion, funding of the International Women's Year Commission and food stamps.

In the House, Nebraska Reps. Charles Thone and Virginia Smith had 67 per cent support records and Rep. John Y McCollister 50 per cent in votes on civil rights, birth control, day care, education matters and abortion. All three are Republicans.

Antique Car Owners Reminded Vehicles Need The Right Plates

Nebraska Motor Vehicles Director Jim Pearson reminds antique car owners they have an Aug. 24 deadline to register their autos properly.

A 1975 legal change may require some collectors to relicense their vehicles or file an affidavit before that deadline, Pearson said. The antique licensing laws have been changed several times in the past few years, "and some people may undoubtedly still be confused."

The changes require that:

—A vehicle that hasn't previously been registered as an antique must be at least 30 years old.

—Vehicles displaying black-and-white historical plates aren't legally registered.

—Vehicles now displaying red-and-white antique license plates must have an affidavit on file with Pearson's department stating that they are being collected, preserved, restored and maintained as a hobby, not for general use.

Pearson said if an affidavit hasn't been filed by the deadline, the owner must register the machine as a regular passenger vehicle.

Lincoln, Columbus Men Die In Crash

Columbus (UPI) — A four-passenger airplane crashed in a farm field and "practically disintegrated" about 10 minutes after taking off from the Columbus airport Saturday night, killing two Columbus men and a Lincoln man, authorities said Sunday.

Killed were Thomas Monasmith, 27, Columbus, believed to have been the pilot; David Sukup, 26, Columbus; and Richard Wall, 23, Lincoln.

Authorities said the Beecraft Model 35 slammed into a pasture, making a crater in the ground about 15 feet wide and four feet deep and scattering wreckage over several acres. The plane did not burn, authorities said.

The plane "practically disintegrated when it hit the ground," said State Patrol Sgt. Gerald Lynch, Grand Island, who helped coordinate the initial investigation.

The bodies were badly dismembered and identification was made through papers found at the scene, belonging to Monasmith and Sukup. Wall, an employe at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln, was apparently staying with one of the Columbus men.

Two Die In Plane Crash

Two persons were known dead in the crash of a small private plane three miles north of Overton Sunday night, according to the State Patrol.

Most of the wreckage burned. The cause of the crash was still undetermined.

Three Persons Die On State's Highways

Hershey (AP) — The State Patrol said Patrick D. Boyle, 24, of Sutherland died in a North Platte hospital Sunday of injuries suffered in a traffic accident early Saturday.

Troopers said Boyle's car apparently went out of control on Interstate 80 about six-and-one-half miles east of Hershey.

Boyle was alone in the car, which rolled into a ditch.

The State Patrol also has identified two persons who were killed Friday in a three-vehicle crash just southeast of Dix in the eastbound lane of Interstate 80.

They are identified by the patrol as Kenneth D. Walton, 21, of Denver, and Beryl A. Walton, 45, of Aurora, Colo.

Officers said the eastbound motorcycle on which the victims were riding struck a car parked on the shoulder of the highway, knocking it into the path of an eastbound truck driven by Raymond Wittock, 49, of Waverly.

The deaths raised Nebraska's 1976 traffic fatality toll to 236, compared with 210 by this date a year ago.

Boy Accidentally Hangs

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police said a 12-year-old boy was accidentally hanged in the garage of his home Saturday night.

The boy was identified as Tom Bane, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bane.

Officers said the boy was found by his brother Gregory. They said a piece of rope the boy had been playing with was around his neck, with the other end hooked on top of the garage door.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Air National Guard Will Request Increased Budget For Next Year

Although most of its employes work only about two days a month, there's an employer at Lincoln with an annual payroll approaching six million dollars, a yearly operational budget which feeds about a half million dollars into utilities and businesses, and has property valued at over $60 million.

This information is included in the annual budget of the Nebraska Air National Guard, located at Lincoln's municipal airport.

During the fiscal year which ended June 30, the 224 full-time technicians and the 479 weekenders of the 155th Tactical Reconnaissance Group were paid $5,786,211, according to Lt. Col. Bertrand, base commander.

About 90 per cent of the unit's members live within 65 miles of Lincoln, so the Air Guard's effect on the region's economy is considerable.

Overall spending by the unit in the past fiscal year was $7,138,758, he reported. Besides military pay, other expenditures included $75,187 for costs of travel and expenses, $183,595 for construction and major repairs, and 427,382 for operational support, such as telephones and utilities, contract housing for weekend members living outside the commuting area and office equipment servicing.

Other funds go to purchase aircraft fuel and parts from the Air Force, Bertrand said.

The budget request for the coming fiscal year is about $7.8 million dollars, he said. The higher budget request reflects plans for more flying hours, dining hall improvements and equipment, expanded recruiting staff and the effects of inflation.

Bertrand said that the budget has grown from a 1956 level of less than one million dollars.

Equipment and property at the base is valued at $60,316,496, which includes 18 RF4C Phantom Reconnaissance jet planes valued at $2.3 million each, and other equipment ranging from adding machines to fire trucks with a total value of $11.56 million.

Real estate and buildings are currently valued at $5.98 million, but Bertrand placed their replacement value at closer to $20 million dollars.

About 160 Nebraska Air National Guard members will fly to Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., on Wednesday to take part in Exercise Brave Shield XIV, a Joint Chiefs of Staff military exercise employing units of the Air Force, Army, and Navy.

The Nebraskans, members of the 155th Tactical Reconnaissance Group, will take with them six RF4C Phantom photo reconnaissance jets and a half dozen photo processing vans in which they will process and evaluate film taken with the Phantoms' cameras.

Four C141 Starlifter jet transports of the Military Airlift Command will fly the men and their lab vans to the Washington base in about three hours. The base is located near Spokane; although the main ground action will be taking place at the Yakima Firing Center, about 125 miles distant.

The readiness exercise will involve approximately 19,000 soldiers and airmen. Exercise director is Lt. Gen. W. W. Marshall, deputy commander in chief of the U.S. Readiness Command.

The Nebraskans will return to Lincoln on Aug. 28.

The unit, assigned to the Tactical Air Command, is commanded by Lt. Col. Richard E. Bertrand.

Summer Is Grant Harvest Time

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Summer is the best time to harvest dollars for research projects according to Dr. Robert Kleis, associate director of the University of Nebraska experiment stations.

In fiscal year 1976, the university has received a total of $2,225,500 in grants from all sources but many of these grants are actually tax dollars from state and federal agencies.

Grants that came directly from industry to the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources in 1975 totaled $335,959. Trade associations such as seed dealer groups, irrigation organizations and chemical associations produced an additional $101,981 for various projects. Foundations supplied $47,986 for other projects.

The money doesn't always go for research. The pot of $1,748,647 in grant funds in 1975 had $85,815 for teaching, $678,345 for research, $468,126 for extension programs, $125,708 for the conservation and survey division and $390,653 for water resources research.

No Strings Very Often

"We don't accept money with strings on it very often. We always insist on the right to publish the research even when the result is unfavorable to the donor of the funds for the research. Patent rights on anything that develops go to the regents, not to the donor," Kleis said.

"Once in a while we get a really big grant but the vast majority are quite small, often below $500. They come from a company by the way of a local representative who is interested in some local problem," said Dr. Howard Ottoson, director of experiment stations.

"When we receive less than $500, we usually lump the grants together into a miscellaneous account to hold down the cost of paperwork. Over $500 we usually establish an account so we can tell the donor how we spent the money," Kleis said

Donors usually receive data on the research project in the mail just as any other citizen will. They often visit the farms to look at their product in the experiment and sometimes bring along some farmers to see their product compared to a competing product.

"We also sometimes get a piece of machinery, or some kind of chemical at a reduced price and occasionally as a gift. These things help keep research programs going. It seems to stimulated interest by individual scientists as well," Kleis noted.

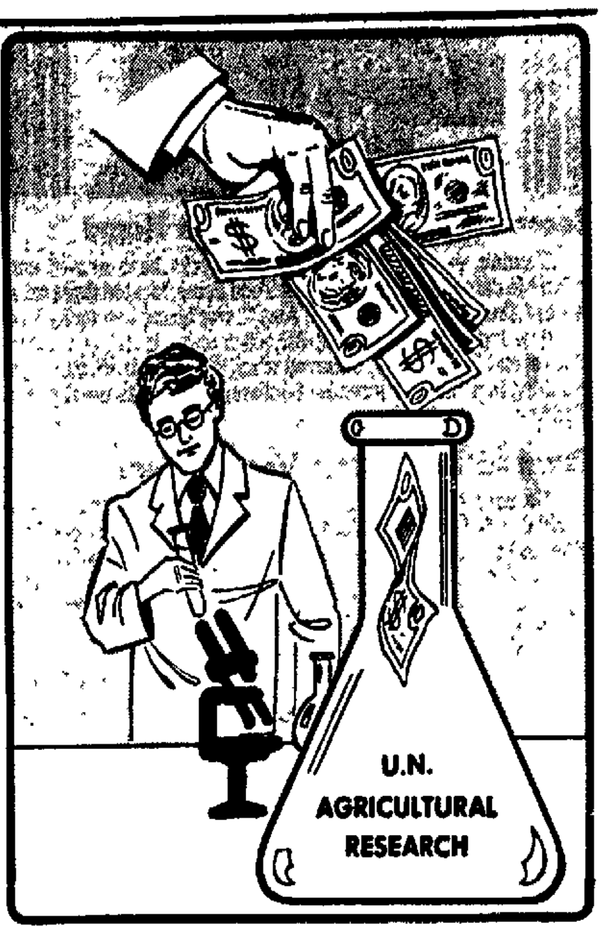
Some farmers offer land for use in experiments and supply equipment for the scientist's testing. This is most often in demonstration projects but it also happens in pure research projects.

"We don't just do research for companies. It has to fit into an existing program or we don't accept money for the project. We are not a public agency that does research for private companies, our research is aimed at solving problems for Nebraska's farmers," said Dr. Martin Massengale, NU vice chancellor.

"I doubt that grant money changes a scientist's attitude toward the project. We don't sell our soul or bend our results at any time because someone gives us some money but we do very much appreciate the assistance in meeting the cost of research. There are areas where just a little more funds or a piece of equipment can make a tremendous difference in getting the work done," he said.

Income from grants is seasonal, with most coming in during the spring and summer months when farmers and others become more aware of problems. There are grants of funds in every month of the year.

All grants must be approved by the State Department of Administrative Services but this action is fairly routine. "If we were going to use state funds to build something or hire someone to work on the project they might get excited but normally approval is routine," said Ottonson.



Storage Problems Possible In State

By The Associated Press

Storage problems could result in southeastern Nebraska grain elevators if the price of wheat does not increase.

Many farmers in the area apparently are not selling their wheat due to the low market value and are letting the grain remain in local elevators.

If it is not sold, the wheat cannot be shipped, and elevator operators said that could mean no room for storage in the fall when the large milo harvest starts.

Elevator men said the demand for international exports is lower than expected, and the problem is compounded by this year's large wheat harvest and the carryover from last year.

They added that terminals in larger cities also are full or filling rapidly.

If the grain does not move, spokesmen said, the only alternative will be to pile milo on the ground. They said milo then sours and is worth less.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Environmental Protection Agency has instituted a procedure to give pesticide producers a chance to rebut charges that their product is dangerous. There is also a procedure to allow the U.S Department of Agriculture to review the data on a pesticide pointing out the benefits of it.

They are calling it Rebuttable Presumption Against Registration or RPAR or sometimes just rebuttable presumption.

It seems that Washington papershufflers must think up names for every procedure they think up.

The procedures give the companies a chance to fight back and still sell their product. It also gives the U.S. Department of Agriculture a chance to explain that the chemical is sufficiently useful and that it cannot be replaced with a fly swatter.

If EPA decides the chemical has to go, the sale of it will be halted. This at least gives companies a slight delay in destroying a profitable product.

If you have a fence row you want to keep clear of plants but you don't want to use sprays or chemicals, you might try using walnut hulls and walnut sawdust.

It seems the trees produce a toxic substance that will kill a number of plants. It is Mother Nature's way of giving a walnut tree a bit of an edge in the battle of life.

It also explains why the mulch you made of last year's walnut hulls killed off those ornamental plants you were trying to protect.

Take one skilled farmer, a very large granary, one large tractor, four farm boys and you can put on a show a lot of city folks will stay all afternoon for.

My weekend farming experiences recently included the transportation of a grain storage building. The event attracted a lot of spectators who were amazed at the skill of farmer Bert Juilfs, who managed somehow to get the bin from one farm to another without wrecking bridges or gates.

When the move was finished the ladies who watched gave Bert a standing ovation.

Farmers like Bert Juilfs are experts at hundreds of different tasks from healing sick animals to repairing damaged machines. They deserve more credit and more money than they obtain for their services to the rest of us.

Spain has become an important poultry producer, now ranking fourth in Europe. These are eating chickens we are talking about, not the fighting kind.

This makes the land of bull fights, King Juan Carlos and olives a cracking good market for the grain that U.S. farmers grow.

Meanwhile back at the ranch, the cattlemen are raising funds to increase beef advertising, using a 630 radio station network, 17 major newspapers, many magazines, direct ads in stores, contacts with 430 newspaper food editors and assorted other ways.

Beef producers are in big trouble at the feedlot and at the ranch because of an increase of more than 10% in beef production.

Prices are so bad that farmers are losing a discouraging $100 a head. If it doesn't turn around soon the ranches and feedlots will be owned by someone else.

Wheat prices are also so low that discouraged farmers may cut back on production all around the world this fall.

At $6 a bushel, wheat is just 10 cents a pound. This is double the current price paid at the farm. If you paid 10 cents a pound and ate wheat you could live fairly well because wheat is 100% digestible, with no peel, bone, fat or waste and rich in healthy protein and nutrients. You could live the entire year for just $36.50.

The price of a candy bar or pack of gum would easily feed you for a day. The price of a beer would feed you for almost a week.

It's no wonder farmers feel they ought to have a better price.

Fees Set For Soybean Nursery

Kansas City, Mo. — Basic operating procedures and fee schedules were established for the new National Soybean Winter Nursery Program at a meeting on Aug. 9 of the steering committee.

The American Soybean Association Research Foundation (ASARF), which is providing $60,000 to get the nursery program underway, contracted with the Continuous Crop Improvement Corporation (CCIC) in Belize, Central America, to operate the winter nursery.

Members of the steering committee are Al Bevis of Belize City, Belize, president of CCIC; Ralph T. Jackson of Hudson, Iowa, executive secretary of ASARF; Dr. Bob Leffel, national program staff specialist for oilseeds with the USDA Agricultural Research Service; Arnold W. Terpstra of Lynnville Seed Co., Lynnville, Iowa, representing the American Seed Trade Association, and James Halpin, southern region experiment station director-at-large for the Experiment Station Committee on Policy.

The steering committee will serve in an advisory capacity and will provide a liaison between CCIC and the ASARF board. The group will meet periodically to review technical and fiscal aspects of the winter nursery program.

The nursery facilities are now available. Interested persons should contact the Continuous Crop Improvement Corporation, P.O. Box 503, Belize City, Belize, Central America.

All public and private U.S. seed breeders will be mailed a brochure within the next month outlining specific operating procedures, fee schedules and shipping arrangements.

Rep. Smith Convinced Ford Knows Problem

Washington (UPI) — Rep Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said Sunday she is convinced President Ford has a good understanding of the beef producers' problems and is confident his administration will work actively for solutions.

Mrs Smith was in a delegation of Kansas and Nebraska cattle feeders who met with the President last week to discuss the cattlemen's plight because of the depressed market.

"I came away feeling a sincere effort is being made to come up with solutions," the congresswoman said. "Now that the courts have stepped in to restrain action against the (meat) processing plants in Puerto Rico, the secretary of agriculture will try to curtail imports through his regulatory authority."

She said the level of stew meat imports through the free port of Mayaguez is "alarming" and noted the foreign agriculture service indicates 21.3 million pounds have already entered the country.

"Many of us feel this volume must be included in the quota totals of the individual countries involved, or in the aggregate amount of all meat imports," she said.

Mrs. Smith said the agriculture secretary has estimated when the meat on the high seas is added to what has already come in, the trigger point will be reached by the end of September "When that happens, the law requires the President to invoke quotas," she said.

She predicted stepped up government buying and consumer promotion programs will also be utilized to bolster domestic sales and competition.

On another matter, Mrs. Smith said she was pleased Congress took action before the Aug 12 recess to resolve the impasse over use of the swine flu vaccine

She said it takes six to eight weeks to make the vaccine and break it down into individual doses and that the congressional action will keep the immunization program "pretty much on schedule."

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

As of today, the prospects for price improvement are better in feed grains and soybeans than they are for wheat.

Exports of feed grains and soybeans will probably expand noticeably in the near future as the impact of dry weather hits the livestock areas of western Europe.

Wheat exports from Australia will be down because of very dry planting weather but it will take a while for this to affect the U.S. wheat market.

The U.S. crop is in the bin for the most part but the Canadians are just now bringing in their harvest which is much larger than expected.

It took this huge crop to add to the larger than anticipated U.S. crop to increase the total amount of wheat available for export in the world. This crop in Canada offset the losses in Argentina, Australia, Russia and in western Europe.

Increased hog production and sharply increased broiler production is also going to have an important impact on U.S. feed grain and soybean supplies in the next 9 months. The number of cattle receiving high grain rations is likely to drop unless cattle prices recover soon which seems unlikely.

The hog and chicken increases mean more grain however since they don't eat roughages. High grain rations are optional in feedlot operations where cost cutting will be demanded by bankers if not be economics.

Farmers are going to have to be like Yogi Bear if they market their grain above the cost of production this year. Yogi is smarter than the average bear.

Crop Diseases Included Among Field Day Topics

The University of Nebraska South Central Station will hold a field day on Tuesday Aug. 17, 4½ miles west of the Clay Center interchange on Highway 6 or 12 miles east of Hastings on Highway 6

Field tours will start at 10:00 a m, 11 a m, 1 30 p.m. and 2.30 p m The tours will feature information on disease problems in corn, soybeans and sorghum

Dr. Ben Doupnik, extension plant pathologist, will discuss disease problems including Goss's wilt with farmers.

Other station personnel will discuss crop research concerning insects, weed control and varieties, fertilizer use, irrigation and tillage systems for the South Central district.

A program for ladies will include the topics of sausage sorcery, utilization of our farm products, Monday in Russia and solar heat. The women's program will be held in the USDA Meat Animal Research Center headquarters building.

Coffee and rolls plus a noon lunch will be available at the tour site and at the research center

Dr Martin Massengale, vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, is scheduled to be the noon speaker at the farm.

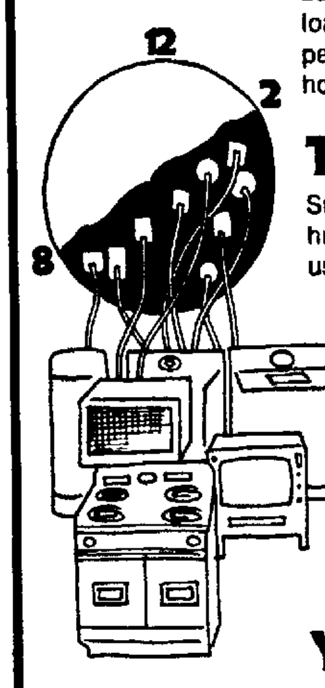
Power Use Hits Summer Peak of 1/3 Million Kilowatts

Lincoln (AP) - High rates were recorded in 1975 and in [illegible] ment is [illegible]

Perhaps you remember that day last year. Sweltering...temperature about 100...humid... not a breath of air. Between 4 and 5 p.m. that afternoon, your Lincoln Electric System delivered a staggering summer peak load of 346,632 kilowatts!

This year, help us to shave that peak!

We would like to lower peak usage this year, so we can pay less for the power we buy. The amount that LES has to pay annually for purchased power and, indirectly, the rates we must charge our customers for that power, are based in part on the magnitude of this peak load Therefore, we try to maintain the lowest peak load possible. By doing this, we can hold this annual charge to a minimum.



The peak is 2 to 8 p.m.

Summer air conditioning demands are normally highest in August. The heaviest electric power usage usually occurs in the heat of the afternoon or early evening. This is because, in addition to the increased use of air conditioners, there is a tendency for people to use other high energy appliances such as washers, dryers, ranges, ovens...even television. When all of these use sources are added together in a given period, they can cause the peak to soar far above the normal pattern of power use.

You can help...

One of the first things to do is to use your air conditioner in the most efficient manner. Set your thermostat at 78°. This will provide adequate cooling with the least air conditioning effort. Pre-cook your meals where possible in the morning hours. Try to do your laundry work before noon. Use your appliances as little as possible between two and early evening.

Let's lower the peak in 1976!

Summer Is Grant Harvest Time

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Summer is the best time to harvest dollars for research projects according to Dr. Robert Kleis, associate director of the University of Nebraska experiment stations.

In fiscal year 1976, the university has received a total of $2,225,500 in grants from all sources but many of these grants are actually tax dollars from state and federal agencies.

Grants that came directly from industry to the NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources in 1975 totaled $335,959. Trade associations such as seed dealer groups, irrigation organizations and chemical associations produced an additional $101,981 for various projects. Foundations supplied $47,986 for other projects.

The money doesn't always go for research. The pot of $1,748,647 in grant funds in 1975 had $85,815 for teaching, $678,345 for research, $468,126 for extension programs, $125,708 for the conservation and survey division and $390,653 for water resources research.

No Strings Very Often

"We don't accept money with strings on it very often. We always insist on the right to publish the research even when the result is unfavorable to the donor of the funds for the research. Patent rights on anything that develops go to the regents, not to the donor," Kleis said.

"Once in a while we get a really big grant but the vast majority are quite small, often below $500. They come from a company by the way of a local representative who is interested in some local problem," said Dr. Howard Ottoson, director of experiment stations.

"When we receive less than $500, we usually lump the grants together into a miscellaneous account to hold down the cost of paperwork. Over $500 we usually establish an account so we can tell the donor how we spent the money," Kleis said.

Donors usually receive data on the research project in the mail just as any other citizen will. They often visit the farms to look at their product in the experiment and sometimes bring along some farmers to see their product compared to a competing product.

"We also sometimes get a piece of machinery, or some kind of chemical at a reduced price and occasionally as a gift. These things help keep research programs going. It seems to stimulated interest by individual scientists as well," Kleis noted.

Some farmers offer land for use in experiments and supply equipment for the scientist's testing. This is most often in demonstration projects but it also happens in pure research projects.

"We don't just do research for companies. It has to fit into an existing program or we don't accept money for the project. We are not a public agency that does research for private companies, our research is aimed at solving problems for Nebraska's farmers," said Dr. Martin Massengale, NU vice chancellor.

"I doubt that grant money changes a scientist's attitude toward the project. We don't sell our soul or bend our results at any time because someone gives us some money but we do very much appreciate the assistance in meeting the cost of research. There are areas where just a little more funds or a piece of equipment can make a tremendous difference in getting the work done," he said.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Environmental Protection Agency has instituted a procedure to give pesticide producers a chance to rebut charges that their product is dangerous. There is also a procedure to allow the U.S. Department of Agriculture to review the data on a pesticide pointing out the benefits of it.

They are calling it Rebuttable Presumption Against Registration or RPAR or sometimes just rebuttable presumption.

It seems that Washington papershufflers must think up names for every procedure they think up.

The procedures give the companies a chance to fight back and still sell their product. It also gives the U.S. Department of Agriculture a chance to explain that the chemical is sufficiently useful and that it cannot be replaced with a fly swatter.

If EPA decides the chemical has to go, the sale of it will be halted. This at least gives companies a slight delay in destroying a profitable product.

If you have a fence row you want to keep clear of plants but you don't want to use sprays or chemicals, you might try using walnut hulls and walnut sawdust.

It seems the trees produce a toxic substance that will kill a number of plants. It is Mother Nature's way of giving a walnut tree a bit of an edge in the battle of life.

It also explains why the mulch you made of last year's walnut hulls killed off those ornamental plants you were trying to protect.

Take one skilled farmer, a very large granary, one large tractor, four farm boys and you can put on a show a lot of city folks will stay all afternoon for.

My weekend farming experiences recently included the transportation of a grain storage building. The event attracted a lot of spectators who were amazed at the skill of farmer Bert Juilfs, who managed somehow to get the bin from one farm to another without wrecking bridges or gates.

When the move was finished the ladies who watched gave Bert a standing ovation.

Farmers like Bert Juilfs are experts at hundreds of different tasks from healing sick animals to repairing damaged machines. They deserve more credit and more money than they obtain for their services to the rest of us.

☆ ☆ ☆

Spain has become an important poultry producer, now ranking fourth in Europe. These are eating chickens we are talking about, not the fighting kind.

This makes the land of bull fights, King Juan Carlos and olives a cracking good market for the grain that U.S. farmers grow.

Meanwhile back at the ranch, the cattlemen are raising funds to increase beef advertising, using a 630 radio station network, 17 major newspapers, many magazines, direct ads in stores, contacts with 430 newspaper food editors and assorted other ways.

Beef producers are in big trouble at the feedlot and at the ranch because of an increase of more than 10% in beef production.

Prices are so bad that farmers are losing a discouraging $100 a head. If it doesn't turn around soon the ranches and feedlots will be owned by someone else.

☆ ☆ ☆

Wheat prices are also so low that discouraged farmers may cut back on production all around the world this fall.

At $6 a bushel, wheat is just 10 cents a pound. This is double the current price paid at the farm. If you paid 10 cents a pound and ate wheat you could live fairly well because wheat is 100% digestible, with no peel, bone, fat or waste and rich in healthy protein and nutrients. You could live the entire year for just $36.50.

The price of a candy bar or pack of gum would easily feed you for a day. The price of a beer would feed you for almost a week.

It's no wonder farmers feel they ought to have a better price.

Fees Set For Soybean Nursery

Kansas City, Mo. — Basic operating procedures and fee schedules were established for the new National Soybean Winter Nursery Program at a meeting on Aug. 9 of the steering committee.

The American Soybean Association Research Foundation (ASARF), which is providing $60,000 to get the nursery program underway, contracted with the Continuous Crop Improvement Corporation (CCIC) in Belize, Central America, to operate the winter nursery.

Members of the steering committee are Al Bevis of Belize City, Belize, president of CCIC; Ralph T. Jackson of Hudson, Iowa, executive secretary of ASARF; Dr. Bob Leffel, national program staff specialist for oilseeds with the USDA Agricultural Research Service; Arnold W. Terpstra of Lynnville Seed Co., Lynnville, Iowa, representing the American Seed Trade Association, and James Halpin, southern region experiment station director-at-large for the Experiment Station Committee on Policy.

The steering committee will serve in an advisory capacity and will provide a liaison between CCIC and the ASARF board. The group will meet periodically to review technical and fiscal aspects of the winter nursery program.

The nursery facilities are now available. Interested persons should contact the Continuous Crop Improvement Corporation, P.O. Box 503, Belize City, Belize, Central America.

All public and private U.S. seed breeders will be mailed a brochure within the next month outlining specific operating procedures, fee schedules and shipping arrangements.

Rep. Smith Convinced Ford Knows Problem

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said Sunday she is convinced President Ford has a good understanding of the beef producers' problems and is confident his administration will work actively for solutions.

Mrs. Smith was in a delegation of Kansas and Nebraska cattle feeders who met with the President last week to discuss the cattlemen's plight because of the depressed market.

"I came away feeling a sincere effort is being made to come up with solutions," the congresswoman said. "Now that the courts have stepped in to restrain action against the (meat) processing plants in Puerto Rico, the secretary of agriculture will try to curtail imports through his regulatory authority."

She said the level of stew meat imports through the free port of Mayaguez is "alarming" and noted the foreign agriculture service indicates 21.3 million pounds have already entered the country.

"Many of us feel this volume must be included in the quota totals of the individual countries involved, or in the aggregate amount of all meat imports," she said.

Mrs. Smith said the agriculture secretary has estimated when the meat on the high seas is added to what has already come in, the trigger point will be reached by the end of September. "When that happens, the law requires the President to invoke quotas," she said.

She predicted stepped up government buying and consumer promotion programs will also be utilized to bolster domestic sales and competition.

On another matter, Mrs. Smith said she was pleased Congress took action before the Aug. 12 recess to resolve the impasse over use of the swine flu vaccine.

She said it takes six to eight weeks to make the vaccine and break it down into individual doses and that the congressional action will keep the immunization program "pretty much on schedule."

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

As of today, the prospects for price improvement are better in feed grains and soybeans than they are for wheat.

Exports of feed grains and soybeans will probably expand noticeably in the near future as the impact of dry weather hits the livestock areas of western Europe.

Wheat exports from Australia will be down because of very dry planting weather but it will take a while for this to affect the U.S. wheat market.

The U.S. crop is in the bin for the most part but the Canadians are just now bringing in their harvest which is much larger than expected.

It took this huge crop to add to the larger than anticipated U.S. crop to increase the total amount of wheat available for export in the world. This crop in Canada offset the losses in Argentina, Australia, Russia and in western Europe.

Increased hog production and sharply increased broiler production is also going to have an important impact on U.S. feed grain and soybean supplies in the next 9 months. The number of cattle receiving high grain rations is likely to drop unless cattle prices recover soon which seems unlikely.

The hog and chicken increases mean more grain however since they don't eat roughages. High grain rations are optional in feedlot operations where cost cutting will be demanded by bankers if not be economics.

Farmers are going to have to be like Yogi Bear if they market their grain above the cost of production this year. Yogi is smarter than the average bear.

Crop Diseases Included Among Field Day Topics

The University of Nebraska South Central Station will hold a field day on Tuesday Aug. 17, 4½ miles west of the Clay Center interchange on Highway 6 or 12 miles east of Hastings on Highway 6.

Field tours will start at 10:00 a.m., 11 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. The tours will feature information on disease problems in corn, soybeans and sorghum.

Dr. Ben Doupnik, extension plant pathologist, will discuss disease problems including Goss's wilt with farmers.

Other station personnel will discuss crop research concerning insects, weed control and varieties, fertilizer use, irrigation and tillage systems for the South Central district.

A program for ladies will include the topics of sausage sorcery, utilization of our farm products, Monday in Russia and solar heat. The women's program will be held in the USDA Meat Animal Research Center headquarters building.

Coffee and rolls plus a noon lunch will be available at the tour site and at the research center.

Dr. Martin Massengale, vice chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, is scheduled to be the noon speaker at the farm.

Power Use Hits Summer Peak of 1/3 Million Kilowatts

Lincoln (AP) - High rates were ... ment is ... recorded in 1975 and in th... in ... nned r...

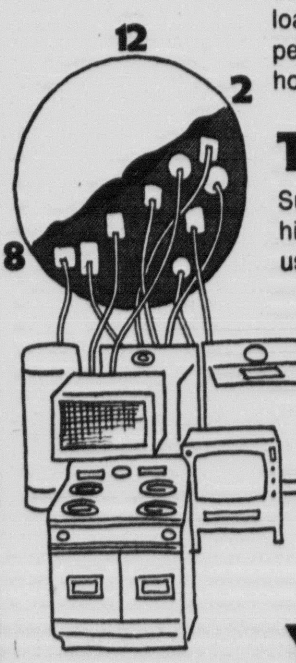
Perhaps you remember that day last year. Sweltering...temperature about 100...humid... not a breath of air. Between 4 and 5 p.m. that afternoon, your Lincoln Electric System delivered a staggering summer peak load of 346,632 kilowatts!

This year, help us to shave that peak!

We would like to lower peak usage this year, so we can pay less for the power we buy. The amount that LES has to pay annually for purchased power and, indirectly, the rates we must charge our customers for that power, are based in part on the magnitude of this peak load. Therefore, we try to maintain the lowest peak load possible. By doing this, we can hold this annual charge to a minimum.



The peak is 2 to 8 p.m.

Summer air conditioning demands are normally highest in August. The heaviest electric power usage usually occurs in the heat of the afternoon or early evening. This is because, in addition to the increased use of air conditioners, there is a tendency for people to use other high energy appliances such as washers, dryers, ranges, ovens...even television. When all of these use sources are added together in a given period, they can cause the peak to soar far above the normal pattern of power use.

You can help...

One of the first things to do is to use your air conditioner in the most efficient manner. Set your thermostat at 78°. This will provide adequate cooling with the least air conditioning effort. Pre-cook your meals where possible in the morning hours. Try to do your laundry work before noon. Use your appliances as little as possible between two and early evening.

Let's lower the peak in 1976!

the next generation will thank you for it.

FORMAL AND TRADITIONAL . . . making a comeback in the dining room.

Formal Dining Returns

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The casual look of recent years is not only beginning to recede in dress but is also being replaced by the more traditional and formal in the home.

And one of the prominent areas of the home where this change is occurring is in the dining area

No longer are the very casual, dark earth tones the top selections of young people for tableware, and more and more are choosing fine china and glassware.

Although the high cost of fine china, crystal and silver is delaying the purchase of some of these items for young couples, they are still making the selections with anticipation of eventually adding these more formal living items to their homes.

A check of the bride's registry at Miller & Paine reveals that about half the brides this year are selecting both fine china and crystal in addition to casual dinner and glassware

However, the registry also shows that brides are more apt to receive wedding and shower gifts in the less expensive pottery and casual glassware than in the more expensive fine china

Ten years ago, registering fine china, crystal and sterling silver almost insured a young couple having a large wedding of a good start in their selections.

However, a comparison of today's price lists of a moderately-priced fine china with a 1965 list reveals that prices have more than doubled, making the cost prohibitive for many wedding gifts

For example, a place setting which cost $24 95 in 1965 now costs $52 50 for those five pieces — dinner plate, salad dessert plate butter plate and cup and saucer.

The prices of serving pieces have jumped even more A 16-inch platter which cost $28 in 1965 now costs $61 75, while a covered vegetable dish has jumped from $39.50 to $91

But the brides are still making the selections and in many cases buying — a little at a time — so someday they may enjoy the luxury of an elegant dining table

According to bridal gift consultants the selections are turning to traditional, romantic, softer tones in china and to elaborate etched patterns in crystal

The most popular earthenware for several years was the very dark brownish-green Madeira pattern by Franciscan, but today's No. 1 seller both locally and nationwide is Dewdrops by Lenox

Dewdrops has a white background with a narrow blue band and a daisy-like pattern of blue, yellow and white.

The light background, more traditional-looking floral patterns are gaining again so much in popularity that one 35-year-old pattern, Desert Rose by Franciscan, is becoming one of the most popular patterns again

The desire for formal, traditional choices in dining has even made its way down to the high school level.

Lincoln Southeast High School junior Nancy Purdy was among 30 high school students in the nation who were named winners in the Fostoria-Pickard Gourmet Tablesetting contest.

And Nancy's table design was a formal setting. She said she kept in mind her mother's French Provincial style furniture in the dining room when she selected the formal china and glassware for her table.

Using a blue lace cloth to pick up the blue in the dainty floral pattern of the white china and the blue glass stemware, Nancy carried out the blues, white and purples in her centerpiece spring floral arrangement of tulips, daisies and forget-me-knots.

Candles in silver candlesticks and silver napkin rings highlighted with an enameled purple violet on the napkin ring finished off the design.

Careful Handling Saves Your Best Dinnerware

Careful handling of dinnerware is good insurance for longevity.

According to Magdalene Pfister, Extension specialist in Home Furnishings at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, care should be taken in scraping, stacking and washing of dishes

Fine china should be stacked with protective separators between plates with ample space being left between stacks, she said

Cups with gold handles should not be hooked for storage and dishes should be warmed only in a warming oven or under hot water.

Acid foods may change the color of fine china if left on the plates for long periods of time, so dishes which have been exposed to acidic sauces, dressings and fruits should be rinsed or soaked immediately

Avoid abrasives, using a sponge, paper towel cloth or rubber scraper to remove leftovers and food particles Undiluted liquid detergent will usually wipe out stubborn stains. If this doesn't work, try a weak solution of bleach and water, Ms Pfister advised.

Dark streaks from knife blades are sometimes eliminated with silver polish. If this doesn't work, lightly rub with burnisher's putty, being careful to avoid metal decorations The putty may be purchased from china and hardware stores

All dishes may be washed by hand. Wash glasses, silverware, dishes, cutlery and pans separately and in that order.

A cushiony mat or dishpan is good insurance against breakage and a soft brush is useful for coaxing food particles from fluted or raised designs. Use clean suds as often as necessary to help prevent a filmy buildup

Ms Pfister recommended that only one or two pieces be washed at a time Water temperature bearable to the hands is suitable for tableware Dishes should be rinsed in hot water and air-dried in a plastic or rubber-coated rack A clean dishtowel can be used for further drying.

Melamine, although especially resistant to breakage, should not come in contact with direct heat, abrasives or chlorine bleaches These will scratch or mar the surface, making future cleaning difficult Although new Melamine is more stain resistant, tea or coffee should not be allowed to stand in the cups

Light stains on Melamine can be removed with baking soda, while dark stains may require a remover which is sold as a coffee pot or teapot cleaner

Some dishwashers have a china setting which allows a shorter, more gentle washing action, but it may be better to handwash elaborate or heavily gilded dishes.

Although gold and platinum on dishes is becoming more permanent, it is better to handwash such dishes unless the manufacturer offers assurance of safety in the dishwasher.

According to Ms Pfister, it takes only a few minutes to run the dishes through a pre-wash cycle for satisfactory washing results later. However, she cautions that only detergent products recommended for machine use should be used and other cleaning agents may be harmful to the equipment

Table Event Rescheduled Next Spring

Interest in formal dining tables and the nostalgia for the elgance of the past have motivated the Nebraska State Retired Teachers to schedule a table festival again next spring.

The first such event was held in April of this year as a money-making project for the cascade fountain to be built at the 27th Street entrance to Antelope Park.

"There were so many comments on the elegance and beauty" of the tables — which featured some antiques and the unusual mixed with elegant cloths, china, silver and crystal — that the teachers are going to schedule another festival, according to Mrs. Julius Humann, who was in charge of the event.

Mrs Ralph Beechner, president of the local retired teachers group, said that about $2,000 was raised for the $87,000 fountain by the festival.

According to Mrs. Humann, several tables are already lined up for next year's festival. Some consideration is being given to makeing this an annual event with proceeds to be used for the fountain and possibly later to establish scholarships in the name of the retired teachers.

Opening lead — ace of hearts.

This deal was played in the U.S.-Italy match during the First World Olympiad staged in Turin in 1960.

At the first table, Belladonna, South for Italy, playing with Avarelli, got to four spades doubled and West led the ace and another heart. East took the king and returned a trump. West ducked, but played the ace and another spade when declarer continued with a trump

Belladonna won in dummy with the jack and led the jack of clubs, covered by the Q-K-A. West thereupon returned the five of clubs. Declarer went up with the ten and cashed another trump, producing this position:

Declarer now played the last trump, discarding a club from dummy, and East was squeezed. He could not spare a diamond, so he discarded the nine of clubs. This permitted Belladonna to cash the four of clubs and so hold himself to down one — 200 points.

At the second table, the U.S. pair also got to four spades doubled. The play followed exactly the same pattern until trick seven, when West returned the two of clubs, not the five.

It was a fine choice of plays. The U.S. declarer also took the ten and cashed two trumps, aiming for a squeeze, but it did him no good. He had to go down two — 500 points — because West's thoughtful return of the deuce of clubs allowed his five to stand guard over South's four and East could later safely discard his nine.

Of Roosters And Other Bird Brainstorms

DEAR ABBY My wife just had her fourth child, and we now have two boys and two girls, which are all we want

My problem is that she wants me to have a vasectomy, but I'm chicken It's not the pain I'm afraid of, it's just that I'm afraid I'll feel like less of a man just knowing that I won't be able to father any more children

My wife can't tolerate the Pill, and the other methods of birth control turn her off, so it's up to me

I feel dumb asking this, but should I or shouldn't I? What do other men who've had it say?

CHICAGO CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: If you're afraid you'll feel like "less of a man" after a vasectomy, the chances are you WILL, so unless you can overcome that feeling, I wouldn't recommend it.

Ask your wife to talk to her doctor about the new, quick and painless method of sterilization for women known as "laparoscopic tubal cautery." A tiny incision is made below the navel. The surgeon then inserts a scope, locates both tubes and seals them permanently. The incision is then closed with a small stitch, covered by a Band-aid. The patient can go home an hour later.

DEAR ABBY I'm a 32-year-old divorcee No kids thank heavens I met a wonderful man He's 68, but before you say he's too old for me, let me say that he can do everything a 25-year-old man can do, and I'm not just guessing

He has had two bum marriages and says this is the first time in his life he's ever been in love I get along fine with his two married daughters, and his grandchildren are crazy about me

He has a summer home in Indiana and a winter home in Florida, and he's been retired for 10 years

He has a pacemaker but you'd never know it unless he told you

My brother is trying to talk me out of marrying him because he's afraid I'll end up being a young widow, but my mother and father both died before they were 50, so I could be dead at 35. What is you advice?

WILLING TO GAMBLE

DEAR WILLING: No one knows how long he's going to live or what shape he'll be in next year, so gamble if you like. But if you live to be 50, and he's still alive, you'll have an 86-year-old husband.

DEAR ABBY Howie and I have been married for two years

Everything is fine except for one thing Whenever Howie needs to see a doctor, he goes to his pediatrician Abby, Howie is 20 years old and I think it's time he stopped going to a pediatrician and went to a regular doctor.

I've told him this, but he doesn't pay any attention to me Maybe if YOU told him, he'd listen

A BABY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: A pediatrician has all the training of a "regular" doctor, plus specialized training the care of children, so if Howie is more comfortable with his pediatrician, why make waves?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

FORMAL AND TRADITIONAL . . . making a comeback in the dining room.

Formal Dining Returns

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The casual look of recent years is not only beginning to recede in dress but is also being replaced by the more traditional and formal in the home.

And one of the prominent areas of the home where this change is occurring is in the dining area.

No longer are the very casual, dark earth tones the top selections of young people for tableware, and more and more are choosing fine china and glassware.

Although the high cost of fine china, crystal and silver is delaying the purchase of some of these items for young couples, they are still making the selections with anticipation of eventually adding these more formal living items to their homes.

A check of the bride's registry at Miller & Paine reveals that about half the brides this year are selecting both fine china and crystal in addition to casual dinner and glassware.

However, the registry also shows that brides are more apt to receive wedding and shower gifts in the less expensive pottery and casual glassware than in the more expensive fine china.

Ten years ago, registering fine china, crystal and sterling silver almost insured a young couple having a large wedding of a good start in their selections.

However, a comparison of today's price lists of a moderately-priced fine china with a 1965 list reveals that prices have more than doubled, making the cost prohibitive for many wedding gifts.

For example, a place setting which cost $24.95 in 1965 now costs $52.50 for those five pieces — dinner plate, salad/dessert plate, butter plate and cup and saucer.

The prices of serving pieces have jumped even more. A 16-inch platter which cost $28 in 1965 now costs $61.75, while a covered vegetable dish has jumped from $39.50 to $91.

But the brides are still making the selections and in many cases buying — a little at a time — so someday they may enjoy the luxury of an elegant dining table.

According to bridal gift consultants, the selections are turning to traditional, romantic, softer tones in china and to elaborate, etched patterns in crystal.

The most popular earthenware for several years was the very dark brownish-green Madeira pattern by Franciscan, but today's No. 1 seller both locally and nationwide is Dewdrops by Lenox.

Dewdrops has a white background with a narrow blue band and a daisy-like pattern of blue, yellow and white.

The light background, more traditional-looking floral patterns are gaining again so much in popularity that one 35-year-old pattern, Desert Rose by Franciscan, is becoming one of the most popular patterns again.

The desire for formal, traditional choices in dining has even made its way down to the high school level.

Lincoln Southeast High School junior Nancy Purdy was among 30 high school students in the nation who were named winners in the Fostoria-Pickard Gourmet Tablesetting contest.

And Nancy's table design was a formal setting. She said she kept in mind her mother's French Provincial style furniture in the dining room when she selected the formal china and glassware for her table.

Using a blue lace cloth to pick up the blue in the dainty floral pattern of the white china and the blue glass stemware, Nancy carried out the blues, white and purples in her centerpiece spring floral arrangement of tulips, daisies and forget-me-knots.

Candles in silver candlesticks and silver napkin rings highlighted with an enameled purple violet on the napkin ring finished off the design.

Careful Handling Saves Your Best Dinnerware

Careful handling of dinnerware is good insurance for longevity.

According to Magdalene Pfister, Extension specialist in Home Furnishings at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, care should be taken in scraping, stacking and washing of dishes.

Fine china should be stacked with protective separators between plates with ample space being left between stacks, she said.

Cups with gold handles should not be hooked for storage, and dishes should be warmed only in a warming oven or under hot water.

Acid foods may change the color of fine china if left on the plates for long periods of time, so dishes which have been exposed to acidic sauces, dressings and fruits should be rinsed or soaked immediately.

Avoid abrasives, using a sponge, paper towel cloth or rubber scraper to remove leftovers and food particles. Undiluted liquid detergent will usually wipe out stubborn stains. If this doesn't work, try a weak solution of bleach and water, Ms. Pfister advised.

Dark streaks from knife blades are sometimes eliminated with silver polish. If this doesn't work, lightly rub with burnisher's putty, being careful to avoid metal decorations. The putty may be purchased from china and hardware stores.

All dishes may be washed by hand. Wash glasses, silverware, dishes, cutlery and pans separately and in that order.

A cushiony mat or dishpan is good insurance against breakage and a soft brush is useful for coaxing food particles from fluted or raised designs. Use clean suds as often as necessary to help prevent a filmy buildup.

Ms. Pfister recommended that only one or two pieces be washed at a time. Water temperature bearable to the hands is suitable for tableware. Dishes should be rinsed in hot water and air-dried in a plastic or rubber-coated rack. A clean dishtowel can be used for further drying.

Melamine, although especially resistant to breakage, should not come in contact with direct heat, abrasives or chlorine bleaches. These will scratch or mar the surface, making future cleaning difficult. Although new Melamine is more stain resistant, tea or coffee should not be allowed to stand in the cups.

Light stains on Melamine can be removed with baking soda, while dark stains may require a remover which is sold as a coffee pot or teapot cleaner.

Some dishwashers have a china setting which allows a shorter, more gentle washing action, but it may be better to handwash elaborate or heavily gilded dishes.

Although gold and platinum on dishes is becoming more permanent, it is better to handwash such dishes unless the manufacturer offers assurance of safety in the dishwasher.

According to Ms. Pfister, it takes only a few minutes to run the dishes through a pre-wash cycle for satisfactory washing results later. However, she cautions that only detergent products recommended for machine use should be used and other cleaning agents may be harmful to the equipment.

Table Event Rescheduled Next Spring

Interest in formal dining tables and the nostalgia for the elgance of the past have motivated the Nebraska State Retired Teachers to schedule a table festival again next spring.

The first such event was held in April of this year as a money-making project for the cascade fountain to be built at the 27th Street entrance to Antelope Park.

"There were so many comments on the elegance and beauty" of the tables — which featured some antiques and the unusual mixed with elegant cloths, china, silver and crystal — that the teachers are going to schedule another festival, according to Mrs. Julius Humann, who was in charge of the event.

Mrs. Ralph Beechner, president of the local retired teachers group, said that about $2,000 was raised for the $87,000 fountain by the festival.

According to Mrs. Humann, several tables are already lined up for next year's festival. Some consideration is being given to makeing this an annual event with proceeds to be used for the fountain and possibly later to establish scholarships in the name of the retired teachers.

Opening lead — ace of hearts.

This deal was played in the U.S.-Italy match during the First World Olympiad staged in Turin in 1960.

At the first table, Belladonna, South for Italy, playing with Avarelli, got to four spades doubled and West led the ace and another heart. East took the king and returned a trump. West ducked, but played the ace and another spade when declarer continued with a trump.

Belladonna won in dummy with the jack and led the jack of clubs, covered by the Q-K-A. West thereupon returned the five of clubs. Declarer went up with the ten and cashed another trump, producing this position:

Declarer now played the last trump, discarding a club from dummy, and East was squeezed. He could not spare a diamond, so he discarded the nine of clubs. This permitted Belladonna to cash the four of clubs and so hold himself to down one — 200 points.

At the second table, the U.S. pair also got to four spades doubled. The play followed exactly the same pattern until trick seven, when West returned the two of clubs, not the five.

It was a fine choice of plays. The U.S. declarer also took the ten and cashed two trumps, aiming for a squeeze, but it did him no good. He had to go down two — 500 points — because West's thoughtful return of the deuce of clubs allowed his five to stand guard over South's four and East could later safely discard his nine.

Poll: Ford Gains 5 Points

By LOUIS HARRIS

Louis Harris

Margin Is 61-32%

President Ford trails Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter by a wide 61-32% margin but has picked up five points on the Democratic candidate in the past three weeks.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan continues to lose to Carter by 67-26%, scarcely an improvement since last month.

This latest Harris Survey, among a cross section of 1,405 likely voters, lends some support to the claims of Ford supporters that the President might have a better chance than Reagan of keeping the White House in Republican hands. Indeed, by 65-20%, a sizable majority of Republicanns across the country feels that "President Ford has the best chance of winning in November of any of the other possible Republican candidates."

Though these results may not affect the outcome of the Republican National Convention this week, they do show that prevailing public sentiment is that Ford, not Reagan, would be the strongest nominee.

Another finding is that the number of Carter voters who "strongly favor" him has risen from 41 to 44% since the close of the Democratic convention. However, this Carter "hard-core" support translates into 27% of the entire electroate, precisely what it was in July. It is fair to conclude that the additional 34% of the voters who prefer Carter to President Ford can be considered "soft" supporters.

The Ford gains that appear in this survey have been registered among voters in the South, where he has risen from 22 to 28%; in the suburbs, where he has moved from 28 to 34%; in small towns, from 26 to 33%; among Republicans, from 61 to 69%; among independents, from 30 to 37%; among those with incomes of $15,000 or more, from 30 to 37%; among middle-of-the-road voters, from 28 to 34%.

If President Ford is not able to gain much more ground in the next two months — assuming he is the nominee of the Republicans — he will be beaten as soundly as Barry Goldwater was in 1964. However, Ford is showing signs of closing the gap with those segments of the electorate that the Harris Survey found softest in their support for Carter. If the President can capitalize on this, the race between himself and Carter would be closer than expected in the weeks ahead.

Reagan's showing is considerably weaker. When he selected Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker as his running mate, Reagan said that he thought that move would broaden his appeal to Republican moderates, independents and Democrats. But no such movement has taken place during the past three weeks.

Among conservatives nationwide, Reagan now runs 57-37% behind Carter, compared to a close 48-45% behind in July. Among liberals, Reagan loses to Carter by a thumping 83-13%. The Schweiker move seems to have backfired badly among the voters, weakening Reagan's conservative base and not strengthening his appeal among moderates and liberals.

Japanese Mark End Of WWII

TOKYO (AP) — The 75-year-old emperor of Japan led a prayer ceremony Sunday to mark the 31st anniversary of the end of World War II. But for the first time, those born after the day in 1945 when Hirohito announced Japan's surrender make up a majority of the Japanese population.

"My heart still pains when I think of those who perished in the war," Emperor Hirohito said. "On this occasion I pray for world peace and prosperity ... to console them."

The audience stood for one moment of silent prayer for the 3.1 million war victims before an altar banked with yellow and white chrysanthemums at Tokyo's Martial Arts Hall.

Government statistics show 1976 is the first year in which Japanese born after Aug. 15, 1945, the day on which Hirohito announced Japan's acceptance of the Potsdam Declaration, outnumber people born before that date.

But the emperor's generation predominated at the nationally televised ceremony. About 1,000 political and business leaders and 5,000 members of the families of the war dead presented floral offerings.

Those attending included Empress Nagako and Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

Miki's ruling Liberal Democratic Party issued a statement Saturday saying it would never allow Japan to go to war again.

Civic groups used the anniversary to call for a strengthening of Japanese democracy. In downtown Tokyo, about 1,200 persons marched in protest of what they called the "oppressive policy" of South Korean President Chung-hee Park, and for world peace.

Makoto Oda, former leader of the Japan Peace for Vietnam Committee, told the rally that "in order to bring peace to Asia and the world, true peace must be established in the Korean peninsula.

"Democracy and freedom must be restored in South Korea and the peaceful unification of South and North Korea should be promoted," he said.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Sonoma—

"Oh, for a beaker full of the warm South,

"Full of the ture, the blushful Hippocrene,

"With beaded bubbles winking at the brim."

We are in the wine valleys, now deep in the long, hot summer. The noble grapes are swelling with the juice that makes poets sing. Makes philosophers utter great sayings"

"O thou the drink of the gods and angels! Wine!"

As more people began to drink wine — (the past 10 years have been dramatic) — new vineyards were planted. Ten years ago, there were slightly over 100,000 California acres in wine grapes. Today there's more than 300,000.

As people drank more wine, they read more about wine and demanded better wine. The best wines are the varietals. Named for the grape, such as Cabernet Sauvignon, Chenin Blanc.

Wines labeled "burgundy" or "chablis" can be made anywhere of any kind of grape. Varietals must contain the grape.

But — under California law it can have as little as 51% of that grape juice. The other 49%, known in the wineries as "stretcher," can be any old thing.

Thus the California varietal can be stretched to the point of exhausting the buyer. The fact is, the stretcher is going down in quality.

☆ ☆ ☆

A wine man up here said: "A lot of stretcher wine is being grown down in the hot central valleys. So are some of the varietal grapes. Now you put those together and label it "Cabernet Sauvignon" and you're quite within the law.

"But those valleys simply don't grow wines with the taste we get in the northern valleys.

"The buyer gets a bottle of that central valley Cabernet Sauvignon. He tastes it and he says: "What kind of juice is this?' He doesn't buy a Cabernet Sauvignon again."

☆ ☆ ☆

The wineries up here have tasting rooms and some still serve you a sample glass free. But vacation traffic has become so heavy that several tasting rooms now charge for it.

All of them will sell you a bottle, pull the cork and let you picnic in the picnic grounds.

Souvenain winery has expanded this idea to serving a complete dinner with wine and staging plays on the weekends. Price $20.

☆ ☆ ☆

Union General John F. Miller retired from the wars. He looked for the best climate in the world. He built his home in the Napa Valley where Silverado Country Club members now play on barbered golf courses.

☆ ☆ ☆

The rising price of wine has been costly to the dinner table but it probably saved the valleys from the tract home bulldozers. Wine today is better than real estate.

A wine man here said: "There was a time when we could hardly give wine away. California is a wine drinking country. But we didn't have the 20 million plus population we have today.

"When your wine isn't bringing in money and you see those acres in grapes, — well, a tract developer's money looks awfully tempting."

Cartier Is Honored With Jewel Showing

New York (UPI) — Louis Cartier will be honored with a one-man show of his jewels at Cartier this fall. The exhibition, called "The Louis Cartier Retrospective," will run Oct. 13 to 29.

On display will be the original wrist watch designed by Cartier in 1907 for his pal, Santos Dumont, a flashy playboy sportsman and aviator who had complained to Cartier that he couldn't tell how fast he was going when he raced. He had requested a clock that he could attach to his cockpit. Cartier came up with the idea of a small clock to be attached to the wrist. Thus "Le Wrist Watch" was born and by 1908 Switzerland was turning out large numbers. But Cartier's was the first.

Head To Costume

Hollywood (UPI) — Edith Head will design the costumes for Universal's "Airport 1977."

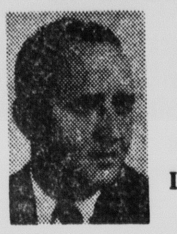
Poll: Ford Gains 5 Points

By LOUIS HARRIS



Louis Harris

Margin Is 61-32%

President Ford trails Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter by a wide 61-32% margin but has picked up five points on the Democratic candidate in the past three weeks.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan continues to lose to Carter by 67-26%, scarcely an improvement since last month.

This latest Harris Survey, among a cross section of 1,405 likely voters, lends some support to the claims of Ford supporters that the President might have a better chance than Reagan of keeping the White House in Republican hands. Indeed, by 65-20%, a sizable majority of Republicanns across the country feels that "President Ford has the best chance of winning in November of any of the other possible Republican candidates."

Though these results may not affect the outcome of the Republican National Convention this week, they do show that prevailing public sentiment is that Ford, not Reagan, would be the strongest nominee.

Another finding is that the number of Carter voters who "strongly favor" him has risen from 41 to 44% since the close of the Democratic convention. However, this Carter "hard-core" support translates into 27% of the entire electroate, precisely what it was in July. It is fair to conclude that the additional 34% of the voters who prefer Carter to President Ford can be considered "soft" supporters.

The Ford gains that appear in this survey have been registered among voters in the South, where he has risen from 22 to 28%; in the suburbs, where he has moved from 28 to 34%; in small towns, from 26 to 33%; among Republicans, from 61 to 69%; among independents, from 30 to 37%; among those with incomes of $15,000 or more, from 30 to 37%; among middle-of-the-road voters, from 28 to 34%.

If President Ford is not able to gain much more ground in the next two months — assuming he is the nominee of the Republicans — he will be beaten as soundly as Barry Goldwater was in 1964. However, Ford is showing signs of closing the gap with those segments of the electorate that the Harris Survey found softest in their support for Carter. If the President can capitalize on this, the race between himself and Carter would be closer than expected in the weeks ahead.

Reagan's showing is considerably weaker. When he selected Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker as his running mate, Reagan said that he thought that move would broaden his appeal to Republican moderates, independents and Democrats. But no such movement has taken place during the past three weeks.

Among conservatives nationwide, Reagan now runs 57-37% behind Carter, compared to a close 48-45% behind in July. Among liberals, Reagan loses to Carter by a thumping 83-13%. The Schweiker move seems to have backfired badly among the voters, weakening Reagan's conservative base and not strengthening his appeal among moderates and liberals.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 16-22, 1976

Now, hideous thunder roars.

Dog days end this week, and cat nights begin ... Babe Ruth died Aug. 16, 1948 ... Third quarter of the moon Aug. 17 ... Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 44 minutes ... Lend-lease with Britain began Aug. 20, 1940 ... Blondin crossed Niagara Falls on tightrope Aug. 17, 1859 ... Allies conquer Sicily Aug. 17, 1943 ... Unhappiness is not knowing what we want and killing ourselves to get it.

Ask the Old Farmer: When the old sailing vessels came in from long trips to the tropics their hulls were loaded with barnacles. The ship was pulled on to one side to allow men to scrape the barnacles off. The only name I ever heard for that procedure was to keelhaul a ship. Now all dictionaries say that keelhaul was a punishment — dragging a man under the keel. Have I got it all wrong? S.H., Green Bay, Wisc.

The process you describe was known as "hauling-down." It was used a great deal. Keelhauling was a wicked punishment.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

Central Great Plains: Rain at start and end of week, heavy in east and scattered in west; rest of week mild.

Japanese Mark End Of WWII

TOKYO (AP) — The 75-year-old emperor of Japan led a prayer ceremony Sunday to mark the 31st anniversary of the end of World War II. But for the first time, those born after the day in 1945 when Hirohito announced Japan's surrender make up a majority of the Japanese population.

"My heart still pains when I think of those who perished in the war," Emperor Hirohito said. "On this occasion I pray for world peace and prosperity ... to console them."

The audience stood for one moment of silent prayer for the 3.1 million war victims before an altar banked with yellow and white chrysanthemums at Tokyo's Martial Arts Hall.

Government statistics show 1976 is the first year in which Japanese born after Aug. 15, 1945, the day on which Hirohito announced Japan's acceptance of the Potsdam Declaration, outnumber people born before that date.

But the emperor's generation predominated at the nationally televised ceremony. About 1,000 political and business leaders and 5,000 members of the families of the war dead presented floral offerings.

Those attending included Empress Nagako and Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

Miki's ruling Liberal Democratic Party issued a statement Saturday saying it would never allow Japan to go to war again.

Civic groups used the anniversary to call for a strengthening of Japanese democracy. In downtown Tokyo, about 1,200 persons marched in protest of what they called the "oppressive policy" of South Korean President Chung-hee Park, and for world peace.

Makoto Oda, former leader of the Japan Peace for Vietnam Committee, told the rally that "in order to bring peace to Asia and the world, true peace must be established in the Korean peninsula.

"Democracy and freedom must be restored in South Korea and the peaceful unification of South and North Korea should be promoted," he said.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Sonoma—

"Oh, for a beaker full of the warm South,

"Full of the ture, the blushful Hippocrene,

"With beaded bubbles winking at the brim."

We are in the wine valleys, now deep in the long, hot summer. The noble grapes are swelling with the juice that makes poets sing. Makes philosophers utter great sayings"

"O thou the drink of the gods and angels! Wine!"

As more people began to drink wine — (the past 10 years have been dramatic) — new vineyards were planted. Ten years ago, there were slightly over 100,000 California acres in wine grapes. Today there's more than 300,000.

As people drank more wine, they read more about wine and demanded better wine. The best wines are the varietals. Named for the grape, such as Cabernet Sauvignon, Chenin Blanc.

Wines labeled "burgundy" or "chablis" can be made anywhere of any kind of grape. Varietals must contain the grape.

But — under California law it can have as little as 51% of that grape juice. The other 49%, known in the wineries as "stretcher," can be any old thing.

Thus the California varietal can be stretched to the point of exhausting the buyer. The fact is, the stretcher is going down in quality.

☆ ☆ ☆

A wine man up here said: "A lot of stretcher wine is being grown down in the hot central valleys. So are some of the varietal grapes. Now you put those together and label it "Cabernet Sauvignon" and you're quite within the law.

"But those valleys simply don't grow wines with the taste we get in the northern valleys.

"The buyer gets a bottle of that central valley Cabernet Sauvignon. He tastes it and he says: "What kind of juice is this?' He doesn't buy a Cabernet Sauvignon again."

☆ ☆ ☆

The wineries up here have tasting rooms and some still serve you a sample glass free. But vacation traffic has become so heavy that several tasting rooms now charge for it.

All of them will sell you a bottle, pull the cork and let you picnic in the picnic grounds.

Souvenain winery has expanded this idea to serving a complete dinner with wine and staging plays on the weekends. Price $20.

☆ ☆ ☆

Union General John F. Miller retired from the wars. He looked for the best climate in the world. He built his home in the Napa Valley where Silverado Country Club members now play on barbered golf courses.

☆ ☆ ☆

The rising price of wine has been costly to the dinner table but it probably saved the valleys from the tract home bulldozers. Wine today is better than real estate.

A wine man here said: "There was a time when we could hardly give wine away. California is a wine drinking country. But we didn't have the 20 million plus population we have today.

"When your wine isn't bringing in money and you see those acres in grapes, — well, a tract developer's money looks awfully tempting."

Cartier Is Honored With Jewel Showing

New York (UPI) — Louis Cartier will be honored with a one-man show of his jewels at Cartier this fall. The exhibition, called "The Louis Cartier Retrospective," will run Oct. 13 to 29.

On display will be the original wrist watch designed by Cartier in 1907 for his pal, Santos Dumont, a flashy playboy sportsman and aviator who had complained to Cartier that he couldn't tell how fast he was going when he raced. He had requested a clock that he could attach to his cockpit. Cartier came up with the idea of a small clock to be attached to the wrist. Thus "Le Wrist Watch" was born and by 1908 Switzerland was turning out large numbers. But Cartier's was the first.

When state budget analyst Jon Oberg isn't analyzing budgets, his thoughts turn to money, appropriately enough

But this time, Oberg's Capitol office brainstorm sparked small lightning devising state employe incentives to save taxpayers big money — now how to spend more of it

His ideas may be easily dismissed as Oberg's Ominous Oddities," and unlike Fulton with his folly, he was reluctant to have them publicized But fantasy or not they're workable where no incentives even exist now

First Oberg wrote an order cancelling a state subscription to a periodical that cost $150 a year Unnecessary he decided Left in force, it would've continued to sap state dollars

Then Oberg started thinking He or any employe could get a rebate — in cash — of part of the subscription price that otherwise would've been paid in full The state still saves money immediately and more in the long run The state employe gets a wallet gratifying reason to be on vigilant lookout to trim fat even tiny pieces

Oberg chucked thinking of money again, saying such a cash incentive would've paid the new increase in his taxes

Second and better yet, is Oberg's idea of self-elimination Don't get him wrong He likes his job and the pay's okay

But Oberg figured if a state employe had a reason to shoot for ultimate efficiency he or she could recommend his or her own job be abolished if it's unnecessary or the duties could be handled better another way And who deep down knows better about that than each state employe himself?

That sure could cut state government costs Oberg deduced and his incentive to produce it is deceptively simple The self-eliminated employe would retire immediately at half pay or some other percentage for some amount of years

Again given the age and earning power of that employe plus yearly pay raises the Nebraska treasury and people who stock it would save a bundle compared to the cost of that person finishing out a state office career

The incentive extends even further The self-eliminated worker could then get a job where his or her talents are used better or just plain needed earning full time pay plus state cash thanks

As Oberg turned from thoughts of government efficiency productivity and holding down costs he buckled down to give a competent answer to a budget question then back to work

(Remember there's no incentive for him yet to justify wiping out his own position for a turn with help wanted ads Besides we might need him to analyze tomorrow's slimmer budgets)

Mexican Chief Rejects Charge Of Communistic 'Cactus Curtain'

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Luis Echeverria and other Mexican leaders have rejected a reported accusation by 76 U S congressmen that Mexico is going Communist and will create a "cactus curtain" along the Rio Grande

There is no curtain which in any way hides our reality, either from within or from without Echeverria said in reaction to the letter he said was sent to President Ford

No copies of the letter could be located in Washington, but U S Rep Bo Ginn, D-Ga , said Rep Larry McDonald, D-Ga had circulated a letter on the floor of the House about three weeks ago "having to do with his deep concern over the possibility of an increase of communism in Mexico "

Rep Charles E Grassley, R-Iowa, said he had signed two such letters, the first about four months ago He said when President Ford received the first letter he told the congressmen not to worry Grassley said a second letter then was sent asking Ford for confirmation that there was no problem

The Mexico City newspaper Excelsior published Friday what it identified as the text of the letter which urged Ford to assure that ' the political situation which is developing in Mexico is receiving the profound attention it merits '

The letter was further quoted as saying ' We would not prefer to see what some Mexican writers have already visualized a 'cactus curtain' along the Rio Grande

"Surely we don't expect to lose sight of the lesson of Cuba, when all our official 'experts' and our deep thinkers of the communications media assured us that Fidel Castro had no intention of imposing communism on the Cuban people said the paper's version of the letter

For moral and humanitarian reasons only we would prefer not to see 65 million Mexicans obligated to choose between slavery and exile '

Echeverria interviewed while on a tour of the state of Baja California told reporters the congressmen were very far from the truth and profoundly mistaken in their judgment of Mexico

He suggested their letter could have been prompted by the U S presidential campaign an opinion shared by Al R Wichtrich, president of the American Chamber of Commerce here

Analyst Busy Inventing Incentives

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

When state budget analyst Jon Oberg isn't analyzing budgets, his thoughts turn to money, appropriately enough.

But this time, Oberg's Capitol office brainstorm sparked small lightning devising state employe incentives to save taxpayers big money — now how to spend more of it.

His ideas may be easily dismissed as "Oberg's Ominous Oddities," and unlike Fulton with his folly, he was reluctant to have them publicized. But fantasy or not, they're workable where no incentives even exist now.

First, Oberg wrote an order cancelling a state subscription to a periodical that cost $150 a year. Unnecessary, he decided. Left in force, it would've continued to sap state dollars.

Then Oberg started thinking: He or any employe could get a rebate — in cash — of part of the subscription price that otherwise would've been paid in full. The state still saves money immediately, and more in the long run. The state employe gets a wallet-gratifying reason to be on vigilant lookout to trim fat, even tiny pieces.

Oberg clucked, thinking of money again, saying such a cash incentive would've paid the new increase in his taxes.

Second, and better yet, is Oberg's idea of self-elimination. Don't get him wrong. He likes his job and the pay's okay.

But Oberg figured if a state employe had a reason to shoot for ultimate efficiency, he or she could recommend his or her own job be abolished if it's unnecessary or the duties could be handled better another way. And who deep down knows better about that than each state employe himself?

That sure could cut state government costs, Oberg deduced, and his incentive to produce it is deceptively simple. The self-eliminated employe would retire immediately at half-pay or some other percentage for some amount of years.

Again, given the age and earning power of that employe, plus yearly pay raises, the Nebraska treasury and people who stock it would save a bundle, compared to the cost of that person finishing out a state office career.

The incentive extends even further: The self-eliminated worker could then get a job where his or her talents are used better or just plain needed, earning full-time pay plus state cash thanks.

As Oberg turned from thoughts of government efficiency, productivity and holding down costs, he buckled down to give a competent answer to a budget question, then back to work.

(Remember, there's no incentive for him yet to justify wiping out his own position for a turn with help-wanted ads. Besides, we might need him to analyze tomorrow's slimmer budgets.)

Bloomington, Ind. (UPI) — The Indiana University School of Music will present six full-scale opera productions in the 1976-77 season: "Madame Butterfly," "Idomeneo," "Porgy and Bess," "Pelleas and Melisande," "Falstaff" and Walter Kaufmann's "The Scarlet Letter."

School Bus Driver Is Charged

Neola, Iowa (AP) — The driver of a school bus that crashed near here Aug. 6 killing three children has been charged with failure to have the vehicle under control.

State troopers said the misdemeanor charge was filed against Jeanette James, 39, mother of one of the victims.

She is to appear in magistrate's court in Council Bluffs Aug. 23. If convicted, she could be fined up to $100 and sentenced to up to 30 days in jail.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If forces are scattered, you pay a dear price. Be positive about direction — avoid being careless about possessions. Money picture could be fragmented. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are in picture. Question of diet, weight comes to forefront.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle coincides with change, controversy, an airing of problems, differences. One close to you reaches greater understanding of what you want, need. The process, however, finds thorns amidst bed of roses. You'll do some revamping, rebuilding, restructuring.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your natural qualities, assets come to forefront. Your abilities are appreciated, utilized. What was hidden, repressed will be released — to your advantage. You are due for a surprise that makes you happy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Adjustment in home situation is indicated. Trying to please every person can be an expensive proposition — that is a lesson you learn. Tighten reins on budget. Refuse to give up something for nothing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Ambition, promotion, relations with professional superiors — these could all be on agenda. Refine techniques and define terms. Pisces, Virgo persons are in picture. See as is, not merely as you would like to see. Means avoid self-deception.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone has made "backstage" arrangements — behind your back. Be aware of it and shore up defenses. Means protect your interests — take nothing for granted. Clandestine conference is featured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish with situation that has been draining you emotionally, financially and causing morale to dip. One close to you has requests — listen but insist that practicality rather than emotionalism is order of day. Message will be clarified.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New opportunity deserves attention and consideration. Leo, Aquarius could be involved. What appears a postponement is merely a temporary delay. Legal procedure is fine if you don't insist on being married to tradition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your intuition is sharply-honed, you perceive potential, what is likely to occur. Clear lines of communication. Refuse to be distracted by one who lacks concentration — and dedication. Long-range benefits accrue from present endeavor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are challenged, stimulated. You do best now through policy of versatility. Travel, change, humor, publishing all could be part of personal montage. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in picture. Creativity is highlighted. People become more aware of your position.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do some revising, improving, Do some revising, improving — realize you are helping yourself by getting rid of bogus material, claims. Build on base of quality. Be direct, specific and eschew anything that even hints of "con." Scorpio, Taurus could be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid direct confrontation. Take ring roads. Be analytical — be smart enough to protect yourself in clinches. And do not lead with your chin! Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently. An idea germinates, gains life and could be of tremendous benefit.

IF AUGUST 16th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are "special" in sense that you are alone in a crowd, introspective, philosophical, spiritual — yet, on surface, you can appear happy-go-lucky, careless, dashing, romantic. You're a contradiction — even to yourself. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. June was important — October sees travel and expansion and you gain weight unless preventive steps are taken in that area. You've been sad, disappointed — by October you will be on road to recovery. In 1977, you'll be richer!

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

PGA Players Get Another Fourth Round

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — They'll make another try Monday to finish the rain-plagued PGA Championship, but at least some of the players think the PGA is going about it all wrong. wrong.

"Why don't they start us at 7 in the morning and let them tape it for television," asked Dave Stockton, one of the many golfers left grumbling Sunday when the fourth round was rained out and postponed.

The washout was caused by a thunderstorm that had been predicted for 3 p.m.—and occurred right on schedule.

There was no margin to move the starting times up Sunday, since the rain-suspended third round had to be completed in the morning, but Stockton's point was that it could be done Monday to cut down the possibility of another rainout.

It won't be, though. The round will start as scheduled, with the leaders starting at 2 p.m.

Some other players were discontented that the 18 holes would be replayed completely—although some already had finished—rather than being suspended as happened Saturday.

"Why don't they just pick up where they left off and eliminate politicking?" asked Ed Sneed, who had finished 72 holes at 17 over par with a 74 Sunday and admitted he was anxious to leave. "Every shot should count. The thought of looking at those 18 holes again isn't exciting."

Even Charles Coody, whose two-shot lead had been trimmed to one after three holes of the final round—and becomes two again because of the rainout—agreed with that.

"I've always said that if a guy hit a shot, he ought to have to take that shot," Coody said.

Jack Nicklaus, who is tied for second place, was one of the few who did not really care that he would have to come back again Monday, which figures.

"It doesn't really make that much difference to me," Nicklaus said, adding, with a big grin:

"I hate to miss a day of fishing, though."

Nicklaus, however, did take a jab at the officials because, he said, they waited too long before calling a halt in play Saturday in the third round.

"We started wanting to get off the course a long time before they blew the siren," he said. "The wind was blowing the trees over and there was thunder overhead.

"We didn't see any lightning bolts, but you don't wait for the first person to get killed before you get people off the golf course, either."

The real effect of the rainout on Nicklaus was that he will have to wait at least another day to find out if this Bicentennial year is a good one for him.

Nicklaus, the game's top all-time collector of both money, and major championships, gauges his success strictly by the way he plays in the four jewels that make up pro golf's Grand Slam.

And, by that yardstick, this has not—until now—been a good year.

He tied for third in the Masters, a whopping 11 strokes behind runaway winner Ray Floyd.

He shared second in the British Open, six shots behind Johnny Miller, who ran away the final day.

And in the U.S. Open, Nicklaus never was a factor, unable to make a birdie until the 43rd hole and eventually finishing in an 11th place tie, 10 shots behind winner Jerry Pate.

"Up to this point," Nicklaus admits, "this hasn't been one of my best years."

But, he hastens to add, a win here "would change things around drastically."

When the fourth round is restarted Monday, weather permitting—and the forecast is good—Nicklaus, the defending champion, will be tied for second place with Dr. Gil Morgan, two strokes behind Charlie Coody, the leader.

Nicklaus has been off the lead since the first round but gaining ground. He was six strokes behind Morgan's record 134 at the 36-hole mark and three back when the third round was suspended by thundershowers late Saturday.

Tom Weiskopf, whose 65 led after the first round, is at 212 starting the final 18, five strokes behind Coody. Ben Crenshaw, the leading money winner on the PGA tour this year, is a group at 214 that also includes the 22-year-old Pate. Arnold Palmer is at 215, Hubert Green 216 and Hale Irwin 219.

Monday's windup will be nationally televised (ABC) beginning at 3 p.m. CDT.

Lockhart Aided In Victory

By KEN HAMBLETON

Craig Lockhart won the 25-lap super stock feature race Sunday night at Midwest Speedway but he claims that he didn't do it all by himself.

Lockhart took over the lead from Dennis Parker on the 18th lap and breezed to his third win of the season.

"I let the other guys do my battling for me and then I just got a good break and was able to get the lead," said Lockhart.

Lockhart was sixth in a six-car pack led by Parker for the first 17 laps of the race. Then on the seventh lap after trying to pass Lincolnite Don Droud, Lockhart backed off and let Bill Myers battle Droud for second behind Parker.

"I just couldn't seem to get around Droud so I let Myers hassle with him and hoped I'd get a hole to shoot through to get both of them," said Lockhart.

Then on the 18th lap, when Parker had to slow because of oil in his carburetor, Droud and Myers had to slow down also and Lockhart shot into the lead for good.

Jensen kept up the charge and finished third to all but ice his point championship for the season. Parker placed second, his best finish of the year.

In the hobby stock feature Gene Jakub, Rick Paulus and John Gerloff continued their running battles for top honors with Jakub gaining the win.

Paulus, driving Bob Whitney's car, jumped into the early lead from his front row starting position, but by the fifth lap of the 20-lap race both Jakub and Gerloff, who both started in the last row of the 14-car field, had moved up to second and third.

Jakub zipped into the lead on the sixth lap and held on for the win with Gerloff placing second. Kermit Ekstrum climaxed a wild dash to the finish by edging Paulus at the finish line for third place.

"I think some of the other hobby stockers were after me during the heat races and trophy dash," said Jakub. "But even if they were after me in the feature I didn't worry because I know I've got more power in my car."

"Gerloff and Paulus are very good drivers and I'm happy anytime I beat them," Jakub said. "It seemed tonight that everybody was running high in the turns and I just kept the car low and was able to pass them."

Jakub, Paulus and Gerloff all won heat races with Gerloff capturing the trophy dash. Dan Watts nipped Orville Hoffman for honors in the B feature.

In the special 10-lap race between the KLIN Devil Drivers and the Sunday Journal and Star Clutch Burners, Ken Hambleton of Lincoln Star, took the lead from KLIN's Lee Schrader on the third lap and managed to hold on for the win. Schrader finished second just ahead of fellow Devil Driver Stan Linnertz while Stuart Long of the Star, Virgil Parker of the Lincoln Journal and Ryly Jane Hambleton placed fourth, fifth and sixth respectively.

The special race was a part of the extravaganza night which presented the Shrine clowns, band and motor brigades along with the Lewis Service Center Clydesdales. A portion of the gate receipts were donated to the Shrine Children's Hospital.

Broken Leg Doesn't Hurt Fort Chances

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Even in adversity, Jerry Fort takes a philosophical approach.

"I'm just glad it happened when it did and not later in the summer," said Nebraska's all-time basketball scoring leader late Sunday from his Chicago home. "If it had happened later, then I wouldn't be able to go to the main training camp and it would really hurt my chances of making the team."

Jerry Fort
Goes To Celtics Camp

Fort, a third-round draft choice of the Boston Celtics, fractured a fibia bone in his right leg in a pickup basketball game. The accident occurred in late June, the day before he left Lincoln to return home to Chicago.

The funny thing was that Fort didn't know he fractured a bone.

"I thought I just had a bad muscle cramp. I was limping around at home and the swelling hadn't gone down so I went to see a doctor in Chicago," he said.

"It wasn't a bad break, but bad enough to keep me from basketball," he continued. "I hurt it when I went up for a rebound. I came down and somebody was underneath me and I stepped on it wrong. I heard something snap, but I didn't think any more of it until later."

What really concerns Fort is how it will heal in time for the Boston Celtics professional basketball training camp which opens on Sept. 15.

Fort, who was recovering on crutches for four weeks, will attend the Celtics' rookie camp, which will open Thursday in Marshfield, Mass.

"I can't run or jump and I've just been walking around trying to get my strength back," he said. "I won't play in the rookie camp, but I'm going to see how they run things. I still think it's crazy the way it happened. But it's coming along now."

Fort, who shattered all Nebraska scoring records while playing four years under head NU coach Joe Cipriano, received his degree in May.

He had been drafted second by the world champion Celtics in the National Basketball Association's draft of collegiate standouts.

The Celtics first choice was Kansas' Norm Cook, a forward. In the recent dispersal draft of American Basketball Association players, the Celtics did not choose any guards.

"I met Heinsohn (head Celtics coach Tom) and Auerbach (Boston general manager Red) when I went back there to have their trainers look at my leg. They both were real nice. It's a good organization. They told me to just relax until I get healthy

"The way Heinsohn was talking, he said if I played up to my potential, I should make the team. It helps me, I think, that they didn't draft any other guards."

Fort was scheduled to go to California the weekend after he discovered the seriousness of the injury. He was slated to compete in a summer basketball league to prepare for the Celtics' camp. He never made it out West.

Meanwhile, he has been traveling to Northwestern University in Evanston, a Chicago suburb, for therapy.

"I expect to be able to play again in a couple of weeks. That'll give two weeks or so before the main camp opens. I hope it's enough time It happened about seven weeks ago and I'm anxious to play again."

Royals, A's Keep Winning

By United Press International

Amos Otis belted a two-run, first-inning home run and Frank White had a pair of RBI singles Sunday in support of the six-hit pitching of Andy Hassler and Mark Littell to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 7-3 win over the Detroit Tigers.

Hassler, who won his second game after losing 18 in a row over two seasons, gave up six hits and walked five before being relieved by Littell when Willie Horton led off the eighth with a single.

Jim Wohlford led off the bottom of the first with a single and Otis followed with his third homer in six days and 15th of the season. George Brett then singled, stole second, went to third on Hal McRae's grounder and scored on a John Mayberry sacrifice fly.

Buddy Bell singled home two runs and Jim Bibby fired a four-hitter to pace the Indians to a second game win and doubleheader sweep of the Rangers. Larvell Blanks and John Lowenstein drove home two runs apiece to spark the Indians to a triumph in the opener.

Bill Travers, with relief help from Bill Castro, notched his 14th victory of the season and Mike Hegan cracked a home run as the Brewers edged the Angels.

Lee May smacked his 21st home run and Bob Grich added his 11th homer as the Orioles blanked the White Sox in a rain-delayed game that gave Wayne Garland his 14th victory of the season.

In the National League, Bruce Boisclair singled home the only run of the game to help Jerry Koosman to his 15th victory and give the New York Mets a 1-0 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds Sunday.

Boisclair's fifth-inning, two-out single to right field scored Bud Harrelson. Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan surrendered an inning-opening single to Roy Staiger. Harrelson forced Staiger and moved to second on Koosman's sacrifice bunt, setting the stage for Boisclair's hit.

Ken Reitz' sacrifice fly drove in Larry Herndon with the go-ahead run and Darrell Evans' second homer, a three-run blast, capped a five-run ninth inning rally as the Giants drubbed the NL East-leading Phillies.

Bill Russell's run-scoring single capped a three-run fourth inning to lead the Dodgers over the Cubs. Don Sutton, 14-9, bested Bill Bonham, 7-10.

Willie Davis knocked in three runs and Ted Kubiak two to lead the Padres to a battering of Expos. Tom Griffin went the distance to record his seventh win against in 11 decisions.

The Braves averted losing all their games to one club at home this year as Phil Niekro fashioned a six-hitter to turn back the Cardinals. Niekro, 138, also chipped in on offense, knocking in his seventh run in his last seven games with a sacrifice fly.

Doc Medich gained his first victory since June 16 with ninth-inning relief by Kent Tekulve when the Pirates beat the Astros in the first game of a doubleheader.

Jerry Reuss threw a three-hitter as Pittsburgh completed a sweep of Houston. Reuss, a 11-7, posted his third straight complete-game win of the season over the Astros.

New Kid On NFL Block Becomes A Winner

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Tampa Bay might be the new kid on the National Football League block, but they found somebody they can beat.

The Buccaneers, led by quarterback Steve Spurrier, picked up in a trade with San Francisco shortly after the expansion draft, and kicker Mirro Roder, obtained just last week, grabbed their first NFL victory Saturday night by knocking off the Atlanta Falcons 17-3.

49ers 21, Chiefs 13

The San Francisco 49ers, on touchdown runs by Delvin Williams, Sammy Johnson and rookie Paul Hofer, defeated Kansas City 21-13 Sunday at San Francisco for their third straight National Football League exhibition victory.

The touchdown runs and an aggressive defense that sacked Kansas City quarterbacks seven times helped San Francisco withstand a 99-yard scoring kickoff return by the Chiefs' Larry Brunson in the third quarter.

The Chiefs' Jan Stenerud kicked a 28-yard field goal, his second of the day, to bring Kansas City within one point early in the fourth quarter. But 49ers quarterback Jim Plunkett, playing the entire game in his debut before his new hometown fans, engineered a scoring drive in the final two minutes that ended with Hofer's 47-yard touchdown dash.

Packers 16, Patriots 14

Chester Marcol provided the winning margin as the Green Bay Packers edged the New England Patriots, 16-14 Sunday

Marcol, who missed all but the opening 30 minutes of last season with a torn quadriceps in his right kicking leg, booted a 32-yarder with 2:28 remaining in the second quarter following linebacker Tom Perko's fumble recovery, one of four New England turnovers.

The victory gives the Packers a 2-1 preseason record while New England dropped to 1-2.

Marcol gave Green Bay a 6-0 lead with two field goals within three minutes late in the first quarter and early in the second quarter.

In other NFL exhibition games Saturday, the New York Giants trounced Houston 30-14, Los Angeles squeezed by Seattle 16-13, Denver knocked off Dallas 13-9, Chicago upended Baltimore 24-14, Pittsburgh crushed Washington 27-7, Cincinnati defeated Detroit 28-24 and Miami downed Philadelphia 24-16

Friday night, Oakland rolled over the New York Jets 41-17 and New Orleans shuffled past Buffalo 21-14.

Monday night, St. Louis meets San Diego at Tokyo and Minnesota is at Cleveland. Actually, the St. Louis-San Diego game is a night contest only in Japan, where it will start at 6:30 p.m., Tokyo time. That's 5:30 a.m., EDT.

Rams 16, Seahawks 13

Los Angeles, 3-0, built up a 16-0 lead on three Tom Dempsey field goals and quarterback James Harris' two-yard run, then had to withstand a furious Seattle attack. The expansion Seahawks, 0-3 in preseason play, scored twice in the final 9:33 as Neil Graff passed two yards to tight end John McMakin and Gary Hayman's 13-yard scamper capped a 50-yard, nine-play drive.

Dempsey gave the Rams a 9-0 halftime lead on field goals of 36, 41 and 25 yards.

Steelers 27, Redskins 7

"We decided to get hungry," Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after the two-time Super Bowl champions had been held to a scoreless first period. Bradhsaw led the way, passing for two touchdowns and setting up a third as he connected on 11 of 23 passes for 149 yards.

After Rocky Bleier opened the scoring on a two-yard run, Bradshaw fired a 10-yard scoring pass to Lynn Swann and a four-yard TD pass to Randy Grossman. Rookie quarterback Mike Kruczek threw a seven-yard scoring pass before Washington finally got on the scoreboard with 1:07 remaining in the game on Joe Theismann's five-yard run.

"We got one touchdown and we wanted another," Bradshaw explained. "So we went out and got another one quick."

Giants 30, Oilers 14

The New York Giants, playing their second game in four days, scored 21 points in the second period as they routed Houston. Larry Csonka and Larry Watkins scored on one-yard plunges. Gordon Bell ran in from three yards out and backup quarterback Jerry Golsteyn hit Jim Obradovic with a three-yard scoring pass as the Giants raised their record to 2-1.

Houston's touchdowns came on Dan Pastorini's two long pass plays, 61 yards to Billy Johnson and 50 yards to Ken Burrough.

Bears 25, Colts 14

Walter Payton rushed for 122 yards in 31 carries, scoring twice, and Bob Avellini combined with Bo Rather on a 56-yard touchdown pass play as Chicago, 3-0, knocked Baltimore from the unbeaten ranks. The Bears also got field goals of 50 and 42 yards from Bob Thomas.

Broncos 13, Cowboys 9

Two first-half TD passes by Steve Ramsey and a tough defense gave Denver, 2-2, its victory over Dallas. All of the Cowboys points came on Efren Herrera field goals of 26, 21 and 50 yards. Dallas has yet to win after three outings.

Dolphins 24, Eagles 16

Quarterbacks Bob Griese and Don Strock three for three touchdowns, leading Miami to its third straight preseason victory Philadelphia, which is still seeking its first victory under new coach Dick Vermeil, scored touchdowns on Mike Hogan's two-yard plunge and a 10-yard pass from Mike Boryla to Charles Young

Bengals 28, Lions 14

Two scoring passes by John Reaves paced Cincinnati over Detroit Reaves combined with rookie Billy Brooks for a 13-yard score and with rookie Archie Griffin for a 10-yard TD. Reaves entered the game in the second period when starting quarterback Ken Anderson was shaken up Danny Reece returned the second half kickoff 88 yards for a Bengals' score

Detroit scored on rookie defensive back James Hunter's 52-yard return with a recovered fumble and a four-yard pass from Bill Munson to Lawrence Gaines in the closing seconds of the game.

Did They Stretch In 7th?

MONTICELLO, N.Y (AP) — Gager's Diner beat Bend 'N Elbow 491-467 in a 53-hour, 367-inning softball game, despite Tom Schock's 12 home runs for the losers

Sponsors of the charity event said the Softball Hall of Fame in Oklahoma recognized the marathon, which ended Sunday, as the longest softball game ever The Guinness Book of World Records has no listing for that category

Thirty men and women played for each side, with modified fast pitch rules in effect Planners had schedule the game for 200 or more innings The winning team amassed 832 hits to 749 for the losers There were 31 home runs in the game

PGA Players Get Another Fourth Round

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — They'll make another try Monday to finish the rain-plagued PGA Championship, but at least some of the players think the PGA is going about it all wrong. wrong.

He shared second in the British Open, six shots behind Johnny Miller, who ran away the final day.

And in the U.S. Open, Nicklaus never was a factor, unable to make a birdie until the 43rd hole and eventually finishing in an 11th place tie, 10 shots behind winner Jerry Pate.

"Up to this point," Nicklaus admits, "this hasn't been one of my best years."

But, he hastens to add, a win here "would change things around drastically."

When the fourth round is restarted Monday, weather permitting—and the forecast is good—Nicklaus, the defending champion, will be tied for second place with Dr. Gil Morgan, two strokes behind Charlie Coody, the leader.

Nicklaus has been off the lead since the first round but gaining ground. He was six strokes behind Morgan's record 134 at the 36-hole mark and three back when the third round was suspended by thundershowers late Saturday.

Tom Weiskopf, whose 65 led after the first round, is at 212 starting the final 18, five strokes behind Coody. Ben Crenshaw, the leading money winner on the PGA tour this year, is a group at 214 that also includes the 22-year-old Pate. Arnold Palmer is at 215, Hubert Green 216 and Hale Irwin 219.

Monday's windup will be nationally televised (ABC) beginning at 3 p.m. CDT.

Lockhart Aided In Victory

Craig Lockhart won the 25-lap super stock feature race Sunday night at Midwest Speedway but he claims that he didn't do it all by himself.

Lockhart took over the lead from Dennis Parker on the 18th lap and breezed to his third win of the season.

"I let the other guys do my battling for me and then I just got a good break and was able to get the lead," said Lockhart.

Lockhart was sixth in a six-car pack led by Parker for the first 17 laps of the race. Then on the seventh lap after trying to pass Lincolnite Don Droud, Lockhart backed off and let Bill Myers battle Droud for second behind Parker.

"I just couldn't seem to get around Droud so I let Myers hassle with him and hoped I'd get a hole to shoot through to get both of them," said Lockhart.

Then on the 18th lap, when Parker had to slow because of oil in his carburetor, Droud and Myers had to slow down also and Lockhart shot into the lead for good.

Dick Jensen and Joe Wade joined the early battle behind Parker but after moving up to fourth place, Wade had to pull his car into the pits with a broken differential.

Jensen kept up the charge and finished third to all but ice his point championship for the season. Parker placed second, his best finish of the year.

In the hobby stock feature Gene Jakub, Rick Paulus and John Gerloff continued their running battles for top honors with Jakub gaining the win.

Paulus, driving Bob Whitney's car, jumped into the early lead from his front row starting position, but by the fifth lap of the 20-lap race both Jakub and Gerloff, who both started in the last row of the 14-car field, had moved up to second and third.

Jakub zipped into the lead on the sixth lap and held on for the win with Gerloff placing second. Kermit Ekstrum climaxed a wild dash to the finish by edging Paulus at the finish line for third place.

"I think some of the other hobby stockers were after me during the heat races and trophy dash," said Jakub. "But even if they were after me in the feature I didn't worry because I know I've got more power in my car."

"Gerloff and Paulus are very good drivers and I'm happy anytime I beat them," Jakub said. "It seemed tonight that everybody was running high in the turns and I just kept the car low and was able to pass them."

Jakub, Paulus and Gerloff all won heat races with Gerloff capturing the trophy dash. Dan Watts nipped Orville Hoffman for honors in the B feature.

In the special 10-lap race between the KLIN Devil Drivers and the Sunday Journal and Star Clutch Burners, Ken Hambleton of Lincoln Star, took the lead from KLIN's Lee Schrader on the third lap and managed to hold on for the win. Schrader finished second just ahead of fellow Devil Driver Stan Linnertz while Stuart Long of the Star, Virgil Parker of the Lincoln Journal and Ryly Jane Hambleton placed fourth, fifth and sixth respectively.

The special race was a part of the extravaganza night which presented the Shrine clowns, band and motor brigades along with the Lewis Service Center Clydesdales. A portion of the gate receipts were donated to the Shrine Children's Hospital.

Broken Leg Doesn't Hurt Fort Chances

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Even in adversity, Jerry Fort takes a philosophical approach.

"I'm just glad it happened when it did and not later in the summer," said Nebraska's all-time basketball scoring leader late Sunday from his Chicago home. "If it had happened later, then I wouldn't be able to go to the main training camp and it would really hurt my chances of making the team."

Fort, a third-round draft choice of the Boston Celtics, fractured a fibia bone in his right leg in a pickup basketball game. The accident occurred in late June, the day before he left Lincoln to return home to Chicago.

The funny thing was that Fort didn't know he fractured a bone.

"I thought I just had a bad muscle cramp. I was limping around at home and the swelling hadn't gone down so I went to see a doctor in Chicago," he said.

"It wasn't a bad break, but bad enough to keep me from basketball," he continued. "I hurt it when I went up for a rebound. I came down and somebody was underneath me and I stepped on it wrong. I heard something snap, but I didn't think any more of it until later."

What really concerns Fort is how it will heal in time for the Boston Celtics professional basketball training camp which opens on Sept. 15.

Fort, who was recovering on crutches for four weeks, will attend the Celtics' rookie camp, which will open Thursday in Marshfield, Mass.

"I can't run or jump and I've just been walking around trying to get my strength back," he said. "I won't play in the rookie camp, but I'm going to see how they run things. I still think it's crazy the way it happened. But it's coming along now."

Fort, who shattered all Nebraska scoring records while playing four years under head NU coach Joe Cipriano, received his degree in May.

Jerry Fort
Goes To Celtics Camp

He had been drafted second by the world champion Celtics in the National Basketball Association's draft of collegiate standouts.

The Celtics first choice was Kansas' Norm Cook, a forward. In the recent dispersal draft of American Basketball Association players, the Celtics did not choose any guards.

"I met Heinsohn (head Celtics coach Tom) and Auerbach (Boston general manager Red) when I went back there to have their trainers look at my leg. They both were real nice. It's a good organization. They told me to just relax until I get healthy

"The way Heinsohn was talking, he said if I played up to my potential, I should make the team. It helps me, I think, that they didn't draft any other guards."

Fort was scheduled to go to California the weekend after he discovered the seriousness of the injury. He was slated to compete in a summer basketball league to prepare for the Celtics' camp. He never made it out West.

Meanwhile, he has been traveling to Northwestern University in Evanston, a Chicago suburb, for therapy.

"I expect to be able to play again in a couple of weeks. That'll give two weeks or so before the main camp opens. I hope it's enough time It happened about seven weeks ago and I'm anxious to play again."

Royals, A's Keep Winning

By United Press International

Amos Otis belted a two-run, first-inning home run and Frank White had a pair of RBI singles Sunday in support of the six-hit pitching of Andy Hassler and Mark Littell to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 7-3 win over the Detroit Tigers.

Hassler, who won his second game after losing 18 in a row over two seasons, gave up six hits and walked five before being relieved by Littell when Willie Horton led off the eighth with a single.

Jim Wohlford led off the bottom of the first with a single and Otis followed with his third homer in six days and 15th of the season. George Brett then singled, stole second, went to third on Hal McRae's grounder and scored on a John Mayberry sacrifice fly.

Buddy Bell singled home two runs and Jim Bibby fired a four-hitter to pace the Indians to a second game win and doubleheader sweep of the Rangers. Larvell Blanks and John Lowenstein drove home two runs apiece to spark the Indians to a triumph in the opener.

Rod Carew singled in the winning run with two out in the eighth inning to lift the Twins to a win over New York and snap a five-game Yankee winning streak.

Bill Travers, with relief help from Bill Castro, notched his 14th victory of the season and Mike Hegan cracked a home run as the Brewers edged the Angels.

Lee May smacked his 21st home run and Bob Grich added his 11th homer as the Orioles blanked the White Sox in a rain-delayed game that gave Wayne Garland his 14th victory of the season.

Don Baylor's two-out bloop double in the ninth inning scored Bert Campaneris from second base with the winning run as the A's defeated the Red Sox for their ninth win in a row.

In the National League, Bruce Boisclair singled home the only run of the game to help Jerry Koosman to his 15th victory and give the New York Mets a 1-0 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds Sunday.

Boisclair's fifth-inning, two-out single to right field scored Bud Harrelson. Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan surrendered an inning-opening single to Roy Staiger. Harrelson forced Staiger and moved to second on Koosman's sacrifice bunt, setting the stage for Boisclair's hit.

Ken Reitz' sacrifice fly drove in Larry Herndon with the go-ahead run and Darrell Evans' second homer, a three-run blast, capped a rive-run ninth inning rally as the Fiants drubbed the NL East-leading Phillies.

Bill Russell's run-scoring single capped a three-run fourth inning to lead the Dodgers over the Cubs. Don Sutton, 14-9, bested Bill Bonham, 7-10.

Willie Davis knocked in three runs and Ted Kubiak two to lead the Padres to a battering of Expos. Tom Griffin went the distance to record his seventh win against in 11 decisions.

The Braves averted losing all their games to one club at home this year as Phil Niekro fashioned a six-hitter to turn back the Cardinals. Niekro, 138, also chipped in on offense, knocking in his seventh run in his last seven games with a sacrifice fly.

Doc Medich gained his first victory since June 16 with ninth-inning relief by Kent Tekulve when the Pirates beat the Astros in the first game of a doubleheader.

Jerry Reuss threw a three-hitter as Pittsburgh completed a sweep of Houston. Reuss, a 11-7, posted his third straight complete-game win of the season over the Astros.

New Kid On NFL Block Becomes A Winner

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Tampa Bay might be the new kid on the National Football League block, but they found somebody they can beat.

The Buccaneers, led by quarterback Steve Spurrier, picked up in a trade with San Francisco shortly after the expansion draft, and kicker Mirro Roder, obtained just last week, grabbed their first NFL victory Saturday night by knocking off the Atlanta Falcons 17-3.

49ers 21, Chiefs 13

The San Francisco 49ers, on touchdown runs by Delvin Williams, Sammy Johnson and rookie Paul Hofer, defeated Kansas City 21-13 Sunday at San Francisco for their third straight National Football League exhibition victory.

The touchdown runs and an aggressive defense that sacked Kansas City quarterbacks seven times helped San Francisco withstand a 99-yard scoring kickoff return by the Chiefs' Larry Brunson in the third quarter.

The Chiefs' Jan Stenerud kicked a 28-yard field goal, his second of the day, to bring Kansas City within one point early in the fourth quarter. But 49ers quarterback Jim Plunkett, playing the entire game in his debut before his new hometown fans, engineered a scoring drive in the final two minutes that ended with Hofer's 47-yard touchdown dash.

Packers 16, Patriots 14

Chester Marcol provided the winning margin as the Green Bay Packers edged the New England Patriots, 16-14 Sunday

Marcol, who missed all but the opening 30 minutes of last season with a torn quadriceps in his right kicking leg, booted a 32-yarder with 2:28 remaining in the second quarter following linebacker Tom Perko's fumble recovery, one of four New England turnovers.

The victory gives the Packers a 2-1 preseason record while New England dropped to 1-2.

Marcol gave Green Bay a 6-0 lead with two field goals within three minutes late in the first quarter and early in the second quarter.

In other NFL exhibition games Saturday, the New York Giants trounced Houston 30-14, Los Angeles squeezed by Seattle 16-13, Denver knocked off Dallas 13-9, Chicago upended Baltimore 24-14, Pittsburgh crushed Washington 27-7, Cincinnati defeated Detroit 26-24 and Miami downed Philadelphia 24-16.

Friday night, Oakland rolled over the New York Jets 41-17 and New Orleans shuffled past Buffalo 21-14.

Monday night, St. Louis meets San Diego at Tokyo and Minnesota is at Cleveland. Actually, the St. Louis-San Diego game is a night contest only in Japan, where it will start at 6:30 p.m., Tokyo time. That's 5:30 a.m., EDT.

Rams 16, Seahawks 13

Los Angeles, 3-0, built up a 16-0 lead on three Tom Dempsey field goals and quarterback James Harris' two-yard run, then had to withstand a furious Seattle attack. The expansion Seahawks, 0-3 in preseason play, scored twice in the final 9:33 as Neil Graff passed two yards to tight end John McMakin and Gary Hayman's 13-yard scamper capped a 50-yard, nine-play drive.

Dempsey gave the Rams a 9-0 halftime lead on field goals of 36, 41 and 26 yards.

Steelers 27, Redskins 7

"We decided to get hungry," Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after the two-time Super Bowl champions had been held to a scoreless first period. Bradhsaw led the way, passing for two touchdowns and setting up a third as he connected on 11 of 23 passes for 149 yards.

After Rocky Bleier opened the scoring on a two-yard run, Bradshaw fired a 10-yard scoring pass to Lynn Swann and a four-yard TD pass to Randy Grossman. Rookie quarterback Mike Kruczek threw a seven-yard scoring pass before Washington finally got on the scoreboard with 1:07 remaining in the game on Joe Theismann's five-yard run.

"We got one touchdown and we wanted another," Bradshaw explained. "So we went out and got another one quick."

Giants 30, Oilers 14

The New York Giants, playing their second game in four days, scored 21 points in the second period as they routed Houston. Larry Csonka and Larry Watkins scored on one-yard plunges, Gordon Bell ran in from three yards out and backup quarterback Jerry Golsteyn hit Jim Obradovic with a three-yard scoring pass as the Giants raised their record to 2-1.

Houston's touchdowns came on Dan Pastorini's two long pass plays, 61 yards to Billy Johnson and 50 yards to Ken Burrough.

Bears 25, Colts 14

Walter Payton rushed for 122 yards in 31 carries, scoring twice, and Bob Avellini combined with Bo Rather on a 56-yard touchdown pass play as Chicago, 3-0, knocked Baltimore from the unbeaten ranks. The Bears also got field goals of 50 and 42 yards from Bob Thomas.

Broncos 13, Cowboys 9

Two first-half TD passes by Steve Ramsey and a tough defense gave Denver, 2-2, its victory over Dallas. All of the Cowboys points came on Efren Herrera field goals of 26, 21 and 50 yards. Dallas has yet to win after three outings.

Dolphins 24, Eagles 16

Quarterbacks Bob Griese and Don Strock three for three touchdowns, leading Miami to its third straight preseason victory. Philadelphia, which is still seeking its first victory under new coach Dick Vermeil, scored touchdowns on Mike Hogan's two-yard plunge and a 10-yard pass from Mike Boryla to Charles Young.

Bengals 26, Lions 14

Two scoring passes by John Reaves paced Cincinnati over Detroit. Reaves combined with rookie Billy Brooks for a 13-yard score and with rookie Archie Griffin for a 10-yard TD. Reaves entered the game in the second period when starting quarterback Ken Anderson was shaken up. Danny Reece returned the second half kickoff 88 yards for a Bengals' score.

Detroit scored on rookie defensive back James Hunter's 52-yard return with a recovered fumble and a four-yard pass from Bill Munson to Lawrence Gaines in the closing seconds of the game.

Did They Stretch In 7th?

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Gager's Diner beat Bend 'N Elbow 491-467 in a 53-hour, 367-inning softball game, despite Tom Schock's 12 home runs for the losers.

Sponsors of the charity event said the Softball Hall of Fame in Oklahoma recognized the marathon, which ended Sunday, as the longest softball game ever. The Guinness Book of World Records has no listing for that category.

Thirty men and women played for each side, with modified fast pitch rules in effect. Planners had schedule the game for 200 or more innings. The winning team amassed 832 hits to 749 for the losers. There were 31 home runs in the game.

Morning Briefing

Shorter Gains Win In Race

Frank Shorter
Outlasts Rodgers

Frank Shorter, fresh from his second place finish in the Olympic marathon, outlasted Boston's Bill Rodgers to win the fourth annual Falmouth Road Race.

Shorter led an estimated 2,000 runners over the seven-mile course in 32:10.

Rodgers, the 1974 winner, finished 110 yards behind Shorter.

Other Track

Olympic gold medalist Annegret Richter added the women's 200-meter sprint title to her 100-meter title on the final day of the West German track and field championships. She ran the 200 in :22.78 and the 100 in :11.06.

Baseball

Catcher Brian Downing, who fractured a finger on July 25, was reinstated to the Chicago White Sox active roster.

New York Mets slugger Dave Kingman, the major league home run leader who has been out of the lineup since July 19, had the pin removed from his left thumb and may soon be returning to the lineup.

Cincinnati pitcher Pat Zachry suffered a broken bone in his cheekbone when he was struck with a return throw from catcher Bill Plummer.

Football

Defensive end John Matuszak of the Kansas City Chiefs was in the intensive care unit of a hospital Sunday, where he was taken after suffering from convulsions Friday night. The Chiefs said Matuszak, 6-8, 275 pounds, suffered a low blood count.

The Buffalo Bills announced they have traded defensive lineman Jeff Winans to the Oakland Raiders for an undisclosed draft choice in 1977. A spokesman denied knowledge of a possible deal between the Bills and Raiders on running back O. J. Simpson, who will retire from pro football unless he can play on the west coast.

Tennis

The Soviet Union secured a berth in the finals of the Davis Cup European Zone A tennis tournament when Alex Metreveli defeated Hungary's Balazs Taroczy in straight sets, giving the Soviet Union a 3-1 edge.

Former Maryland basketball player John Lucas made his first World Team Tennis start in singles for the Golden Gaters and lost to Vijay Amritraj 6-3.

Other Sports

An ABA team that ceased to exist in 1970, the New Orleans Buccaneers, has filed a $3.75 million anti-trust suit against the NBA.

Billy Vukovich took command on the 22nd lap when Johnny Parsons spun out with a broken suspension and went on to win the 51-mile USAC midget race prior to the Trenton 200.

Bernhard Russi and Heini Hemmi, Swiss Olympic ski champions, announced they are turning professional.

Jim Dix, who traveled to the Sidney, Ia., rodeo from North Collie, West Australia didn't leave empty handed. He won the bareback riding event and earned $596.82 in prize money. Prize money awarded totaled $43,055.

Tom Jennings of Edison, N.J., psyched himself up for a month and capped the month off with the U.S. Open Pocket Billiard championship with a win over Joe Balsis of Pennsylvania.

Pat Costello widened her lead in the $20,000 Houston Professional Women Bowlers classic to 144 pins after the second round.

Rugg Wins State Title

Omaha — Top-seeded Larry Rugg of Lincoln won the Nebraska Closed Tennis tournament 18-year-old tennis title here Sunday.

Rugg defeated Tom Rives of Omaha, 7-6, 1-6, 6-3, in the semifinals and Tom Rice of Omaha in the finals, 6-4, 7-6.

Boosalis Expected To Make Cut

Reston, Va. — The eighth annual Youth Insurance classic was postponed midway through Sunday's second round and will be completed with the final 18 holes on Tuesday.

Lincolnites Gregg Boosalis, who fired a 73 the opening round, hadn't completed the first nine holes on the second round but should make the cut, and Luke Stevenson, who shot 75 the opening day, fell to an 84 in the second round and will not make the cut.

Other Nebraskanas in the tourney include Kearney's Steve Samuelson, who turned in 78 to add to his first round 78 for a 156 total; Omaha's Ed Person, who missed the cut with an 82-85 — 167 total; and McCook's Rick Smolazyk, with a 159 total, who also missed the cut.

The meet has been trimmed to 54 holes instead of 72, and in the final round the junior golfers will play with members of the PGA.

Johncock Wins Trenton 200

TRENTON, N J (AP) — Gordon Johncock won Sunday's rain-shortened Trenton Times 200, a race decided in part by a maker of safety equipment and in part by Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan

Bill Simpson, the safety equipment man, was faulted with erratic driving that put leader A J Foyt into the wall only a few laps before the rains started to fall at lap 113 of the scheduled 134-lap event

The race could have been completed if it had started at the scheduled 4 p m time, but CBS, broadcasting the race live, insisted the start be delayed so it could show Reagan at Kansas City for the Republican National Convention

The organizers relented, although the decision was loudly booed by the paying customers

The 22-car field, led by Foyt and Johncock, finally took the green flag at about 4 25 p m The rain started a little over an hour later

Finishing behind Johncock in a Wildcat were Al Unser in a Parnelli, Tom Sneva in a McLaren and Johncock's teammate Wally Dallenbach, all on the same lap Mike Mosley was another lap down

Johncock Wins Trenton 200

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Gordon Johncock won Sunday's rain-shortened Trenton Times 200, a race decided in part by a maker of safety equipment and in part by Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan.

Bill Simpson, the safety equipment man, was faulted with erratic driving that put leader A.J. Foyt into the wall only a few laps before the rains started to fall at lap 113 of the scheduled 134-lap event.

The race could have been completed if it had started at the scheduled 4 p.m. time, but CBS, broadcasting the race live, insisted the start be delayed so it could show Reagan at Kansas City for the Republican National Convention.

The organizers relented, although the decision was loudly booed by the paying customers.

The 22-car field, led by Foyt and Johncock, finally took the green flag at about 4:25 p.m. The rain started a little over an hour later.

Finishing behind Johncock in a Wildcat were Al Unser in a Parnelli, Tom Sneva in a McLaren and Johncock's teammate Wally Dallenbach, all on the same lap. Mike Mosley was another lap down.

Until Foyt's exit, the race had been a struggle between Foyt, Johncock and Unser. Johncock took the lead from pole winner Foyt for 14 laps, but Foyt took over and led until lap 43 when pit stops began.

Johncock regained the lead on lap 45 after Sneva and Foyt led one lap each, and held it until lap 67. Foyt surged ahead again and stayed in front until more pit stops at lap 81.

Dallenbach led laps 81-89, Johncock 90, Sneva 91-94 and Unser 95-97. Foyt hit the fourth turn wall, his first crash in Indianapolis cars in several seasons, on lap 94. Johncock took over on lap 98 and led until the end.

An angry Foyt hopped out of his car and gestured vehemently at Simpson.

After the race, Johncock said he had a narrow escape with Simpson, too.

Johncock averaged 135.929 miles per hour for his second victory in eight races this season.

The race was stopped after 117 laps.

1. Gordon Johncock, 117 laps, 135.929 mph.
2. Al Unser, 117.
3. Tom Senva, 117.

LSC'sDrake GainsRecord

Minneapolis — Aaron Drake set four regional meet records here this weekend during the AAU Region VII championship time trials.

On Sunday, Drake added his fifth first place with a win in the 50 meter backstroke. His time of :33.27 is a qualifying time for age-group top 10 consideration.

He also finished fourth in the 50 meter butterfly (:32.32) and fifth in the 200 freestyle (2:21.15).

The 200 meter medley relay team in the boys' 13-14 group won in a time of 2:03.90, which also will qualifying them for age-group top 10 consideration. Jack Perry, Bob Gustafson, Phil Hayman and Jon Divis comprised the team.

Minnesota won the meet with 1,827½ points, followed by Wisconsin with 1,740½ and the Midwest team with 1,008½. Top Midwest teams were Omaha Westside with 483½, Bellevue Swim Club with 233 and the Lincoln Swim Club, with just 23 swimmers, 99.

Horseshoe City Title To Bussard

Lee Bussard won the Class A division of the Lincoln Parks and Recreation horseshoe tournament Sunday at 49th and Francis.

Earl Buss won Class B. Norm Aden took Class C, John Durst won Class D and Class E went to Rich Holtmeier. Vonda Kapke won the women's division while Robert Ingram won the junior class.

Arlington Wins In Class B

ST.PAUL, Neb. (AP)—Ed Menking hit a grand slam home run and Ken Misfeld held York to two runs Sunday as Arlington defeated York 5-2 in the junior Class B American Legion baseball here.

Both York runs were home runs by Joe Kline.

Schuyler defeated O'Neill 2-1 behind the pitching of Roland Brando while Steve Erwin suffered the loss for O'Neill.

The losses eliminated York and O'Neill from the tournament.

Blalock Captures Wheeling Playoff

WHEELING, W.Va. (UPI) — Cool Jane Blalock putted 35-feet to within inches of the first hole on her third shot and sunk it for an easy par-four Sunday to defeat Pat Bradley, who bogeyed, in a sudden death playoff for the championship and the $7,000 top prize in the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic.

Blalock and Bradley ended the third round of the 54-hole tournament a one-over-par 217 on the rain-soaked Speidel Golf Course at Olgebay Park.

A third-year pro who has never won a tourney, Bradley, 25, had to come from far behind to earn the tie. She was three-over-par going into the final round, which was suspended during torrential rains 2 hours and 26 minutes Sunday morning.

Bradley shot a two-under-par 34 on the first half and held even on the second half, and then awaited the finish of Blalock, who was two parties behind. Blalock was in full possession of third place at even-par going into the final round.

She shot a one-under-par 35 on the front nine but bogeyed on the 11th, 14th and 16th holes. She was two-over-par and had to make a birdie on the 18th hole to pull into the tie with Bradley.

Blalock, 30, who was still looking for her first victory of 1976, chipped onto the green on the par-five No. 18 in two shots.

Austria Win To Watson

ZELTWEG, Austria (AP) — John Watson of Ireland, winless in 39 previous Formula I auto races, gunned his Penske to victory Sunday in the Grand Prix of Austria before a crowd of 70,000.

Watson grabbed the lead on the 12th lap of the 54-lap race and stayed in front the rest of the way, averaging 70 miles an hour with a time of 1 hour 30 minutes 7.68 seconds over the Oesterreich-ring.

France's Jacques Laffite, in a Ligier-Matra, finished second in 1:30:18.55. Gunnar Nilsson of Sweden, driving a Lotus, was third, Britain's James Hunt, in a McLaren, was fourth and Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa. wound up fifth in a Lotus.

Only 12 of the 25 starters completed the race, the 11th in the world championship series. Light rain delayed the start of the race 20 minutes but later the sun came out.

1. John Watson, Great Britain, Penske, 1:30.07.86 (132.770 mph average)
2. Jacques Laffite, France, Matra, 1:30.18.65
3. Gunnar Nilsson, Sweden, Lotus, 1:30.19.84
4. James Hunt, Great Britain, McLaren, 1:30.20.30
5. Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., Lotus, 1:30.29.35
6. Ronnie Peterson, Sweden, March, 1:30.42.20
7. Jochen Mass, West Germany, McLaren, 1:31.07.31
8. Harald Ertl, West German, Hesketh, 1:31.34.49 (one lap behind)
9. Henri Pescarolo, France, Surtees, 1:31.43.77 (two laps behind)
10. Brett Lunger, Wilmington, Dela., Surtees, 1:25.39.32 (three laps behind)
11. Alessandro P. Rossi, Italy, Tyrrell, 1:30.38.11 (three laps behind)
12. Lella Lombardi, Italy, Brabham, 1:30.24.71 (four laps behind)
13. Loris Kessel, Switzerland, Brabham, 44 laps-no time rating

Wilkins Remains Golden

By The Associated Press

America's two Olympic medal-winning discus throwers, Mac Wilkins and John Powell, are dominating the European circuit this summer, as are many of America's male runners.

Wilkins, who the gold medal at the Summer Olympics in Montreal, won his event at an international meet in Viareggio, Italy Saturday with a toss of 215 feet, 2 inches. His effort far bettered that of second-place Moreno Boldini of Italy, 173-4.

Powell, the bronze medalist in Montreal, won at the British Amateur Athletic Association national championships in London Saturday with a throw of 214-11½, a meet record.

At the same meet, pole vaulter Mike Tully of UCLA bettered the British championships record with a vault of 17-5¾.

Other Americans winning at Viareggio were Steve Riddick in the 100-meter dash, Al Feuerbach in the shot put, Arnie Robinson in the long jump, Fred Newhouse in the 400 meters, Jim Bolding in the 400 hurdles and Cyndy Poor in the women's 1,500 meters.

Riddick, timed in 10.27, beat Italian Pietro Mennea and fellow American Houston McTear at an international track and field meet Saturday night. Mennea was timed in 10.35 and McTear at 10:39.

Feuerbach won the shot with a toss of 64-1, and Olympic gold medalist Robinson won the long jump with a leap of 26-1½.

Newhouse, Olympic silver medalist, led a 1-2-3 American sweep of the 400. Newhouse was timed in 45.11, followed by Herman Frazier in 45.76 and Robert Taylor in 45.84.

Bolding won the 400 hurdles in 49.38, and Miss Poor won the 1,500 meters in 4:08.40, only 45 one-hundreds of a second ahead of Gabriella Dorio of Italy. American Francie Larrieu was third in 4:09.22.

Guy Drut of France won the 100-meter hurdles in the Italian meet with a time of 13.51, beating Americans Charles Foster and Willie Davenport, an Olympic bronze medalist. Both Americans were timed in 13.61.

NOTICE OFFER FOR FEDERAL-AID OFF-SYSTEM HIGHWAY HEARING

Pursuant to Federal laws and regulations the Lancaster County Board of Commissioners and the Lancaster County Engineering Department offers an opportunity for a public hearing on highway Project No. OS-7055(20), N.W. 126th Street from West "O" Street north to West Adams Street; described as west of Sections 17 and 20 T10N, R5E of the 6th P.M.

The County Engineering Department is required to solicit and consider fully a wide range of factors in determining highway locations and highway designs. Proposals of public and private interests will be extensively coordinated. Procedures are developed to give all interested persons an opportunity to become fully acquainted with highway proposals of concern to them, and an opportunity to express their views at those stages of a proposal's development when the flexibility to respond to these views still exists.

Therefore, the Lancaster County Board of Commissioners and the Lancaster County Engineering Department before giving their advice thereon extends an opportunity for a public hearing regarding this matter. If a public hearing is desired, a written request should be made to the County Engineer of Lancaster County, at Lincoln, Nebraska on or before the 6th day of September, 1976. In the event a request for a public hearing is made, further notice of the time and place of such hearing will be given.

If a request for a hearing is not received, as herein stated, the Lancaster County Engineering Department will complete their study of location and design and present their recommendations to the proper government officials for approval.

Dated this 16th day of August, 1976.

VILLAGE OF HALLAM, NEBRASKA NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED STREET IMPROVEMENT DISTRICTS

Notice is hereby given to all who may be concerned that the Chairman and Board of Trustees of the Village of Hallam, Nebraska will meet in a publicly convened session on August 19, 1976 at 8:00 P.M., at the Hallam Hall. The agenda subjects to be considered at said meeting are as follows:

1. To determine the sufficiency of petitions filed with the Village Clerk requesting the Chairman and Board of Trustees of the Village of Hallam, Nebraska to make certain improvements in the following described streets: Walnut Street from the west side of Harrison Street, west to the west corporate limits of the Village and, if sufficient, to consider passage of an ordinance creating Street Improvement District No. 20 of the Village of Hallam, Nebraska.

2. Consider approval of the plans, specifications and estimates of cost for the construction of proposed improvements in Street Improvement District No. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of the Village of Hallam, Nebraska and the Notice to Bidders included in said specifications.

Nebraska and the Notice to Bidders included in said specifications.

3. Transact any other business of an emergency nature currently unknown that may come before the Chairman and Board of Trustees.

No agenda change is anticipated; however, a continually current agenda is available for public inspection, upon request, at the office of the Village Clerk.

By Firestone

1. Investors:
Take note of these 2 brick 6-plexes. Quality construction, excellent location and in very good condition. Each unit has own coin-operated washer & dryer and every apartment has it's own air conditioning.

2. New Listing:
Clean, sharp, and close to schools. This two bedroom ranch has an oversized double garage, new carpet and an assumable loan. Southeast location.

3. Fresh on the Market:
Here's that beautiful brick, 2 bedroom home in the Ag. College district everyone's looking for. Lots of storage, central air, nicely landscaped and immaculate. Won't last.

4. WOW!
It's awfully tough to find a creampuff three bedroom home in Wedgewood at this price. Extra large garage, screened porch, central air, water softner and a great view.

5. Duplex Buyers:
Better take a look at this one. Location is great, in excellent condition, good return, central air and much remodeling has been done. Full "D" zoned lot.

6. Better Build:
Now and avoid paying more in the future. That is the only way you can fight the rising costs. We build homes of the finest quality and offer the best service around. Good reasons to talk with us.
